

OUR SATURDAY'S SALE of WASH GOODS NOVELTIES

Was such a grand success that we have reluctantly decided to continue the sale for a day or two longer, as so many are unable to attend these sales owing to the fact that on this day there is a double amount of work to be performed at home which prevents many from doing their shopping. It is for their benefit that we have decided upon this plan.

If you will look at our corner window you will be immediately convinced that we are sacrificing some elegant goods at wonderfully low prices. Our "silent saleslady" (the window) has on her best "bib and tucker" and is at home to her friends at all times.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Shaw Company
"The Last Stroke"
Tonight at the Baldwin.

The first peach plums were shipped last night, when Judge Bennett sent a carload to New York.

We understand that G. T. Parr, of the Eastern Oregon Land Company, has leased the Magee property on Fourth street which is now occupied by the family of Leslie Butler.

The attention of the Rathbone Sisters is called to the meeting which will be held this evening. As few meetings have been held recently, all are especially requested to be present.

Ralph E. Moody, the well known attorney, has been honored with appointment to the office of district deputy grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks for the state of Oregon. Mr. Moody is a member of Portland lodge, No. 142, and the local herd is well pleased with this recognition shown them.

Last night at their home on the Mill creek road about two miles from the city Chester, the 7-year-old son of Albert and Clara Burns, died of brain fever. His parents moved from the Valley last fall, and shortly after Chester was taken with typhoid and has never been well since. The funeral will take place tomorrow at 10 o'clock from the residence.

Like the Telegram and all the rest of the "leading" journals, THE CHRONICLE is not exempt from errors and so on Tuesday last in speaking of the arrest of Fred Walther, we said he was fined $5 for attempting to choke the son of John Walther. We should have said the son of John Matthews. Fred objects to having it said that he was arrested for chocking any of his own relations (if there were such a boy) although he says he'd shake them up if they needed it.

The Daily Astorian has been sold to a corporation called the Astorian Publishing Company. John Adams, John T. Lighter and George Gray are named as the incorporators, and a cash consideration was paid for the paper and its plant. It is understood the new company has ample financial backing, and the Astorian will be immediately improved and enlarged.

Last night Mr. Shaw promised the audience at the Baldwin that if possible he would have a number of raised seats placed in the back of the hall for the convenience of those who have general admission tickets. He now announces that benches have been put in which will accommodate 200 persons, and add greatly to their comfort, while it does much to preserve quiet in the building.

The horse canning business must be on the boom at Linton. Three thousand head have recently been bought up on the Simcoe Indian reservation, and are being brought here and shipped to that preserver of horse flesh. They are fine looking animals, too. Last year among those that were bought for that purpose, a gentleman saved out a team, for which he has since been offered $150.

In speaking of a trip made by the Ora, the steamer of which O. S. Wand is captain, the Nugget, a newspaper published at Dawson, says: "The passengers who came on the 'Ora' speak in the highest terms of the skill shown by Captain Wand in bringing the boat safely through the dangerous waters of Thirty-Mile." The captain is all right whether on Alaskan waters or those of our own Columbia.

New forms of mortgages and notes, adopted by the land board recently, to take the place of the forms used in the past, have been sent to the attorneys of the board located in the various counties of the state, and the new forms will hereafter be used in the new loans made by the board. The new forms were adopted for the reason that in all old blanks the old name of the board appeared printed, as did the rate per cent of interest then charged by the state, both of which were changed by the legislature at the last session. J. W. Condon, of this city, is attorney for Wasco county.

Burglars seem to have chosen that portion of the hill near Mays' residence as their favorite rendezvous, and last night one of them hid in a dry goods box in Mr. Wm. Cates' yard and after that gentleman had gone to bed called upon him, without the usual ceremonies. After he had gained entrance, however, Mr. Cates heard him and got up to receive him with open revolver; but he was not so sociably inclined and not only backed out, but ran out before he was accosted. Mr. Cates' family is away, and no valuables were left around, so his visit was fruitless.

Last night about 8:20 President Meilen's special train passed through this city from Portland. On board was also President Mohler, of the O. R. & N. There has been much stir in railroad circles since the arrival of President Meilen, and his visit is said to relate to the future traffic arrangements between the O. R. & N. and the Northern Pacific. During his visit Mr. Meilen declared that unless the Union Pacific gave the Northern Pacific traffic arrangements over the O. R. & N. to Portland his road would build a direct line there. The result of his visit is not yet known.

