IRELAND'S POPULATION.

The question of misgovernment in Ireland is very conclusively shown by the record of population, says the Spokesman-Review. If a country is well governed and prosperous its population generally increases. Such, however, has not been the history of Ireland since the famine. At the last meeting of the Statistical and Social Inquiry Society of Ireland an address was delivered by the president, Mr. Pim, discussing elaborately this question of the partial depopulation of the island. In 1845 the estimated population was 8,295,061. In 1898 it was 4,543,782. The emigration accounts for the difference. Between May of 1851 and December of 1898, 3,754,899 Irish people left their native land. During the ten years preceding 1851, covering the famine years, about 1,240,000 emigrated. The Irish migration of the seventeenth century was almost exclusively to France. That of the nineteenth century has been mainly to the United States. Between the middle of 1876 and 1877 there was a slight increase in the population of Ireland. During the next twenty-one years deaths and emigration exceeded the births. According to the register general there was a small gain in population during the last quarter of 1898. This induces Mr. Pim to hope that the tide has turned and that the exportation of her sons and daughters will cease to be the one great industry of Ireland. He is inclined to believe that the population has been so largely reduced that the country can live through bad seasons, which in other years meant famine and desolation.

While the population of Ireland has been decreasing the condition of the inhabitants has been improving. Wealth accumulates, but men do not decay, for those accumulations are not in a few hands. The deposits and cash balances in Irish banks have risen from $61,000,000 in 1855 to $195,000,000 in 1898. During the same period the deposits in saving banks have risen from $8,000,000 to $47,000,000. There is much poverty and wretchedness in Ireland today, but the mass of the people are not living from hand to mouth, with no reserves to fall back on, as was the case in 1845.

The Chicago Record says: "It is again rumored that Aginaldo will surrender, but he will be heartless indeed to crawl out of the jungle and spoil several Democratic platforms." And also Bryan's campaign speech.

By a coincidence the United States and England are largely engaged at this time in the transportation of troops by sea. Though we are new in the business, our ships devoted to it are a little ahead of anything previously known in their line.

Yarns intended to discourage enlistments have nearly disappeared from the yellow press. It is clearly apparent that good men and true will respond to all calls of Uncle Sam.

A question of interest is whether any of the Britons who want war with the Boers will drop to the miserable level of snarling copperheads as soon as hostilities begin.

After everybody else shall have given up the job, General Miles will descend upon the Filipinos and subdue them, just as he did the rebels in Porto Rico.

IS IT RIGHT

For an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?

From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N. C.

It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventive of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy was kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack, much suffering might be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists.

Hamilton Clark, of Chaucey, Ga., says he suffered with itching piles twenty years before trying DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, two boxes of which completely cured him. Beware of worthless and dangerous counterfeits. Butler Drug Co.
