Not Only Our Way But Our Suits

That's what makes this special sale of Men's suits of so much importance. You know before you see them that every suit is a Wonderful Bargain—must be in our stock—must be a popular style to be in the sale now for it is a clearance sale of odd sizes. It isn't fair to the values to class these with anybody else's. They were better than any when at the regular prices. It's a chance you never get anywhere but here. Just think, in mid-season only, all winter before you to have the good of 'em.

Single and double breasted, plain blue and black serges and cheviots, fancy worsted, tweeds, whipcords. There are none worth less than $12.00, some worth up to $18.00. The choice

The activity around the warehouses today is good to look upon. Wheat teamagales have been coming in all day.

Little Josie Nickelsen, who has been so dangerously ill with inflammatory rheumatism, is reported somewhat better today.

To rain or not to rain, that is the question. Whether it is better to drop as the gentle dew from heaven or "let it up and dust."

L. S. Ainsworth acted as puerer on the Regulator today, F. Bronson being a witness in the case now being tried at Vancouver.

"A Breezy Time," which is to play at Cordray's during this week, is the next attraction at the Vogt, being billed for next Monday evening.

Don't put off your house cleaning till the rainy season begins, but get your paint and paper from the Butler Drug Co. and "make hay while the sun shines."

Pease & Mays today added two more clerks to their efficient force. Mr. Wm. Hoover, of Sherman county, in the clothing department, and Miss Gussie McIntosh in the dry goods department.

A meeting of the League of American Sportemen, for the protection of game and fish, will be held in Schanno's hall over Brown's grocery store, Tuesday night. A full attendance is requested.

There are no flies on the Flyer if she does fly so fast that she reached Portland at 3:17 this afternoon, making the trip in seven hours and seventeen minutes, including the stops at way stations.

All those who have been invited to become members of the dancing club are requested to meet at the club parlors this evening at 8:30, when all arrangements will be perfected for its organization.

At the grand lodge of Rathbone Sisters, which met in Portland last week, Mrs. Alice Crossen, of this city, was elected grand manager of the temple. Mrs. Lillian Brock was also elected excellent senior.

The price of salmon has moved up to 4 cents, cold-storage men being behind the advance. The run is very light, and, with the high price, it is probable that most of the canneries will shut down for the season.—Astorian.

Dr. Russ, one of Portland's prominent dentists, has bought Dr. Tackman's office, in the Vogt building. His work is first-class and prices reasonable. Gold tooth crowns and bridge work a specialty. Teeth filled and extracted painless. 12

The Halloween entertainments which the Congregational young ladies give each year are always enjoyable, and we are pleased to announce that this year will not be an exception, but that they are preparing for another on the evening of the 30th.

His friends were much pleased to again see Capt. Johnson at the wheel of the Dalles City when she came into the dock Saturday evening, he having taken charge of her while Capt. Short is attending court at Vancouver, as a witness in the Seivers case against the E. P. & A. N.

The Antelope fair opens on Wednesday and some of The Dalles local talent will lend to its success in the entertainment line. J. F. Hampshire left yesterday for that place and will give one of his Irish turns, which always take so well. He was accompanied by Dad Butte, who no doubt will execute the fat man's turn; or fulfill his duties as coroner and sit upon the whole works.

Have you smoked a clear Filipino cigar made from the finest selected tobacco which I captured on the Isle of Luzon? If not, you are behind the times, as I have only a few High-Life cigars left going at 15 cents apiece, 2 for 25 cents, or $2.50 for a box of 25. Remember that the High-Life cigar is made from the very best Filipino tobacco. Factory No. 105, next to Baldwin saloon on Union St. Ben Ulrich, Manf. 14 1wk

Again do we find ourselves indebted to our friend, O. D. Taylor, for the choicest box of grapes of the season, and as the CHRONICLE force devours them, we not only greatly appreciate the gift, but the idea that we are not entirely forgotten, and that the good old days when everybody remembered the newspaper office, have not entirely past. The young ladies, as well as the "boys" of the force will always remember the donor with the kindest of feelings.

Mrs. Otis Patterson came up from The Dalles to attend the funeral of Low Tillard and has remained since through the urgent request of her many friends, who are ever ready to extend her a welcome. During the many years as a resident of Heppner, Mrs. Patterson was one quickest to respond to the comfort of those who needed a helping hand and, in consequence, finds those familiar with her kind consideration of others appreciative and devoted friends.—Gazette.

Although the early rains promised to put the range into the finest condition for the fall feed, the late weather has been a disappointment, and stockmen report unfavorable grass conditions at the present time. The first rains started the grass growing, and all over the mountains, as well as on the lower levels, the feed was beginning to attain a good growth. But the later warm, dry weather put a stop to the growth and now the prospects are not the brightest for first-class feed for the sheep and cattle this fall.—Agriculturnalist.

Two victims were the result of yesterday's work in the police quarters. Ed Phillips was arrested by the marshal for drunkenness and put up $3 for his appearance this morning, but failed to arrive so the city is $3 better off. Last night Phirman found a discharged soldier who must have thought he was chasing Filipinos from the way he was whooping it up. He was landed in jail, when he claimed he had been doped. It was discovered from papers in his possession that he was dishonorably discharged at Vancouver, having been a member of the 39th Illinois regulars.

