STRAY RECEPTION SHOTS.

Listen for the Whistles—Twenty-five Visitors Will Accompany Our Boys—Other Notes.

There'll be but a few speeches tomorrow night and those short.

Fifty little girls will be on the line of march and strew flowers in the way.

There has been no Hobsonian committee appointed; but that'll take care of itself.

People who were there last night say Portland cheers were not deafening. Let's whoop 'em up here.

The reception committee which goes down to the locks tomorrow will carry with them a quantity of fruit for the soldiers.

"When you hear them bells begin to ring," and those whistles to toot, get on your best attire and be on hand, the boys are about to land.

Four hundred was the number of volunteers who reached Portland last evening, the first section getting in a few minutes after 4 o'clock.

Messrs. Moore and Stephens have done their work of soliciting well. It is a hard task at best; but they are all right and their efforts are appreciated.

We would just here suggest that the old inscription placed over the armory door when the boys marched away, be changed from "Remember the Maine" to "We Have Remembered the Maine."

Ernest Jensen went down this morning to decorate the Regulator, and it will be a "beaut" when he finishes. Josh Hardy also was a passenger to put some finishing touches on some banners he had been painting.

Decorating has been going on during the day. Let it continue until every business house at least shows its patriotism. A. M. Williams & Co. have stretched a line of the various flags of the nations across the street in front of their store.

Dr. Saunders telephoned this morning and informed the committee that about twenty-five of Company L—Portland boys and others—will come up with our twenty-five soldiers tomorrow to join in the final festivities. Let's make them doubly welcome.

Max Vogt donated the opera house for the reception as long as it was needed, and Lieut. Spivey, with a force of militia boys have been working day and night to decorate it. They are making splendid progress and it will be handsomely decorated, and in a new design. The lieutenant is an untiring worker for the company and a great favorite with the boys.

All the exercises of the reception—including the dance—will be free to all, excepting the banquet, which will be given in the vacant store, next door to A. M. Williams', following the parade. To this will be admitted the volunteers and their parents, Co. D, G. A. R., W. R. C., and the committees. Those who are entitled to tickets for the banquet should call at the hall between the hours of 1 and 4 tomorrow and receive the same. None will be admitted without.

The line of parade as planned is too long; the boys have had too much parading already. We should consider their wishes in everything pertaining to their reception, curtailing everything as much as possible which requires any exertion from them. The parade as it now stands is as follows: Form on First, right on Court and Second. March west on Second to Union; south on Union to Third; west on Third to Liberty; south on Liberty to Fourth; east on Fourth to Washington; north on Washington to Second; east on Second to Taylor; counter march; turn to right; west on Second to Federal; south on Federal to Third; west on Third to armory.

IT'S NOT WELCOME THERE.

Umatilla County People Are Much Excited Over the Rain.

It is evident from the following article published in the East Oregonian, that the rain storm is not welcome in Umatilla county. It seems they are having a much heavier shower than are we of this section. That paper says:

"Rain is general all over this wheat growing region. It began late last night and has continued today. Considerable concern is felt for the grain. Rain at this time was the last thing asked for. There can come absolutely no benefits, and if continued for any length of time, immense losses will result. Farmers today state that, if the rain cease within a few hours, and good weather prevail thereafter, the damage will be nothing of consequence. But, if it continue, there must inevitably be heavy injury in every quarter.

"Harvest was in progress on almost every farm in the county. Never before were there more harvesting outfits at work at one time than were engaged in cutting and threshing yesterday. Today, of course, not a wheel is turning in the county. Harvesting outfits are coming into town, waiting for the rain to cease, and the grain to dry sufficiently to permit threshing to proceed.

"Rain in August in Umatilla county is almost without precedent. Scarcely anyone remembers when such a thing has happened in previous years, and although many farmers have prepared themselves for almost any emergency, there are hundreds of others who are wholly unprepared for a rainy spell.

"The rain belt extends from Meacham in the Blue mountains, to the Columbia river, and the precipitation is heavy. All day, the indications have been for considerable rainfall, and it causes dubious looks on the face of all who are interested in the crop and its preservation. This means about every man, woman and child in the county, so that dubious looks were rather fashionable here today."

"Hurrah For Old Glory!"

A. M. Williams & Co. are prepared to supply the demand for flags and flag bunting for decoration in honor of tomorrow's event—the home-coming of our brave soldier boys.

Three cheers and a tiger; a rousing welcome

"For the boys in blue,
Who fought so true,
In Cuba and the Philippines."

