Dewey in New York. Dewey in Oregon.

There will be a meeting of the water commissioners in their office this evening at 8 o'clock.

A nice line of sterling silver novelty goods just received at Daut Optical Jewelry Co's.

You can't find a better place to bring your work to be repaired than at the Daut Optical Jewelry Co., opposite Mays & Crowe's.

John V. O'Leary, of Grass Valley, has bought a ranch in Montana, and we learn that he will soon move his family to that state.

There is talk that on account of the increase in passenger traffic a double service will be put on by the O. R. & N. between Portland and Pendleton.

Factory outside trusts, beating trusts prices, seeks representation on ground its regulars don't cover. Commission on season's trade. Free samples. Corp. P. O. 1871, New York.

Sheriff Andrews came down from Morrow county yesterday and will return on this afternoon train, taking with him Frank Turner, who is wanted in his county for obtaining money under false pretenses.

A transformation has taken place in the Astorian, and it has expanded to double its size, appearing as an eight-page seven-column daily. We have always enjoyed reading the Astorian and are glad to note such signs of prosperity.

There were 2800 persons in attendance at the exposition on the opening night. If the rainy weather continues it will make some difference in the attendance, unless Portland people are so used to the rain that a little thing like that wouldn't deter them.

The increase in business over the Oregon Telephone line has made it necessary to augment the facilities between this place and Portland by putting in a Dalles-Portland loop. The wires are of 435 pound copper, and will be for exclusive use between the two places.

Big, handsome, ox-souled Ernest Jacobson, the piano man of The Dalles, was a prominent figure on our streets the first of the week. If we had the physical makeup that "Jakey" possesses we should certainly claim the champion pugilist's belt, whether we ever did any scrapping or not.—Heppner News.

The inquiries have been frequent of late as to when we are to have a band concert. We are pleased to state that tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock the Commercial Club band will give a concert in the Court street school yard, if the conditions of the weather permits. It is unnecessary to add that a large attendance would be encouraging to the band, for our people are only waiting for an opportunity to hear the band, and the oftner the more satisfactory to them.

Again we must go away from home to hear the news, and learn from a dispatch in the Portland Telegram that at a directors' meeting of the company it was decided to put the Inland Flyer on the route between The Dalles and Portland. The steamer will run alternately with the Regulator and in conjunction with the Dalles City.

The members of the Methodist church had arranged to give their new pastor, Rev. Hawk, a reception last Wednesday evening, but postponed it until next Monday on account of the lecture on that evening. All members and friends of the church are very cordially invited to be present at the church Monday evening to meet the new pastor and his wife.

So far as we can learn the rain today will not be unwelcome. Most of the threehilling has been done and the previous storms have caused the farmers to get their grain in such shape that it will not be affected by it. The grass will be benefited thereby, and the roads made more passable, while the town people are glad that the atmosphere is cleared of the prevailing dust. We don't object to a little rain.

A lady who arrived in the city this morning from Wisconsin, accompanied by her four children, failed to meet her husband here as expected, he being out with a gang of bridge carpenters. She is very anxious to find Nels Bendon, a stone mason of this city, who is a friend of her husband, and if he chance to read these lines, will he please call at the Umatilla house. The marshal has endeavored to assist the lady in discovering his whereabouts, but has so far failed.

Dr. Russ, one of Portland's prominent dentists, who has practiced in that city for seventeen years, has permanently located in The Dalles, and has taken the rooms formerly occupied by the Portland Dental Parlors, in the Caspman block. Dr. Russ' long experience enables him to do first class work in every respect, and he guarantees what he does to be the best. Prices as reasonable as are consistent with the class of work he does. Gold tooth crown and bridge work a specialty. Teeth filled and extracted painless. 30-11

J. I. Carson, manager of the Wyoming Livestock Association, of Rawlins, Wyo., who has been trying to buy 25,000 lambs in Oregon this fall, says he has given the project up as a bad job, as sheepmen are holding the stock too high for him. He thinks the fine fall grass is largely responsible for this, as sheep-raisers think they can carry their lambs over until spring without much expense, and then sell the lambs as yearlings, after taking about 60 or 70 cents' worth of wool off each of their backs. He could find no lambs in Eastern Oregon under $2.25 a head, while $3 each was asked for dry ewes. Ewes and lambs in pairs cannot be bought for less than $5, which is too high a figure, he says, to justify shipping to the feeding yards at Central City, Neb., where the animals have to be fed on corn for the winter market.

Recorder Gates has been doing a land office business. The case of Jerome Johnston and Louie Lawler, who were arrested yesterday for fighting, came up before him yesterday afternoon. Lawler was discharged, it having been found that he was not responsible for the quarrel, while Johnston was fined $5. Failing to pay his fine he was given two days in the city jail, and is now working out his time on the streets. Five hoboes were then arraigned for vagrancy and discharged after promising to leave the city. One "Willie," however, failed to keep his word, and, running up against Phirman, was again arrested. Having no money, he too will assist in street work. The drunken shepherd was also released this morning, and is now looking for the person who stole his clothes and money.

A Musical Afternoon.

