overcoats, hats and umbrellas. The favorite hour for such thieves is about supper time, when families are busy with the evening meal. The sneak thief enters the front door, which is usually unlocked at that hour, and helps himself to everything in sight. Dalles people would do well to keep their doors latched at such times as a stray "hall worker" may venture this way.

We realize that if any honest person picked up a purse containing any sum of money, on the street, they would endeavor to find the owner by advertising or other means, and if they were not honest enough to do so, any amount of notices put in the papers with the object of recovering it would avail nothing. But for fear the finder of a purse which was lost last Saturday, has overlooked the "Lost" notice in our columns and forgotten they found the purse, we would call attention to it, hoping to aid the lady in finding the same.

The result of the preliminary hearing in the case of W. R. Brown, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, which came up in Justice Bayard's court yesterday afternoon, was that he was bound over in the sum of $2000 to appear before the next grand jury in February. It is not likely he will secure bonds. Those who ought to be able to judge seem to think his wife will appear against him. However, should she pursue the same course that many a woman has taken and fail to prosecute, there is no doubt evidence sufficient to make his position a most unenviable one before the jury.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Butler, in East Portland, this evening at 5 o'clock will take place the wedding of their second daughter, Miss Nellie Butler, to Dr. E. L. Niskern, of Michigan. The newly married couple will leave at once for Chicago, where they will remain until spring, and will make their future home in Muskegon, Mich. The best wishes of a host of friends of the bride in this city will follow her to her new home and THE CHRONICLE desires to be counted among those who wish for them a happy married life.

Jackson Engine Company never made a failure of anything and does not intend to this year; but on next Wednesday evening will only add to the splendid reputation which they already have for giving the most enjoyable balls of the season. They have engaged Birgfeld's orchestra, and intend to make everything pass off in tip-top shape. The purpose for which it is given (that of assisting in purchasing the fire department apparatus) is sufficient to assure them a large crowd, but when added to that is the further incentive of so good a time, the Vogt will hardly be large enough to accommodate the dancers.

James Blakeney returned home Monday evening from Portland and feels much elated over the fact that the doctors there told him he could dispense with their services now; that, so far as they can tell his leg will get along all right now. Mr. Blakeney has had a very serious time, and his leg is now an inch and a half shorter than it should be; but his friends are pleased to learn that he considers it on the way to permanent strength. While in Portland he met Geo. Beireis, who formerly was in his employ and well known here, and tells us he is recovering rapidly from the injury he received at the saw mill on the Sound, and is now able to leave the hospital and be about the hotel.

A happy little child was the 7-year-old daughter of Frank Davis, of Home Valley, who called at our office yesterday afternoon to show us her "new eye." From her appearance we could not tell but that her eyes were as good as anyone's, but her father explained to us that up to an hour before she had but one eye, her little brother having accidentally shot her eye out two years ago. They were just returning from Garretson's store, where he had fitted her with a glass eye. It is a difficult job, but was perfectly done. The little girl's eyes are a pretty blue, and very large, and it would be hard to tell one from the other now. When she first looked into the mirror she laughed with delight and said: "Oh, mamma won't know me now." She seems anxious to show it to everyone.

Last night Mr. I. D. Hewett, of Lyle, arrived in the city on the boat, bringing news of the sudden death of his brother's wife, Mrs. Herbert Hewett, who was formerly Miss Anna Gilliam, and made her home at The Dalles when a child. She had been ailing slightly for a time, but said she was much better yesterday morning, and prepared dinner. After eating his meal her husband did some chores and came back to the house a short time after 1 o'clock on an errand, when he found her, lying partially on the bed, dead. Everything was done to revive life, but in vain. Heart trouble was thought to be the cause. She was aged 25 years, and leaves four children, the oldest 12 and the youngest 3. She was a daughter of Mrs. Porter Gilliam and a sister of Mrs. O. W. Cook, of 3-Mile.

The former left this morning for Lyle, where the funeral will take place tomorrow.

Those who so arrange as to visit the seaside for a short time during the winter months can obtain an idea of the grandeur of the ocean never dreamed of by summer visitors. Particularly so this year, for the tides are unusually high, and many from Portland and Astoria have made the trip down during the past week to witness the wonderful sight. Among the visitors to Long beach is H. Glenn, who, with an uncle of Mrs. Glenn, has spent the past week in their cottage at Seaview. Writing home he says he reached there in time to see the highest tide, and that it came up so high that the logs and drift wood were carried up on to the high bench in front of his cottage, which is on the same avenue with the French and Lord cottages. When the waves strike the point, which is called the "rocks," the water is thrown hundreds of feet high, and Mr. Glenn says the grandeur of the sight beggars description. While it rains a little there now, most of the time the weather has been like spring. The day he wrote, however, the wind was blowing terribly; so hard that they could not make their way against it.

