FILLING ALTO TRESTLE. O. I. & N. Are Making Improvements on

The celebrated Alto trestie is soon to be only a memory except in the history of railroading. In a few months nothing will be left to mark the place where the old structure stood, but its history will be fresh in the mind of many a trainman for years to come. It was here that a freight train went down in 1892, making one of the worst wrecks in the history of the O.R. & N. line. The wrecked caboose still lies at the bottom terrible catastrophe. The old trestle is placed or filled in, and the latter course line near this one are to be filled in as rapidly as men can be secured to do the

The great Alto trestle has been a matter of anxiety to trainmen ever since it was first used, as its location and monstrone size make it a dangerous place. To prevent wrecks and protect the heavy passenger traffic on the line, two watenmen have been employed to conscantly look after the structure. One man was required during the day and another at night during the spring, summer and fall of each year. Now that the old land mark is to go, the services of both the watchmen will be dispensed These trestles all cover small waterconrece, and provision has to be be made

Scrofula, a Vile Inheritance.

Scrofula is the most obstinate of blood troubles, and is often the result of an inherited taint in the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which goes deep enough to reach Scrofula; it forces out every trace of the disease, and cures the worst cases.

My son, Charlie, was afflicted from infancy with Scrofula, and he suffered so that it was impossible to dress him for three years. His head and body were a mass of sores, and his eyesight also became eyesight also became affected. No treatment was spared that we thought would reliave him, but he grew worse until his condition was indeed pittable. I had almost despaired of his ever being cured, when by the advice of a friend we gave him 8. 8. 8. (Swift's Specific). A decided improvement was the result, and after he had taken a dozen bottles, no one who knew of his former dreadful condition would have recognized him. All the sores on his body have healed, his skin is perfectly clear and smooth, and he has been restored to perfect health.

BIG STORE OF STATIONERY.

The Department of Justice Conducts a Wholesale Business in Writing Materials.

"The department of justice runs one of the biggest stationery concerns in the country," said a clerk of that de-partment. "We have to do that to supply the various officials of the department throughout the country. Not many years ago our stationery bureau was used solely for the benefit of this immediate department. Judges, clerks of courts, marshals and other officials throughout the country purchased their supplies from stores in their cities and towns and sent us the accounts to pay. By this method we paid the retail price for everything. We found this would not do, as the highest prices were makes requisition on us for supplies. and we send them at little cost, most of the time by mail. He rolls these between his fingers while he is busy, and never has less than half a dozen. He is not particular about the kind of pencil he has. Other officials have peculiar ink they want, and they will have no other. Thus, you see, we carry a more varied assortment of goods than a sta-tionery store."—Washington Star.

POPE FOR A DAY.

Leo's Successor Will Reign for Twenty-Four Hours, But Will Not Be Called Pope.

When Pope Leo XIII. dies his immediate successor will be Cardinal Luigi Oreglia, camarlingo of the Roman Catholic church. He will not be called pope, but according to the laws in force he will be acting pope until the new pope is elected.

The vatican regulations decree that the election of the new pope cannot take place until after the burial of the late pope, which takes place ten days after his decease. In many instances the election is not complete for weeks or months, so that the camarlingo may enjoy his papal power for a long time. Leo XIII. held the position of camarlingo when he himself was elected to the pontificate, but it does not seem possible that his camarlingo will succeed to the papal throne. It is the camarlingo who formally declares the pope dead after tapping his forehead three times with the silver hammer. He it is who breaks the seals and "ring of the fisherman," and then assumes the direction of the apostolic see until the new pope is chosen.

The camarlingo presides over the sacred conclave of the cardinals having the election in hand, and keeps the key of the place of meeting, so that none can enter or go out save with his consent. When the election is concluded he asks the new pontiff what name he intends to take. And after he has received the salutation of the assembled cardinals it is the cardinal-enmarlingo who places on his finger the "ring of the fisherman." He is, in fact, the Lake as a Weather Indicator. The weather-wise resident of Chicago has little need for a barometer or thermometer. When he gets up in the morning he gives a look out over the lake and knows at once without further trouble just what kind of a day to expect. If a fog or mist hangs over the water, he knows that the weather will be unpleasant. The atmosphere will be heavy and dead, and the odor of the stock yards and the river will probably be much in evidence. On the other hand, if the lake is clear the day is almost certain to be fine, with a refreshing breeze blowing and no trouble from unpleasant odors.-Chicago Trib-