As proof of the condition of our sidewalks an accident which happened to an old lady on Third street this morning is sufficient. When coming leisurely along, she ran up against one of those ever-present spikes known as nails, and stumbling, fell to the ground. Luckily she escaped injury, but 'twas not because any condition of our sidewalks prevented it. The sidewalk question is an old one, but it cannot be as old as some of the walks. Among others which are tottering and broken down with age are two which lead to the bluff, one on Fifth street, going up from Washington, and the other in front of the old Fulton property. Either one of these might be responsible for any number of broken legs were the pedestrians not aware of their terrible condition and failed to step carefully.

Regarding the Georgia Minstrels, which appear at the Vogt Monday, an exchange says: "Far superior to the ordinary farce-comedy is that of the Georgia Up-to-Date Co. as seen last night for the first time at Love's opera house. They are the cleverest of dark comedians, and are so well drilled that it is a pleasure to note the thorough system that characterizes all their work. The opera house was packed and jammed to its utmost capacity and the laughter and applause were almost continuous. The vocalization was fine, the dancing simply wonderful, and all the gags and songs were new. From the first rise of the curtain to the last drop the audience is assailed with the finest singing ever heard here by any company. The first act opens down in Georgia before the war and carries you up to the swell upper-ten of the colored 400, to close with a grand medley of the late comic operas.

Some of the boys of our city, between the ages of 8 and 15, fail to remember that "tis a sin to steal a pin," or anything however small, and therefore several in the West End of town have been in the habit of swiping everything lying loose about their neighbors' premises—garden hose, hammers, tools of all kinds. Yesterday two or three of them went into a yard and unscrewing a new brass faucet from a hydrant, walked away with it, leaving the water running. It was afterward found by the owner in a boy's pocket. The gentleman had compassion on the boy and refrained from having him punished as he deserved; but if these petty thefts continue "somethin' must-drap." Parents should give more heed to their boys' actions and when anything is found in their pockets unaccounted for, investigate the matter. Such small thieves are but fitting themselves to fill a cell in the penitentiaries, "for great trees from little acorns grow." Really they should be sent to our reform schools.

ALL FAIR IN "LOVE AND LAW."

And More Than Fair Was the Shaw Company Last Night.

"Love and Law" which was put on the boards by the Shaw Company last night was perhaps the strongest yet given, from the fact that it required so much character work, which always tests the strength of a cast. We must say, however, that they stood the test well, for 'tis not often a company is found containing so many artists in the character line; one that can put seven almost faultless character artists in one play, each one seeming to thoroughly understand the part and enter into the spirit of it, from the Italian organ-grinder, which we consider an extremely difficult role and perfectly taken by Al. H. Hallett, to the Dutch policeman. In make-up, dialect, manner and acting Mr. Hallett was certainly immense, and succeeded in making all despise him. In Mrs. Shaw, as "Old Rosa," he had support none the less perfect. The conscientious work of the lady in every character she assumes is apparent, and in last night's performance it would be difficult to imagine one who could surpass her.

Of Mr. Shaw as "Felix O'Paff," an Irish attorney, we can but reiterate what was said of his first performance. So perfect is his understanding of every character he has so far appeared in here, that his audience is at once charmed with him and then led to study his rendition of each character. He is one of the most fascinating actors Dalles people have ever heard.

"Cockney Jim" was a splendid role when in the hands of M. J. Hooley, who played it for all there was in it. He is all right and such was the verdict of the audience. Jennie Kelton also had a difficult part in Retta, the street singer, but she met every requirement and showed herself equal to a heavy part as well as lighter ones, in which she had previously appeared. As Kittie O'Rourke, the Irish servant, Louise Carter was "too cute for anything" as a young lady was heard to remark. While her brogue might have been improved upon, her make-up and her acting were the "real thing." The audience did not blame her for admiring Policeman Hoffmeier, for Dan Dougherty was "one of the finest", and is also a high stepper.

Stanley Ross had the thankless part of a villain, and it was hard to make the audience believe he was the same person who assumed the roll of the charming lover the first night, so much of a villain was he.

Although it would not seem so, H. W. Gilbert had a role difficult to take, as much depends on the ease with which a lover's part is carried out, and he was perfectly at home as Sir Randall Burns. Albert Watson as "Septimus Sawyer" also acted the part of the lawyer well.

Those who have heard Miss Myer in the previous performances were better pleased with her in last night's play, for she seemed more at home. Due allowance must be made for her, however, as this is her first appearance in this repertoire, having just joined the company here, and being compelled to learn a new role each day. She is said to be a first class actress when at her best. Her make-up was also better last night, she being inclined to use too much make-up for this stage. A little less rouge, as well as powder, would add to her appearance.

The play which Mr. Shaw has selected for this evening is the story of Cuba's struggle for freedom, "The Last Stroke." It can hardly be called a war drama. "A dramatic incident in a war setting" would be a more accurate description of it. But what's in a name? A play by any other name would be as good (if presented by the Shaw company) so get your seats early and you will not be compelled to stand up.