Change in Live Stock Rates.

Cattle shippers throughout the West will be interested in a change to become effective Dec. 1 in rates for shipment of livestock, says the St. Paul Globe. At present cattle, sheep, hogs and horses are shipped and charges made at dollars per car. The change which will be adopted by all the roads will result in the charges being cents per hundred. In discussing this matter a local freight official says:

"This change is, in fact, merely a technical matter and will be of no particular importance either to the railroads or to the shippers. It is a return to a condition of affairs which prevailed in former years. After long use the system of charging dollars per car does not meet with the same satisfaction as computing the shipments at so much per hundred.

"Under the existing order rates are quoted stock shippers according to the length of the cars. Each car is presumed to have a normal capacity, but sometimes in shipping this average is either raised or lowered, according to the grade of the cattle. Under the plan of charging cents per hundred the shipper pays only for that which he ships, and each and every car will have to be carefully weighed. In some instances the new rates will prove an advantage to the railroad over the old ones, in others the shipper will get the advantage. It will be about a 'standoff', and the cents per hundred rate will be adopted because it is more satisfactory to all parties concerned."

A Genuine Fish Story.

The Albany Democrat tells the following fish story which is a good one:

An Oregon young lady while in Europe met a lady who said: "I understand the salmon in your rivers there are so thick that it is impossible for the steamboats to get through them. Is that so?"

"Yes," remarked the young lady, "but the salmon have been trained until they climb on the banks and allow them to go by. The farmers have planted apple trees along the banks and the fish sit and eat the apples until the boats have passed."

"Well, well," ejaculated the credulous old lady.

The Democrat man heard this told by the mother of the young lady for a fact.

A. M. Williams & Co., have just opened another lot of overcoats, including some very nobby short tan covert coats for young men in sizes from 16 to 20 years. $7.50.

It may be the duty of the city officers to see that the cross walks are kept clean, but it wouldn't be a bad idea for property owners to assist a little by occasionally getting out their little shovels.

It is not an uncommon thing these dark nights to hear of persons slipping off of high sidewalks into the mud, or falling into some chuck hole. Isn't it delightful to be compelled to walk in darkness?

Ganteman, who was sentenced yesterday to a two years' term in the state penitentiary, is on his way to Salem,

W. H. Butts and A. A. Urquhart having left for that destination this morning with the prisoner in charge.

It will be good news to many ladies that they will not be compelled to bother about cooking pastry this Thanksgiving, for on Wednesday of next week the ladies of the Good Intent will be prepared to furnish them everything good in that line.

C. M. Grimes has been receiving droves of hogs from various sections for the past few days and will ship two carloads, or 187 head, to Troutdale tonight. They are now selling at a good price, and were more farmers to go into the hog-raising business, they would find it a profitable industry.

There is a certain pretty brown cassimere school suit in A. M. Williams & Co.'s show window today, marked $3, which up to the commencement of their big clearance sale sold at $4.50. Those who have bought of this particular lot know how good a suit it is and will readily appreciate their present low price.

While the crowd which attended the club last night was perhaps not so large as on former concert weeks, the music was, if possible, better than ever before, the selections being especially taking. Particularly pleasing was the number called the "Erin Waltzes." These concerts are greatly enjoyed and add much to the interest in the club.

The views shown by the Edison Wargraph Company last night at the Vogt were mostly descriptive of the late war and in connection therewith. Some of them were very realistic, particularly those thrown on by the animatroscope. Among them were views in Alaska, and many were of the opinion that the view along the Yukon resembled our own Columbia river scenery. A good-sized audience was present, and the small boys assisted greatly in the applause.

A letter received this morning by Will Crossen from Percy H. Levin, who, with the local talent of our city, gave "A Summer's Fancy" at the Vogt last spring, tells that he is in South Bend and on the 29th is to assist the local talent there to put on a play called "The Henrietta." This is Mr. Levin's third visit to that city. He reports splendid success at every place he has visited. It is his desire to again visit The Dalles after the first of the year, when a military play would probably be put on.

What are termed "hall workers" are plying their trade in Portland at present and entering hallways, stealing whatever may be found therein, such as
