WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Last evening about 5 o'clock a marriage license was granted to Henry Hudson, Jr., and Marguerite Covey, both of Dalur.

This morning at about 10 o'clock the 18-month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hester, died at their home on East Fourth street.

Supt. Gilbert is arranging for a county institute to be held here on the 7th, 8th and 9th of next month. State Supt. Ackerman will be present.

Mrs. C. L. Phillips announces to the ladies that she has just received a shipment of the very latest thing in fall hats, particularly for street wear. 22-23.

Mrs. Ben. Wilson has returned from her camping trip and is now ready to take photographs at her gallery on Second street. Prices from $1 to $5 per dozen.

School in district No. 10, on Chenoweth creek, will commence next Monday, August 28th. Miss Margarette Shelley, daughter of Troy Shelley, has been engaged as teacher.

Ten men arrived in the city from Portland last night and today commenced work on another line for the Oregon Telephone Company between here and Portland. Their business is continually improving and yesterday fifty messages were put through at the office here in less than three hours.

Anyone wishing to make an investment in property, either within or without the limits of The Dalles, should consult Dad Butts, because he has property for sale in every quarter of the city; in fact all over Wasco county. If you have a house to rent or want to rent a house call on old Dad.

General Summers will soon be restored to his former position as appraiser of customs, and R. J. Hendricks, who filed the office during his absence in the Philippines, will resume the practice of law and the editorial management of the Salem Statesman, of which publication he is the principal owner.

The Degree of Honor are planning to give one of their pleasant socials Wednesday evening in Fraternity hall. This is good weather for dancing, and Prof. Birgfeld has been engaged to furnish music, so that will no doubt be the principal feature of the evening.

Pease & Mays will never be contented until everything in connection with their splendid store is faultless in its arrangement. They are now having the show windows enlarged by adding two feet and a half to their depth, and when the work is completed they will have ample room to display their stock of goods.

George M. Weister, Portland's scenic photographer, and O. D. Wheeler, advertising agent for the Northern Pacific, came up on the boat yesterday, and today made a trip to the upper Menalosse island for the purpose of obtaining photographs. They will secure many views along the river and of scenery near The Dalles. Mr. Wheeler has written much which not only advertises his road, but Oregon in general.

"Jack," the wharf boat dog, does not propose to allow any dog gone canine to infringe on his rights so far as being the only dog on the dock is concerned. So last night when a measly cur made his appearance as the Dalles City arrived, Jack forgot his duty, which consists in grabbing hold of the rope and pulling the boat in, and proceeded to remove the bark from his rival. Quite an excitement prevailed as a result, but Jack came out ahead and so the Regulator line still continues in business at the old stand.

Astorians have been hoping against the greatest odds that on the first day of the regatta the sun would dare to peep through the ever-present clouds and favor that drenched community with his smiling face. But although the day opened auspiciously, their hopes were dashed to the ground before the first event was announced, for the clouds were again lowering and the day was a dismal one. The coronation of the queen was postponed until evening. A large crowd was in attendance but the dismal weather has cast a damper on the entire proceedings.

All the farmers, and in fact every one—for what interests them is of vital importance to all—are on the anxious seat concerning the outcome of the crops and the effect the rains will have on the grain. It is therefore encouraging to have such a call as that made at THE CHRONICLE'S office this morning by A.

McLeod of the Kingsley neighborhood. He brought with him samples of the wheat which Remi Rondeau, whose farm is on Tygh Ridge, finished threshing yesterday. No one would ever dream of a failure when examining it, and Mr. Rondeau's crop averages forty-two bushels to the acre, and the barley fifty-seven. He has ceased raising spring grain and by summer following half of his land floods that he has a better crop than by his former method. A few other wheat growers there have finished threshing with splendid results; but nearly all the spring grain is still standing. Mr. McLeod says the rain has done little if any damage on the other side of Dafur, and if it ceases now really no damage will be done. Last Sunday it rained but about twenty minutes on the Ridge. If any have similar experiences, let another brother speak.

