CROSSED THE LAST RIVER.

Captain Orin S. Waud Died at Dawson City on the 16th.

Somehow The Dalles has been particularly unfortunate in the past year or two in the number of sad and startling deaths and accidents which have occurred. No sooner do we begin to recover from one thing than another takes place equally as deplorable. And so Wednesday evening when all were preparing to enjoy the Thanksgiving holiday, about 6 o'clock the news began to be told throughout the city that Mrs. O. S. Waud had just received a telegram announcing the death of her husband, Captain Waud, at Dawson, at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of the 16th. Everyone was shocked, for when the captain left here in the spring he was the picture of health and no one knew he had been ill at all. Indeed, the last letter his wife received, written on the 14th of October, gave no word of ill health; and the telegram stated the mere fact of his death.

The feelings of Mrs. Waud and her three children may be imagined, and comes to one of her nervous temperament doubly hard. Friends have done everything possible in the endeavor to assuage her grief, but she is inconsolable and though she tries very hard to be reconciled, it is well nigh impossible. When his son returned from Dawson a few months since, the captain went on to El Dorado, a new mining section about forty miles from Dawson, but must have been at Dawson at the time of his death.

Orin S. Waud was born on the Waud Donation Claim, near Portland, March 22, 1854, and spent most of his life in the Valley. He was married to Nellie Murphy at Astoria in December, 1878. To them were born five children, two of them being laid to rest in Lone Fir cemetery in Portland, while the other three—Fred, aged 17, Hazel 13, and Arthur 10, are with their mother here. He also leaves three sisters, his two brothers having drowned, one in the Columbia and the other at Alaska.

He was a member of the Elks in this city, and the Workmen and K. of P. in Portland, and thus our local lodge of Elks have a name added to the list whose memory they honor Sunday.

Captain Waud was one of the best known steamboat men in Oregon, and not alone in Oregon, but on the waters of other states has been made himself famous by his master hand at the helm. He began steamboating in the early '70s and took charge of the Otter in 1877. At different times he was master of the Westport, Maria Wilkins, Clatsop Chief, Governor Newall, Lincoln, Manzanillo and others. In December, 1894 he took charge of the Regulator and brought his family to The Dalles. He remained in the employ of the D. P. & A. N. Co. until April of 1898, when he left for Alaskan waters, where he ran between Lake Bennett and White Horse.

He will not only be missed as none but by such a splendid captain could be, but by hosts of friends everywhere, whose lifelong friendship he had won by his happy disposition and kind manner.

As soon as possible Mrs. Waud will make arrangements to have the body brought to Portland. The first steamer out, however, is that which sails from Seattle on the 6th.

HOW THANKSGIVING PASSED.

A Quiet Day, Closing With Union Services at the Methodist Church.

Thanksgiving Day in The Dalles passed off so quietly that it seemed a veritable Sabbath to most of the residents. At least after 10 o'clock in the morning, for many of our stores were kept open until that hour. Feeling that it had done its duty, and given us sufficient reason to be thankful, the rain did not make itself very prominent until toward evening, although it showered a little. The day was conspicuous chiefly for the number of family gatherings, which make it next to Christmas, the happiest day in the year. In the afternoon many took in the football game at the fair ground, while others watched or took part in the turkey shoot on the beach.

Contrary to what is usually the custom, nothing in the nature of amusements was announced for the evening. This may have accounted for the especially large audience which attended the union services at the Methodist church. However, let us give our people credit and conclude that they are beginning to see Thanksgiving in its true light and have decided to henceforth make that service the best of the year. The large church was taxed to almost its fullest capacity, barring the gallery—audience room, lecture hall and class room being filled with some of the best people of our city.

The pastors of the Baptist, Christian, Congregational and Methodist churches occupied the pulpit and took part in the service, Rev. Hawk acting as master of ceremonies.

The service opened with a voluntary, followed by the doxology. Rev. W. B.

Clifton offered prayer, after which the audience joined with the choir in the hymn, "Come Ye Thankful People, Come." The scripture lessons were read by Rev. D. V. Poling, and a male quartet, composed of Prof. Landers, W. C. Allaway, Francis Sexton and Prof. Lundell, rendered a beautiful selection. An offering being taken for the poor of our city was generously contributed to. The union choir then sang the anthem "Blessed is He That Considereth the Poor." Another hymn, "Oh, Worship the King, All Glorious Above" preceded the sermon.

Rev. Gentry Rushing, of the Christian church, who was chosen to deliver the sermon, took his text from Malachie iii:12, "And all nations shall call you blessed, for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of hosts." Suiting the scriptures to modern times, he enlarged upon the blessings for which our own land should be truly thankful—for the gospel; for the plenteousness of the land; for her churches, societies, schools and spoke at length on the Christian mothers of America. Not alone did the speaker dwell upon the blessings, but pointed out many things in which we are amiss, urging upon his hearers the importance of remedying these evils before another Thanksgiving rolls around, and praying that the same day in 1900 would find many of them wiped out. Mr. Rushing is possessed of a good delivery, speaking so that not one in the large audience missed a thought.