The first of the afternoon receptions for the season was enjoyed by a large number of the lady friends of Mrs. B. F. Laughlin yesterday afternoon at her home on the hill. If one feature that would have added to the completeness of the afternoon's pleasure had been omitted, it was not noticeable.

The hall was a veritable garden of evergreens, and here Miss Bessie French presided and served lemonade to the guests. The parlors were beautiful in the extreme—flowers and plants hanging from chandeliers and placed in every available space; while the dining room was daintily decorated in pink and white. In the center of the table was an immense bunch of pink roses, and roses were fairly scattered over the table, which, with the pink ribbons, formed a pretty picture. Misses Adams and Ruch who served the guests were also attired in white, and pink.

It was a happy thought which prompted the hostess to secure a male quartet to furnish music for the afternoon, for while the gentlemen were not visible, it goes without saying that the sound of their voices, which wafted sweet melodies from the parlors above, was appreciated by the ladies, and so this was a very pleasant feature of a perfect afternoon.

The entertainment furnished by the hostess tended to the musical, and in the hostess partners for the afternoon the lady which held the name of the composer was found to be the partner of the one who held the name of the song he had written. Articles representing different musical terms had been placed on a large table, which the guests were called upon to decipher. Several couples were fortunate in guessing all, but when put to the test Mrs. Marden and Mrs. Poling were the successful winners of two pieces of sheet music.

The refreshments were dainty and very tempting, the more so from the manner in which they were served. The home of the hostess is in every way adapted to such a gathering, and altogether the entire affair could not have been improved upon.

STYLE IN SCHOOLS.

Are School Children Going to the Extreme in This Regard?

Portland people are becoming greatly agitated over the question of the short lunch hour which the pupils of the high school have, and from this has arisen other questions relating to the welfare of the pupils, causing the Telegram to remark that "it is barely possible our modern system of education in cities runs somewhat too much to style. In a year or two a boy whose collar is less than five inches wide will be ostracized, and the young ladies and gentlemen of the high school will be expected to take an hour-and-a-half lunch down town at the most fashionable cafe."

The question of style in our schools, particularly in public schools, is certainly gaining wonderful proportions, and if allowed to continue must eventually shut out the very class of children public schools are calculated to benefit, and who look to them for the only educational advantages they possess.

We would not have it understood that we refer to the method of carrying on our schools, for if anything should be strictly modern and up-to-date it is our common schools, for in many instances it is there that the pupil receives his only idea of what is "proper," in the modern sense of the term, the teacher being compelled to overcome a home training which is in no way calculated to fit a boy or girl to go into the world and compete with those who have the right kind of home influence. By all means make the schools as attractive, as "stylish" (if such is the proper term) as possible.

The style we refer to is that carried on by the pupils; those properly-called "fads" which make a boy or girl who is not able to afford them, or who may not have had the opportunity to be just so "swagger," feel anything but at home, and many such a one hesitates to be placed in such a position; while the parents are put to their wit's end to keep their boy or girl dressed as well as their schoolmates.

Especially on the occasion of commencement exercises, when are introduced the expensive costumes, the class pin, programs, class colors, etc., is this noticeable. These are all right in their place, but the status of the class should be considered so that no member will be humiliated.

While a few years ago no girl was seen at school without an apron of some kind, now a pupil of 10 years of age wearing an apron is an oddity, and most children are dressed every day as if they were fitted out for some special occasion, with ribbons, laces, kid gloves, bracelets and many such articles of wearing apparel wholly unnecessary for school girls, who are supposed to give most of their attention to adorning their minds instead of their persons.

This is not the fault of the teachers, but of parents, for we have known many teachers, who, having a feeling of sympathy for the poorer class of pupils, have devoted hours outside of the school room in the endeavor to assist such to obtain sufficient clothing to be at least presentable with the more fortunate ones.

While we realize that parents have a right to attire their children as they chose, would it not be well were they to think the matter over unselfishly and persuade the child that neater and less expensive methods of dressing would be more becoming in the school room and better all around.

Words of Commendation.

Concerning Rev. Hawk's removal from Yakima, the Republican has the following:

"A large audience greeted Rev. U. F. Hawk at the M. E. church last Sunday evening to hear his farewell sermon, and gave him marked attention during his discourse. After the sermon the secretary of the official board of the church addressed the following words to the pastor and his estimable wife, which were endorsed by the entire congregation by a rising vote:

"A number of the members and attendants of this church having expressed a desire to manifest in a public way, their appreciation of the work performed by, and the worth of the one now going from us to other fields of labor, and believing that to commend, approve and endorse the acts of the living is equal to, if not better, than words of praise for the dead, it gives me pleasure to say to you, Brother and Sister Hawk, that I voice the sentiment of this congregation and the church when I say that your labors in North Yakima have been of exceeding worth and we regret that our relation as pastor and people has been severed. While we may not commend the action of the conference in thus early severing our relations, yet we are loyal to our church, and we bid you God speed in your new field of labor and trust in His providence it may prove to you a field of greater usefulness."

Rev. Hawk will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church in this city for the first time tomorrow.
