PEASE & MAYS.

by the pastor on the subject, "Our Honored Girls," for the speaker paid a tribute to them well worth hearing, congratulating them on the fact that whereas but a few years ago there were not a score of places in the business world open to them, now there are said to be 5000. He also spoke of the special gifts which had been given to them and to what a great blessing they might be used. While there are so many places open to them outside of the home, it is very essential that in the place for which they are best suited by nature, they should be most efficient. His sermon next Sunday evening will be on "The Uncompromising Young Man." The choir rendered a very pretty anthem, "Jesus My Shepherd Is" and at the close of the sermon Mrs. G. T. Parr sang Calvary. The lady has a very sweet soprano voice and sang with good expression.

For many years the condition of the city cemetery has been a disgrace to The Dalles, and frequently the attention of its residents has been called to that fact by the newspapers, but nothing has been done toward improving it and it still remains the same neglected place, although situated in one of the most beautiful sites which could be imagined. While this can go on without causing any particular disturbance, there is a matter which must be attended to at once, or we must find some other means of disposing of the city's dead than burying them. The ground now inclosed is well nigh filled with graves and right soon there will not be space left where a body can be laid. While there are a few lots, in most of them it is impossible to excavate on account of the rocky soil. The city must do something in regard to this matter, and that quickly. We understand two acres joining the cemetery on the south can be purchased for $20 an acre. This is very reasonable, and the city could make no better move than to buy this ground, extend the fence and thus give to those who are so unfortunate as not to be able to pay $25 for a lot or even $15 for a half lot, a respectable place in which to bury their dead.

A large audience was present at the Congregational church last evening, prominent among whom were the Elks, who, as a body, attend services once a year. The order was well represented, and listened intently as Rev. D. V. Puling spoke of "The mysteries which lie concealed in the shadow of Castle Garden," dealing in a large measure with the influences—good and bad—which result from the migration of foreigners to our shores. His ideas of the subject were good and clearly defined. One especially good point was that in which he suggested that, whereas every foreigner who comes to our shores is entitled to vote whether he has received the education compulsory in America or not, schools should be established at every port where he could receive the necessary instructions in political economy, etc., and as a result vote understandingly. In closing he spoke of the benefit which America had received from each nationality, giving to her that which enables all to proudly sing "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and at the close of the sermon the audience sang it with a vim. The music of the evening was especially good. The two anthems by the choir, particularly the one entitled "How Good is He the Giver" being excellent. The male quartet also gave two pleasing selections.

Club Members, Attention.

Members of the D. C. & A. C. are reminded of the annual business meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, sharp, at the club.

Rests From His Suffering.

Despite the stormy weather this afternoon, the Methodist church was well filled with brothers and friends who desired to pay respect to the memory of Chas. B. Johnson. The Masons attended in a body, and took charge of the services at the grave, where they interred the remains of their friend beneath a bank of beautiful flowers.

At the church the choir sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "Thy Will Be Done", and Rev. U. F. Hawk spoke for a short time on the life of the deceased and the hope which he and those he leaves behind have of immortality. Being a personal friend of Mr. Johnson, he spoke with much feeling. Brother Masons Alloway, Darnielle, Falk, Fisher, Marden and Fordyce acted as pall bearers.

Killed Below Cascades Friday.

Following is the verdict brought by the jury impaneled to inquire into the cause of the death of the young man who was run over by the train about a half mile below Cascades Friday night and literally cut in two:

CASCADE LOCKS, Or., Dec. 2, 1899.

We the jury, empaneled by W. H. Butts, coroner of Wasco county, Or., to inquire into the death of the body now before us, find that the name of the deceased was John Conaway, age about 24 years, that he came to his death on or about the hour of 8 o'clock, p. m. on the 1st day of December, 1899, at Cascade Locks, by being run over by a railroad train while attempting to steal a ride thereon.

Tribute to Chaplain Gilbert.

The Dalles, Or., Dec. 4, '99.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Now that Chaplain Gilbert, the pride of the Second Oregon regiment, is going to lecture at the M. E. church Tuesday evening, and give everyone a chance to hear for themselves a good, true account of our doings in the Philippines, I think, for one, the Second Oregon boys in The Dalles should honor the chaplain by wearing Khaki suits, and turning out en masse to hear him.