HOT SPRINGS AT WIND RIVER.

Taxes of Property Raised—Should Be Made a Health Resort.

Judge Bennett returned last night from Stevenson where he has been engaged trying a case which relates to the hot springs at Wind river. It seems that an attempt was made by the county commissioners to raise the taxes on the property, which is owned by St. Martin, from $600 to $10,000. This move it is thought, has been made in the attempt to compel the owners to dispose of it in some manner so that other parties may secure it and thus make of it what the healing properties of the water would warrant—a health resort. Judge Bennett appeared for the defense, and succeeded in preventing it being raised to more than $1000.

While it does not seem just to attempt to wrench from the proprietors the land which has been theirs for at least twenty years, at the same time they should not prevent its being used for the greatest good to the greatest number. Like the dog in the manger, they seem inclined to improve the property as little as possible and prevent others from doing so. At different times large sums have been offered them for it, but they refuse to sell.

There is this advantage to be gained by the present condition, and that is people of small means have an opportunity to go there and enjoy camping privileges by paying but a small sum to the owners. Were some person or persons to fit it up as a summer resort, only the wealthier class could afford to frequent the place. A splendid way out of the difficulty would be for some one to lease a portion of the grounds and fit them up as a resort, leaving the remainder to be used by campers and charging a small sum for the use of the water.

There is no doubt as to the healing properties of the water, which have been tested sufficiently this year at least. On the boat going to Portland last Saturday was a woman who had spent but a few weeks there, and yet instead of being crippled with rheumatism so that she could not help herself as was the case when she went there, she was almost as spry as any of the other passengers.

It is to be hoped that many improvements will be made before another season and the springs be the blessing they were designed to be.

DOES THE O. R. & N. BACK IT?

Report That the Columbia Valley Road Is a Mohler Plan.

A tip from a direct source is to the effect that the O. R. & N. is back of the company that is securing rights of way down the north side of the Columbia river. This is the talk on railroad row today.

The company referred to is the one incorporated by Messrs. Gerlinger and Stapleton, under the caption of the Columbia Valley railroad. Rumors have had almost every transcontinental road on the continent backing the road projected by Mr. Gerlinger. The incorporators maintained all along that the road would be built as an independent line; that no road was backing it, and that it would be operated solely upon its merits.

But railroad men are loath to believe that any private concern would build such a road independently, unless upon mere speculation. Owing to the low grades of which the road will get the benefit, there is no question about it proving a good speculative venture, as the Northern Pacific or Great Northern would give a good price to secure the possession of such an advantageous outlet to the seaboard, but there are indications that the road is pushed by the O. R. & N. It is asserted that those employed in surveying and obtaining rights of way are paid in O. R. & N. gold. If the informant is correct it is another evidence of Mr. Mohler's long-headed policy. Naturally he would understand the advantage of controlling the Columbia gateway. If any other road built down north side of the river it would play havoc with the O. R. & N.'s traffic. By anticipating such a thing and building a line itself, the O. R. & N. will have absolute control of the Columbia river gateway. With such an advantage it could shut out the other roads from Portland and not feel the slightest uneasiness.

While the Northern Pacific and Great Northern would be toiling and straining and using a great deal of steam in getting cars over steep grades, the O. R. & N. would be smoothly gliding down an easy grade in less than half the time consumed by those of its competitors. These facts are apparent to every railroad man.

Not long ago Mr. Mohler remarked at a dinner that "he never took a bluff in his life," and once in control of the Columbia river gateway if it is not likely that he will take what railroad men call "Mellen's bluff."—Telegram.

An Advertising Song.

One of the English trade journals publishes the following parody on "I Don't Like You Any More," which, it says, is going the rounds and is likely to prove a hit:

We don't want to buy at your place,
We don't trade there any more;
You'll be sorry when you see us going to some other store.
You can't sell us any stale goods,
We have opened wide our eyes;
We don't want to trade at your store because you don't advertise.
