Testing the good character of the young man.

The committee which was out this morning soliciting funds with which to make a survey of the proposed railroad into the interior, report splendid success, and no doubt it will not be long ere surveyors are at work. If ever Dalles people did rally to support anything it should be now. If you are interested in the town, your actions in this matter will show it. It seems to have resolved itself into two distinct classes—for or against. You may not be able to give a large amount, but support it to the best of your ability.

Mr. P. Brenner, an extensive farmer of Eight Mile, was in the city the first of the week, and informed us that the grain in his section is "out of sight." A great deal of the volunteer is up 12 inches, and no doubt some of it will joint before freezing weather sets in. Instead of proving a detriment to the grain, Mr. Brenner thinks it will be a benefit to it, because it will prevent the snow from blowing over and freezing out the roots. Like all other farmers he is already rejoicing over next year's crop, which promises to be a stunner.—Heppner Times.

A teacher in a Boston suburban school received the following "eggscuse" from the mother of a boy who had failed to be present on a certain day: "Dear Teacher, Please eggscuse Andrew James for not having went to school yesterday. He started all right, but him and another boy stopped for a little swim in the river, and a dog came along and carried off Andrew James' pants and shirt and he had to stay in the water until the other boy come home and got more pants and shirts for him, and then it was too late. Under the circumstances you could not expect him to be there so kindly eggscuse.

Look out for your money, particularly the dollars, and if you have any you are in doubt about just bring them to this office and we'll relieve you of them. Joking aside, the counterfeit dollar question is assuming alarming proportions here, and complaints are heard daily concerning the number in circulation. It is thought they are manufactured in Mexico. A perfect rain of counterfeit nickels, ten cent pieces and 25-cent pieces is said to be flooding the city of Seattle, and occasionally a spurious gold coin also turns up. But the bogus silver is there in unlimited quantities. A gang of counterfeiters it is thought have made that place their headquarters. Up to this time the slot machines are said to be the chief losers.

The case of the State vs. Joseph Ganteman is occupying the attention of the court today and is being tried before a jury composed of A. W. Boorman, L. C. Hennegan, F. M. Jackson, J. O. Wingfield, C. V. Champlain, John Nolan, Geo. W. Jordan, Thos. A. Leabo, C. A. Cramer, Mike Glavey, D. L. Bolton and C. E. Hayward. Moore & Gavin appear for the defendant and A. A. Jayne for the plaintiff. The case is one in which Ganteman was indicted for uttering a forged check. It is purported that on May 6th in Charles Frank's saloon he tried to pass a forged check for $165 on the First National bank, signed by C. A. Morris. He was arrested at Sumpter. This morning testimony was taken and council for parties waived argument and as we go to press the case was submitted to the jury upon the instructions of the court. As this is the last case to be tried, court will probably adjourn today.

So many inquiries have been made regarding the improvements at the electric light works and so often have we been asked concerning the time which it will take to complete them, that we propounded several questions today by way of ascertaining information on that subject. The work will be finished about the first of the year, or perhaps not until February, when they will have a capacity for 1000 more lights, the old ones also receiving much benefit from the addition of power. Under the present conditions the engine is taxed far beyond what it should carry. The new engine which has been sent for is a 125 horse power engine. Beside a 60 K. W. dynamo, another boiler, new line shaft and other improvements will be put in. An addition is being made to the boiler room and a new coal bunker added. If the city were making arrangements to put in street lights what an advantage it would be to those who now walk in darkness.

An Important Difference.

To make it apparent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not afflicted with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs. NO SUCH WORD AS DIE

And Yet We Read Our Ordinary Sent Back From The Other Side—From The Branch Line.