At the close everyone sang "America" with more vim than we have heard it sung in The Dalles for some time. Rev. Poling closed the service with prayer.

Our people will need few reminders of Chaplain Gilbert's lecture next Tuesday evening. All are too anxious to listen to the famous chaplain of the Second Oregon.

The High school Tigers were "in it" yesterday afternoon, and made the Giants lose some stature by beating them 5 to 0 in a game of foot-ball at the fair grounds.

Beginning today the Spokane Flyer, No. 4, which heretofore has reached The Dalles at 5:30 in the afternoon, will leave Portland at 3:45 and arrive here at 7:05 p. m. No. 3, west-bound, which has been arriving here about 5 o'clock a. m., will reach here at 4:25 in the morning. This change will make little difference to Dalles residents.

Pigeon and turkey shoots may be all right; indeed the greater number of people seem to think they are. But, at the risk of being considered cranky, the CHRONICLE asks what is the use of organizing societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals and to teach the children to be kind to dumb animals, when, for the sake of a little amusement, the men of a community will pass the afternoon in shooting defenseless little pigeons? Doesn't it look a little bit small?

The double funeral of Engineer Hunter and Fireman Miller, which took place at Upper Albina Wednesday afternoon, was very largely attended. Many railroad people were present from The Dalles, who inform us that the service was deeply impressive, Bishop Morris and Rev. Mr. Simpson, of the Episcopal church, conducting them. So numerous were the floral offerings that two light wagons were required to convey them to Lone Fir cemetery, where the remains of the deceased were laid to rest.

A fire in Portland yesterday morning damaged business houses in the Blumauer block to the extent of $23,000. Starting in the basement of Sweetland & Son's confectionery store, the damage to goods, etc., was $5000; the Blumauer Drug Co. lost $8000 by smoke; Prager & Son, who keep a clothing store, also lost $3000, and several other firms were injured in a considerable sum.

The bowlers are preparing to roll 'em high this winter, and an inter-club tournament is being arranged for the season. Beside our own team, the Astorias, Salems and Y. M. C. A., of Portland, will take part. In response to an inquiry as to what date the Dalles team would choose for the first roll, they named Jan. 10th, with the understanding that the games would all be played during the trip, beginning at Salem or Astoria. Each will visit The Dalles later and meet their Waterloo on our alleys.

This morning Zachary Taylor, of Antelope passed through The Dalles on his way from Spokane to the Valley, where he was taking the body of his son for burial. About a year ago the young man, who was 21 years of age, was taken from Antelope to Spokane to receive treatment for consumption under Dr. Sutherland. The doctor gave them no hope, seeing he was too far gone, but the parents were anxious to do all they could and kept him there. We could learn no particulars as to his death or burial, other than that the latter will take place in the Valley.

A special telegram from Washington says: "If plans decided upon by Republican leaders of the senate today are carried out, former Representative Ellis, of Morrow county, Oregon, is certain to be the next sergeant-at-arms. The Oregonian has the support of all West coast members, many votes in the middle West and enough in the East it is thought to insure his success when the Republicans meet in congress to reorganize the practical working force of the senate. It is generally considered that the Pacific coast states should have this office in the next congress, and as Oregon presents the only candidate for this place from the Pacific coast section, it is practically conceded that Ellis will capture the prize."

While not nearly so large a crowd as was expected, and as should have attended, was present at the firemen's ball Wednesday night, there was just the right number to make dancing comfortable and enjoyable. Everything was in the right condition for real pleasure—the music, the floor, and the hearty welcome which Jackson Engine Company always gives its guests, being conducive to a happy time. While the attendance was not overly large, our citizens were all in sympathy with the purpose for which the ball was given and many who could not attend purchased tickets, so that the loyal fire boys will be enabled to hand over — to be used in procuring better apparatus for our fire system.

For the Boys' and Girls' Aid.

Through the zeal displayed by County Superintendent Gilbert and City Superintendent Landers, the pupils of our city schools were led to take an enthusiastic interest in the Thanksgiving contributions for the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society, and 'twas plain to be seen every little boy and girl was made happier by the thought that they had given something for the relief of the boys and girls under the charge of this noble institution. Judge Blakeley kindly offered to pack the contributions and his hands were full for a time. When all was done ten good-sized boxes and two or three gunny sacks were filled with clothing, all kinds of vegetables and fruit, toys, and indeed everything suitable, besides $30.50 in cash.

As received from the various rooms the cash offerings were as follows:

East Hill primary	$2 60
Miss Douthitt's room	60
Miss Ella Cooper's	60
Miss Martin's	1 25
Miss Wrenn's	4 85
Miss Phirman's	25
