DECISIVE WORK IN LUZON.

In securing the only railroad in the island of Luzon, and the only one in the entire Philippine group, our army gains a permanent advantage that may be called conclusive. This railroad runs due north from Manila to Dagupan, a distance of 130 miles, in the central latitudes of the island and through a thickly settled, productive valley region. It is the main inland artery of Manila and gives us control of the last of the main communications of the city. The occupation of Dagupan means the possession of another leading seaport and railway terminus. Fortunately, the railroad has not been seriously damaged. The larger stations will be garrisoned, strong stockades built to protect bridges and troops stationed at strategic points east and west. It will soon be beyond the power of guerrilla parties to materially interfere with this line. They will find the bridges guarded, trains will run with an armed escort, and tearing up a few rails is a damage so easily repaired that it is not worth the risk and labor.

The possession of the railroad enables us to re-enforce any point along its route in a few hours and to send out converging detachments at a moment's notice. Nothing is left for the enemy but to march on foot, and they have no transportation except buffalo carts. A few hundreds or thousands may collect again at some rendezvous, but the chief purpose will be to prey on the inhabitants. The time has passed to dispute seriously the sovereignty of the United States. Nearly 10,000 more troops are on the ocean bound for Manila. All the islands will receive attention during the dry season now at hand. The Tagal failure will go far to quiet them. Aguinaldo recently advised the insurgents in Panay to break up into bands of forty and carry on a guerilla war. The same policy may be adopted in Luzon. But guerilla operations without horses are not apt to last long. We have seasoned cavalry trained to fight Indians, mounted on fast and tough ponies. The Tagals, like most of the tribes of the far East, are without horses. Guerrillas prowling about on foot and opposed by cavalry are soon wiped out. A few lessons will dispose of the bands of forty. Their style of hostilities is merely bushwhacking, not serious war.

Several recent dispatches have mentioned the fact that our troops are welcomed as they advance, and that the natives have not thought it worth while to run away from their homes. This marks a significant change in the disposition of the people. It is clear that they are tired of the insurgent army and anxious to settle down to business. Luzon is a center of fairly profitable industries. Its abundant hemp is especially in demand and at the highest figures known. The insurrection has gone to pieces and probably not one person in fifty in Luzon is in favor of further warfare. High praise is due to every brigade of the army engaged in this advance. It was begun with the idea that the heavy rains were over and to take up position for the final campaign. But the movement once started went steadily on in spite of a flooded country. It is an example of splendid energy and devotion as well as of decisive results.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm Cures Others. Why Not You?

My wife has been using Chamberlain's Pain Balm, with good results, for a lame shoulder that has pained her continually for nine years. We have tried all kinds of medicines and doctors without receiving any benefit from any of them. One day we saw an advertisement of this medicine and thought of trying it, which we did with the best of satisfaction. She has used only one bottle and her shoulder is almost well. — ADOLPH L. MILLETT, Manchester, N.H. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

Used By British Soldiers in Africa.

Capt. C. G. Dennison is well known all over Africa as commander of the forces that captured the famous rebel Gailishe. Under date of Nov. 4, 1897, from Vryburg, Bechuanaland, he writes: "Before starting on the last campaign I bought a quantity of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used myself when troubled with bowel complaint, and had given to my men, and in every case it proved most beneficial." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

It will not be a surprise to any who are at all familiar with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, to know that people everywhere take pleasure in relating their experience in the use of that splendid medicine and in telling of the benefit they have received from it, of bad colds it has cured, of threatened attacks of pneumonia it has averted and of the children it has saved from attacks of croup and whooping cough. It is a grand, good medicine. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.
