WHY HE WEPT.

His Mother Told the Chubby Urethra Where and How He Had Been Hurt.
 A very fat little boy with chubby legs that stuck out at right angles from his watermelon-shaped body sat in a Georgetown car one day. His fond mamma was engrossed in "says sheing" and "says heing" with her companion, and Master Chunk made up his mind that he'd like to look out of the window. He rolled over and climbed up on the seat, says the Washington Post.
 "Now, don't do that," said mamma. "You know you've had one awful fall to-day doing that, so sit right down."
 "Where did I fall, ma?" he piped, shrilly.
 "In the street car."
 "Did I hurt myself?" he asked.
 "Yes," she answered.
 "Where?" and he looked anxious.
 "On the hand," his mother replied.
 Master Chunk raised one cushion of a hand to his head, and then, without the slightest warning, he let up a roar that would have made the bull of Bashan green with envy. All the way up to High street mamma was busy comforting him. She had recalled a painful circumstance to him and he wept—wept the more loudly since there was no present pain to distract his attention. And the woman across the car said if he was her child he'd stop yelling or she'd know the reason why.
Upset the Actors' Gravity.
 A funny incident happened during a performance of "Macbeth" in Dublin. In the sleep-walking scene, when the nurse and the doctor appear on the stage together and confabulate with one another, a loud voice suddenly called out from the gallery, causing a roar of laughter in the middle of a most serious scene: "Well, doctor, is it a boy or a girl?"
Dogs in Paris.

BIRTH OF A FASHION PLATE.

Modern Art a Libel on Women's Taste Which All True Men Must Respect.
 Ah! for the good old times when artists, real artists, could be persuaded to design a costume. One of the principal items of expense to a lady of old Italy used to be the "retainer" she paid to a Da Vinci, a Bramante, or some other artist of note, to furnish her with a design for her court and other dresses of ceremony, says Self-Culture.
 To-day some one who can draw is given an idea by a costumer—that is, by some one who has made or cut dresses under some other costumer's tutelage. Neither one has studied or cares aught for the other superfluities; they are costumers; what have they to do with such details? A wonderful assemblage of ideas is the result, a confection in silks, satins, chiffons and laces. These ideas and materials are beautifully and painfully drawn upon paper and draped upon an alleged female figure at least seven feet tall, with head slightly turned, auburn hair, sylvan waist, a stage smile and a background of palms and ferns.
 This drawing being reproduced upon thousands and thousands of sheets, lo! a fashion plate is born, with the name of the great designer in the left-hand corner, the password, the hall mark! Every woman, or rather, nearly every woman, studies it, admires it, and, be she lean or fat, tall or short, her next dress must be like that. Pelehanee her dressmaker has not signed her soul away entirely and protests feebly that that special style is not adapted to her patron's particular figure; but for her effrontery she may lose a customer. That dress has to be made in that way and in none other.

A MORAL TRIBE.

Among the Caribs of Central America All Sins Are Punished by Starvation.
 In the whole wide world there is not a class of people to be found who inflict severer punishment upon themselves than the Caribs of Central America. Their religion, which is one of the most peculiar kind, demands self-punishment for sins intentionally or unintentionally committed, says Pearson's Weekly.
 The punishment takes the form of starvation and close confinement.
 If the sin be in the form of a lie, no matter whether it is calculated to injure another or not, the sinner goes without either food or drink for three days, at the end of which it is believed that the offender has paid the penalty for his or her sin.
 Blaspheming and using bad language is punishable by absolute starvation for two days. Assault, drunkenness and other serious sins call for four days' starvation for one week, three days' starvation for the second week, and two days' starvation for the third week, and one day's starvation in the fourth week.
 All sins are punished with starvation. For that reason crime is very low among the Caribs, who are among the best behaved and most truthful people in the world.
