THE PARDON OF DREYFUS.

The Pardon of Dreyfus must be chiefly attributed to the influence of the commercial spirit of France, and especially of Paris, says the Telegram. The intimations that civilized countries all over the world might keep away from the Paris exposition next year sobered even the generals. Then they and Dreyfus' judges, knowing their case against him was not proven, were willing that he should be pardoned; doubtless recommended it; because his formal conviction was their formal acquaintance, with which they were fain to be satisfied, and they desire the matter to rest and be forgotten. Hence there was no difficulty or danger in the government's way in the matter of issuing a pardon.

In the eyes of all the world it is, to all practical intents and purposes, an acquittal. The military court had to go through the form of convicting Dreyfus in order to forestall further investigation and uphold the army chiefs; that done, it is practically conceded that Dreyfus is really innocent, and he is turned loose. This is a queer sample of justice, but it is the best that could be devised from the French point of view. Dreyfus will be wise if he shakes the dust of France from his feet and seeks employment in some other country, for in none will he be regarded as guilty of the crime of which he was convicted.

Preliminary figures on naval estimates have recently been given out which cannot fail to prove of public interest. The largest item is $18,000,000, which comes under the head of "increase of the navy," and includes many necessary items of expenditure. A good navy is an expensive institution. It is not a luxury, but a yearly increasing necessity. The increase of our navy has been rapid in recent years, and its cost has been enormous. Yet it has been worth all that it has cost, as the events of last year fully proved. This is no doubt the verdict of the American people, including the coterie of "antis" that formed a mutual admiration society with headquarters at Boston. The best public judgment will no doubt also favor the completion of the vessels now under way with the best materials that can be obtained. Whatever may be the popular verdict in regard to creating a large standing army, the necessity of maintaining a first-class navy is acknowledged on all hands.—Oregonian.

Governor Rogers of Washington describes "the laborer" as "the man who works with his hands," and emphasizes it by declaring that "manual labor is the only labor." There are times when we are forced to believe that the grey matter in Governor Rogers' head is the poorest kind of slush. Mental labor is as important and as productive to men as manual labor. A shortage in mentality is considered more of a loss to a laborer than a physical deficiency, says the East Oregonian.

Prevented a Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at Blakeley & Houghton's Drug Store.

Clarke & Falk have a full and complete line of house, carriage, wagon and barn paints manufactured by James E. Patton, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin.
