TRAIN WRECKED LAST NIGHT

ROBERT HUNTER AND L. D. MILER MEET THEIR DEATH.

Passenger Train No. 2 East-Bound, Runs Into a Slide Near Rooster Rock—Unknown Man Badly Injured.

The dreaded word "wreck" has been on every tongue during the entire day and all were anxious to hear the truth concerning the awful accident which last night at 9:30 overtook passenger train No. 2 east bound, which arrives here at 11:45 p. m. This, however, has been a difficult matter, for so varied and conflicting are the reports, fairly puzzling one to decide which to credit. As nearly as we can determine the facts are as follows:

When the train reached a place between Rooster Rock and tunnel No. 1, it ran into a bad rock slide, caused by the wet condition of the mountains along the track. The engine, blind baggage and express car were derailed, thrown nearly into the river, and piled up in a heap. The passenger cars remained on the track and as far as we can learn not a passenger was injured. However, an unknown man, probably a tramp, was badly injured and taken to the hospital in Portland later.

The terrible part of the affair is that two of the best men on the road lost their lives—Engineer Hunter and Fireman Miller. The latter was crushed beneath the engine and killed instantly, while Hunter when taken from the cab was just alive, but died shortly after. Assistance was summoned from Portland, but the unfortunate men were beyond all human aid. The passengers will be brought to this city this afternoon, arriving about 4 o'clock.

The news of the accident came with renewed terror, causing as it did the terrible death of one of the oldest and perhaps most popular men on the road; one who had hosts of friends all along the line—Robert Hunter. Everyone knew him; everyone liked him, and he was one to whom all the trainmen carried all their difficulties. He commenced work for the company in July, 1881, and has steadily gained in favor, being trusted explicitly by his employees. He was about 50 years of age. Mr. Hunter's first wife was Miss Dell Read, formerly of this city. To them were born two children, one a girl, who is now 11 years old and is an invalid; another a boy, 9 years old. Mrs. Hunter died several years since, and about six months ago he married Miss Fenton, of Grand Dalles, who with his children, now live at Albina. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. No one on the road could have been more missed than he.

L. D. Miler, the fireman, who has also been employed by the O. R. & N. for several years, is a man of about 33 years. He was formerly a resident of The Dalles, and married a young lady at Fairview. They have made their home at Albina for some time, where the wife and two little ones received the awful news of his death. He was a quiet, unassuming man of splendid character and well liked by not only his fellow workmen, but his associates along the line. He was a member of the Woodmen lodge in this city and we also understand of the Locomotive Firemen. He is a nephew of John Miller, of Mosier. Of his immediate family we have not learned.

Thus another fatal accident is added to the long list which has removed some of the best men of the land from our midst. It would seem that there was a scarcity of track walkers in that vicinity for this time of the year, and yet in spite of the strictest vigilance such accidents cannot apparently be prevented, nor on one receive blame therefor.

Oh, the Pain of Rheumatism!

Rheumatism often causes the most intense suffering. Many have for years vainly sought relief from this disabling disease, and are to-day worse off than ever. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and Swift's Specific is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated diseases.

A few years ago I was taken with inflammatory Rheumatism, which became so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. I tried several prominent physicians and took their treatment faithfully, but was unable to get the slightest relief. In fact, my condition seemed to grow worse, the disease spread over my entire body, and from November to March I suffered agony. I tried many patent medicines, but none relieved me. Upon the advice of a friend I decided to try

S. S. S. Before allowing me to take it, however, my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of poison of mercury. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was cured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of Rheumatism though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

COUSIN GEORGE'S DECISION.

He Thought His New Found Relatives Were a Very Shoddy Lot.

"Now, my dear, I want you to be very kind to your cousin George when he comes," said the girl's mother, according to the Detroit Free Press.

"Oh, mamma! I simply can't tote him all over town, and I don't think you ought to expect me to."

"But you must entertain him nicely while he's here. He probably will not stay long."

"How do you know? We've never seen him—we don't know anything about him. Dear me! I think it's horrible! I don't see what he's coming for. Just suppose he's dreadfully awkward and doesn't know how to act! Why, it would be too embarrassing for anything! And the girls have been studying genealogy at the library for the last two weeks, and they're awfully critical about one's relations."

The next afternoon a coupe drove to the door and a young man alighted. It was George. He was an athletic young fellow, who, though he hailed from a small western town, had been educated abroad, and was as fine a specimen of manhood as could be found. Marguerite was delighted. The relief was great. She gushed profusely over her new-found cousin and offered him all sorts of social inducements to spend a week. But he left the next afternoon.

"What was the matter—why didn't you stay longer with your Uncle Henry's family?" said his father, after he had reached home. "Didn't you like them?"

"No. They were the shoddiest lot of people I ever ran across."

Costly Fare for Ostriches.

There was a happening at the ostrich farm recently which disproves the theory that the ostrich is satisfied with eating nails, barbed wire and the like. A man who had visited the farm the day before discovered that his gold watch was missing. Thinking that he might have lost it at the farm, he returned to look for it. When he arrived he enlisted the services of a youth and started in quest, without entertaining much hope of finding the watch. About the first thing noticed by the youth was an ostrich tossing something in the air. It was the watch, and would have been swallowed if it had been a glass-faced watch. It happened that both sides were opened and lodged in the beak. The next day the valuation of one of the birds was enhanced $50. It swallowed a diamond from the setting of a woman visitor, who inadvertently sought to console the bird by caressing its forehead.—Arizona Republican.