His many kind acts can never be forgotten, and the times he filled our cautions in the field, when it was impossible for us to fall out of ranks, the many times he bought our postage stamps and writing material to pen a word home to anxious folks, the times he even went down in his own pocket and lent money to needy soldiers are still fresh in every soldier's mind. Chaplain Gilbert is a good speaker, is one of the best of men and can not be too highly eulogized.

CLARENCE BLACK,

the defendant moved for a new trial and the court after taking the matter under advisement denied the motion.

The Telegram aptly says: "The mines of Eastern Oregon are worth ten times more than all those of Alaska and the Yukon valley, so far as heard from reliably."

There are some days when it seems that our items are mostly of a mournful nature and try as we will we can find nothing which will serve to dispense the gloom which gathers over all on those days which "must be dark and dreary."

A. M. Williams' store was closed this afternoon from 1 until 4 p. m. in order to allow the employees to attend the funeral of Chas. Johnson, he having been an employe at the time he was taken ill.

The attendance at the Saturday night dancing parties still increases, and last week there was a very large crowd present, and dancing was greatly enjoyed. It is a splendid place to spend the evening.

Look out for rose bushes and tender plants these nights, for Jack Frost is getting in his work. Friday the first killing frost occurred. The experience of last year, when our rose bushes were so badly damaged, should teach us a lesson this year.

Members of the Second Oregon Volunteers will act as ushers at Chaplain Gilbert's lecture tomorrow night. Even if all were not so anxious to hear the brave chaplain speak, it would be but a deserved compliment for him to be greeted by a large audience. Read in another column what an ex-volunteer says of him.

Blessed are they who scorn to borrow their neighbor's paper, says an exchange, but come to the sanctum and laying down the price of a year's subscription on the desk, say: "Put me down on your list; I like your paper very much." Yee, verily, they are happier, their family is happier, and such as they are entitled to a front seat next to the band.

In answer to a telegram sent by Mrs. Waud to the Bennett Lake and Klondyke Navigation Company, of Victoria, by whom Capt. Waud had been employed, desiring information concerning his death, a letter was received this morning, informing her that they had heard nothing of any sickness nor of his death. It is probable word had not reached them, as the telegram which came to her was signed by an intimate friend of the family, who is now at Dawson.

It is with pleasure we are able to announce the discovery of another very promising mining camp in this country. It is situated on the northern slope of Lookout mountain about thirty-five miles east of here. Mr. F. S. Cram, Perry Cram and Mr. Sidley, the discoverers, after careful investigation are satisfied that they have some good claims and were in town Monday purchasing supplies and tools. They propose to run a 150-foot tunnel to open the various ledges cropping out on the surface. The ore is in a porphyry formation carrying iron oxides and assays from $10 to $25 in gold and from a trace to $2 in silver. Samples of the ore submitted to reliable mineralogists are pronounced by them very favorable to continued richness and extent.—Crook County Journal.

When the news of Captain Waud's death reached here, his little daughter, Hazel, was visiting at Cook's Landing, down the river, and as soon as possible word was sent to her and she returned home on the boat Saturday night. Hazel was a great favorite of the captain's and the news of his death was very hard for her to bear.

Winter is somewhat backward this year, but it will get here just the same, as the few flakes of snow today remind us. Last year the first fall of snow, which was light, occurred on Nov. 10th, and on the 19th the mountains were covered. During the last of December quite a little snow fell. On December 10th the Inland Flyer did not succeed in returning to the city, the river being blocked, and remaining so until the 22d.

At the home of President Gatch, on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, Miss Claire Gatch and Lieben H. Wheeler were married by Dr. Thompson. It was a quiet home wedding, there being none present except the family of President Gatch, the groom and Dr. Thompson. The bride is the esteemed daughter of President and Mrs. Gatch, the groom is a prominent attorney of Seattle. After the ceremony and dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler departed for their future home in Seattle, Wash.—Corvallis Gazette.

The young ladies who attended the Methodist church last evening were especially favored in listening to a sermon