Chaplain W. S. Gilbert, of the Second regiment, Oregon volunteers, has accepted the call from the Calvary Presbyterian church in Portland, and ere long will doubtless be installed as successor to the late Dr. Morrison. Chaplain Gilbert served with the Second Oregon through the war in the Philippines, and was the idol of every man in the regiment. The Thirteenth Minnesota, with which the Second Oregon was so closely associated much of the time, took equally as much pride in him and claimed him as their own. By many it was said that Chaplain Gilbert was the only chaplain in the Philippines.

There are varied opinions regarding the performance of "Variety Fair" at the Vogt Saturday night. Some say it was decidedly meretricious, others that it was fairly good, and one man said it was the best thing of the kind that had been here for some time. Our reporter says he went to see a vaudeville show and that is what he saw without a doubt. It was just what it was represented to be, and anyone who read the bills knew what was coming. One thing certain the prices were not so exorbitant that one felt like kicking himself for going, even if it didn't come up to expectations.

While we regret to notice the departure tomorrow for California of Mr. Henry W. Bills, we take pleasure in giving expression to the great esteem in which he is held in the community in which he has spent his time from early childhood. Among the little fellows who were beginning to awaken concern for their tendency to hoodlumism, Henry was never found. Though early left an orphan, his terrible lack was abundantly supplied in the loving care of his sister, and the result was satisfactorily shown in the outcome of his young manhood. His connection with the firm of Maier & Benton has lasted for many years, and those who met him in business relations join with all of his old schoolmates and friends in believing that wherever he may be placed, the promise of his boyhood will be abundantly fulfilled in a noble manhood.

In spite of all the excitement over the famous Washington mines, Eastern Oregon gets in her work at the Spokane Exposition and captures first prize, the Sumpter exhibit taking the lead. And the display was the finest collection of ore ever exhibited in the Northwest—from Washington, Idaho, British Columbia and Oregon. There was ore from the Golconda, near Sumpter, which went $40,000 to the ton. Mr. Whealdon had some fine ore from the Spanish Gulch and Trout Creek mines and Mr. Hodson sent a fine specimen which he picked up at the Golden Eagle, where Mr. Cradlebaugh is manager. Beside Mr. W. had an exhibit of Gilliam county coal, which took first prize, a silver medal. He says this effort of Eastern Oregon has done any amount of good in her behalf, and that mining men are all turning their thoughts our way. While he was there the Copper Queen mine, near Baker City, was sold to Eastern capitalists by Spokane dealers. Having charge of a portion of the exhibit Mr. Whealdon was in a position to take notes, and he feels greatly gratified at results.

A DISAPPOINTED AUDIENCE.

Metropolitan Opera Company Treated The Dalles Shabbily.

The CHRONICLE has vowed time and again never to lend its personal sanction to any performance until we know whereof we speak, all previous notices going in as ads. But this time we have the satisfaction of knowing that we were not the only mistaken ones, and misery always "loves company." Every person who attended the performance of the Metropolitan Opera Company upon its former visit to our city, felt justified in recommending it to their friends, particularly so when their agent assured us that they carried the same company, comedians included, that they had before, only that the company had been augmented so that it numbered thirty-five. When everyone interested endeavored to persuade him that no show could be given in The Dalles which is worth more than 75 cents, he answered that he could not afford to play such a company for less than $1.

In view of all these promises a good house greeted them Saturday night at the Baldwin, and were illly prepared to find but twelve persons in the company and only one of the former cast, and costumes which were decidedly tawdry; and above all to have them play as if they were asleep or practicing, tittering during the entire performance. In the first place it was announced that fire at Pocatello had destroyed their costumes, and that twenty "artists" had been sent on to Portland, and the lenience of the audience was requested. And yet each one had paid $1 with the expectancy of getting at least 50 cents worth. If they were not in a condition to play, why, in justice to those who had lent their aid in securing an audience, and in fact to all concerned, did they not cancel their engagement.

The principal disappointment was that the comedians, who meant so much to the performance, were wanting. While the old farmer was a splendid character and his specialties were particularly appreciated, Prince Lorenzo did not compare with the character as taken before. His "drunk" solo was certainly acted well, although he is no singer. In fact there were but three singers in the cast—Will Rising, who is a splendid Peppo, although he was handicapped; the tavern keeper, who sings "A King of the Desert Am I," and the lady who took the part of the princess. "Rondeau" gives promise of making a good actor and has a sweet voice.

No one but their own managers are to blame that the company spoilt its reputation here by not cancelling its engagement, and the East Oregonian voices the sentiment of all when it says: "The Metropolitan Opera Company, which appeared in Pendleton last night, not only suffered the loss of their costumes in the Pocatello opera house fire, but they lost their voices as well. An opera company has little excuse for existence so long as it is short of costumes, voices, orchestra and chorus. "People buy tickets to an operatic performance. They are entitled to receive operatic performance according to just expectations. It will be profitable to the theatrical and operatic profession when these principles of just recompense are recognized, and the patronizing public may depend upon traveling companies always performing their promises.

"When a fire renders a company unable to do as they had promised, it would be according to business honesty to cancel engagements until properties have been replenished, and not go along the line giving performances justly estimated at about 25 per cent of what people had been made to look for."
