"THE LAST STROKE."

And It Was a Good One by the Shaw Company Last Night.

Again last night the Shaw Company strengthened the opinion of Dalles people regarding their ability as a first-class troupe by appearing in a play which required much heavy work and successfully mastering it. While the play itself was not so much to our liking as those of former nights, at the same time we appreciate the work done and the clever acting. All have heard of the old lady from the backwoods who attended the theater, and so well was the play acted that becoming excited she jumped to her feet and addressed the players during one of the most intense scenes. During the scene last night where Mr. Shaw as "Richard Vance" held the pistol to the head of the dejected "Dan Julio," which was so admirably carried out by Albert Watson, an old man in the gallery started to his feet and said "Why don't you let it go?" So perfectly was the villain taken that this seemed to be the verdict of the entire audience.

Such was the character of the entire performance, and every part was well taken, the scenes between Mr. Shaw and Miss Carter being especially taking and true in every detail.

The patriotism of the audience was often appealed to, the music by the orchestra being also along that line. As nothing touches an audience more than does that class of music, their selections were doubly appreciated.

A very novel idea of advertising in the manner in which Mr. Shaw has chosen of advising the audience regarding the Saturday matinee. Having promised the first evening never to mention it again, and forgetting himself each evening, he is called down by one of the company, who thus advertises it the more.

Their announcement was interrupted last evening by the usher presenting him with two century blossoms which had been sent by someone who wished to show their appreciation of his splendid acting. He responded in a neat little speech. It was indeed a compliment, the blossoms being so rare and so highly prized by their owners.

"Farmer Stebbins," the play in which the company will be seen tonight, was written by Mr. Shaw and is a rural comedy, pure and simple. The play is somewhat sensational, but the comedy element predominates. Mr. Shaw so completely buries his own identity in the character of the old Vermont farmer, who is "suing the town" for the first time, that it is like a visit to the country to see him in the part.

Their "jay parade" this afternoon was a fair index to what is to follow. Do not miss this.

INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION.

Products of the Northwest Will All Be Exhibited at the Fair This Fall.

People who attended the exposition at Portland last autumn were pleased and satisfied with the sights they saw, and the instruction and amusement afforded. And they will be pleased to learn that the exposition to be held this season will aim to excel all its predecessors. It will begin September 28, and end October 28, and its success is already assured; enterprising men of affairs are at its head, and the various committees are working in a way that guarantees the best exposition ever held in the Northwest. The products of the farm, forest, mines, stream and factory are all going to be on exhibition at the exposition, which will make it an object lesson instructive and invaluable to all. The exposition management will take to Portland free of charge all exhibits; shipping tags and full particulars will be sent if you will drop a line to "Secretary Industrial Exposition, Portland, Oregon."

Bennett's full military band of thirty-two pieces, which furnished such splendid music at last season's exposition, has been again engaged, and the amusement feature of the fair will be as usual new and attractive.

The railroad and steamboat lines will give specially low rates, so that the enjoyment and benefits of the great exposition will be within the reach of all.