We have heard of one or two instances in which persons on the verge of the grave have been permitted to read their own obituary, and had at least the satisfaction of knowing how many bouquets were placed on their bier and how much their friends would have appreciated them had they passed in their checks. But we confess this is the first time we have known of a case where the "corpse" was in perfectly good health, with no thought of turning up its toes, perusing a long death notice in its honor. However, such is the privilege of The Dalles at present, and through the columns of the Walla Walla Statesman are we privileged to read a biography of our former greatness under the caption of "A Doomed City."

If it had not been so long a time since that once lively berg had passed away, we should be led to believe it was but throwing at us the floral tributes in evidence at its own obsequies. We judge, however, they had none to spare, since Walla Walla could never claim one-half the prestige or advantages which The Dalles now possesses, and will possess less when the "branch" is made ready with which to whip it, for it will soon not even be on the main line. And yet in eloquent terms, and with tear-"bleared" eyes the editor of the Statesman comes forward and cries "Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears! I come not to praise The Dalles, but to bury it. Its glory has departed never to return, and in the future it will be known as a way station without business and with but a meagre population."

Ye gods! it doth amaze us how every small town in Eastern Oregon seems concerned regarding The Dalles and are eternally publishing notices of its funeral. Why bless you, the "corpse" ain't dead yet," and while we realize that "misery loves company" we cannot accommodate you. Moreover, we will just say that The Dalles will stride about like a huge Colossus, while many of the petty towns which are stabbing it will walk under its legs and peep about to find themselves dishonorable graves. A pretty lively corpse we must confess, when more business is today done in The Dalles than in three or four places of the calibre of those that are trying to bury it.

We acknowledge that, like Walla Walla, we do not control the trade that we possessed in the early days spoken of by that paper, when the vast territory now comprising the states of Idaho, Montana and a portion of Eastern Oregon made this a trading point; but what of the trade that once was Walla Walla's? What of the flour that was once shipped from there, let alone other staples? But then that place succumbed so long since that even its memory is blotted out.

We do not deny that we have left undone those things that we should have done, and that we have been threatened, but it's nothing but "chicken-pox;" it isn't even varicoid, and yet our people have already resorted to vaccination, and it's taking too. In a not far distant period will be seen the effects of this preventive in a railroad reaching into the interior which will be a monument erected not over the "doomed city," but as a guide to lead all to where the Mecca may be found. Even though such a move were not made, The Dalles would not be a dead city by any manner of means. From the very nature of things it could not be a corpse, and will never shake hands with Walla Walla on the other shore.

Therefore, while we stand gazing over the gulf which separates us and see the beckoning hands stretched forth, we must decline the honor, for in the bright lexicon of The Dalles there is no such word as "die."

Report of Grand Jury.

Following is the final report of the grand jury for the November, 1899, term of circuit court, filed November 16:

We, the grand jury, herein submit the following final report:

We have returned into court three true bills of indictment, and have examined some other matters which we have not deemed of sufficient importance to report. We have examined the county clerk's, sheriff's and treasurer's offices, and the books, records and papers therein, and find said offices well and correctly kept, so far as we are able to judge. We have also examined the county jail, and find the same in good condition. We have visited and examined the county poor farm and find the same well taken care of, and the inmates well satisfied with the treatment they received by the county court.

Hold-ups and robberies are becoming frequent all along the line. Last night the station at Biggs was entered and ransacked in great style, everything being turned topsy turvy. Luckily the agent, E. Lewis, had taken the money and everything of value home with him, so the burglar (or whoever the intruder was) got badly left.

And now not a soul is to be found who will acknowledge having seen a shooting meteor, for one of the most noted astronomers in the government service announced that the shower was predicted a year too soon, and will not occur until 1900. Oh, well, it don't matter, everybody had an excuse for sitting up all night and none would attempt to kick at the stars anyway.

Corporal Dumphoffer, the Vancouver young man who, with others, was sentenced to be shot on a charge of assaulting Filipino women, may escape the death penalty, but will no doubt be given a long imprisonment. Untiring efforts in his behalf have been exerted, and a large number of affidavits have been filed with the war department at the request of residents of Vancouver,