Toweling 1c per yard at A. M. Williams & Co's tomorrow.

Last evening about 5 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. C. Nelson, on Third street, Rev. Poling united in marriage M. B. Palmater and Mrs. B. A. Wing, both of Tygh Valley.

Remember the excursion on the boat tomorrow to the Cascades. Dalles City leaves dock at 8 o'clock. The round trip is $1. This will be a delightful trip and a chance to join in the first reception given the boys.

No one seemed to know that yesterday had been declared a legal holiday until the Oregonian came up at 5:30 and told us about it. Then it was too late; but it was not generally observed throughout the state.

The campers along the river have had their share of rain, as for two or three nights and a portion of the days the rain fell alike upon the just and the unjust, the former including Dalles people, and the latter their neighbors.

It is too bad Company D, of this city, did not go down to meet the soldier boys at Portland. It would have seemed more fitting had they done so, and it was generally supposed they would. The reason for their not doing so we have not learned.

In spite of the reports concerning the damage to the crops, from the rolling lands in Dry Hollow comes the report that on Wm. Taylor's place the spring wheat will yield twenty-three bushels to the acre and the oats forty bushels to the acre. We call this a pretty good failure.

James Busche, the half-breed Indian who for a time was one of the faithful soldiers in the Salvation Army, has deserted, and now finds that "the way of the transgressor is hard;" at least his is a rocky way at present, he being employed on a rock pile working out a $10 fine imposed upon him by the recorder this morning. He seemed to have an affinity for rocks last night about 9 o'clock, when he was found by Phirman in a drunk and disorderly condition throwing rocks up on to Nelson's porch. So after being arrested and failing to produce fine, it was thought best to let him work off his surplus energy on the streets for the next four days.

Two more soldier boys came up last night—David Bonner and Frank Price. The former claims he had pressing business which compelled him to come ahead of the rest; and we had a gentle hint that in the "pressing" business mother was the other party most concerned, and when a knock was heard at her door during the night, Mrs. Armstrong was not a little surprised to find one of her three soldier boys asking admittance. Suffice to say he got in. The truth is, when he reached Portland and found his mother not there he hastened home to get her and have her enjoy the reception there with them. During their absence the love of mother has been characteristic of these three soldier boys, who never failed to write and always sent some little token to her. Bonner returned to Portland today, accompanied by his mother, and will come up with the boys tomorrow. Price's home is at Tygh Valley, and we have not learned as to his reason for returning in advance of his comrades.

Just as everyone was going home to dinner today an alarm of fire sounded and from the cloud of smoke which could be plainly seen it was evident the fire was on the bluff in the vicinity of the high school building. It was soon determined that it was Wm. Nichols' house, a few feet from the top of the Union street grade. Mr. Nichols is building a new residence on the lot and was living in a small house adjoining. Mrs. Nichols had built a large fire with which to cook dinner and was outside washing. When she entered the kitchen the room was all ablaze, and it is difficult to tell just how it ignited. It was but a short time until the structure was ablaze and although the Mt.

Hood hose company got there as soon as possible, having a steep hill to climb, they were not in time to render much assistance except to the new building, which, with the assistance of Jackson engine company, they succeeded in saving, although there was some damage to it. The fire plug near Prof. Gavin's residence was used, but the firemen worked under difficulties as the force of water was poor. So intense was the heat and so small the house that it was impossible to save anything and Mr. and Mrs. Nichols lost everything in the way of furniture and clothing.

Eastern Salmon Market.

Thomas McGovern, of the well-known New York house of Delafield, McGovern & Co., is visiting in Astoria in the interest of the salmon trade. Mr. McGovern left New York a week ago Monday, and after devoting a day each to Seattle and Portland, came direct to this city. He will remain here until Saturday.

Mr. McGovern, in speaking of his firm's dealings in Pacific coast products generally, says: "While we handle raisins and dried and canned fruits extensively, our leading Pacific coast commodity is salmon. I would estimate that our sales in this especial branch will average close to three hundred thousand cases annually. Besides our purchases here and at Seattle, we also handle the British Columbia salmon in Canada."

Mr. McGovern says that the New York market in the line of salmon was almost depleted at the time he left. The price of Columbia river salmon showed an advance of 25 per cent, and Cockeye salmon, 40 per cent, over the figures governing last year. "The Association," said Mr. McGovern, "is a friendly institution for the fishermen. It has put into their pockets over a million dollars, which they never would have realized had it not existed."—Astorian.
