WHY ENGLAND WENT TO WAR

John Hays Hammond, the American engineer, who became so prominent during the Jameson raid in the Transvaal, is in New York and in speaking of the war in South Africa gives a comprehensive idea of the grievances which led up to it, as follows:

"There can be no doubt that European sympathy is with the Boers. It is not so much for the reason that they love the Boers as that they dislike the English. It is likewise true that the animosity toward England has been intensified by her friendship for us during the Spanish war. In America there are many who, under a misconception, also sympathize with the Boers in their struggle for the independence of their so-called little republic. But is the cause of the Boers deserving of sympathy from the American point of view? A few plain facts will enable you to judge. The question is often asked, and quite pertinently, why the Uitlanders went to the Transvaal if the laws were unsatisfactory. The answer is that they were invited to go by the Boer government, and notably by Mr. Kruger himself, and that when they immigrated the existing laws were favorable to the Uitlanders. It was only after their capital and labors had rescued the Transvaal from imminent bankruptcy that the liberal laws were superseded by the present adverse laws. In the meanwhile, millions of foreign capital had been invested in the purchase of Boer farms, at that time of little or unknown value.

"The status of the Uitlanders today is this: They own one-half of the land, and nine-tenths of the property of the country. They greatly outnumber the Boers, but, nevertheless, are debarred from obtaining the franchise. The franchise law, as it now stands, requires the applicant for the franchise in advance to renounce allegiance to all other countries, after which he is under a term of probation of fourteen years, during which time he is liable to military service in case of war; at the end of fourteen years he may obtain the franchise, provided he obtains in writing the consent of a majority of the Boers in the ward in which he resides, and provided, moreover, that the Boer president and executive council do not object.

"The Uitlanders pay nine tenths of all the taxes, and have absolutely no voice in the expenditure of the money, and must submit to the most flagrant misappropriation of the bulk of the government revenues, which is extracted from them by a most ingenious system of class taxation.

"The laws to which the Uitlanders especially object are, first, that depriving the high court of the country of the right to test the validity of parliamentary legislation. Indeed, laws pronounced by the high court to be at variance with the constitution of the country have been enforced by the president and executive council. In some instances laws of a retroactive nature have been passed and enforced.

"Second, the empowering of the president to remove judges without trial. The chief justice of the Transvaal was removed by President Kruger on account of a decision against the dictates of the president.

"Third, the power given to the president and executive council to banish any Uitlander and to confiscate his property for political offense without trial.

"Fourth, the right of a Transvaal policeman to suppress a public meeting, when, in his judgment, the language used is in criticism of the Transvaal government.

"Fifth, the law denying what is regarded in a true republic as the true bulwark of its liberties, the right of trial by one's peers. In the Transvaal the Boer alone can sit on the jury. The court records show that under these conditions very few Boers are convicted, while on the contrary very few Uitlanders are acquitted. The Uitlanders have many more grievances attributable to a corrupt administration."

Mr. Hammond stated that the Americans in South Africa are all in sympathy with the English. Mr. Hammond is on his way to Mexico. He hopes shortly to return to the United States.

In perusing various papers throughout the state we note the interest being taken in the work of the Native Daughters and in instituting cabins throughout the state. Mrs. Edith Weathered, who is grand secretary and also state organizer, will be in The Dalles during the early part of next week and would be glad to meet any native daughters who are desirous of having a cabin instituted here and upon her return in the first week in December would complete the work of organization. It would be well for our ladies to consider the matter and join in the efforts made by this order to build up and develop the land of their birth and adoption.
