WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

The facts are, prices are selling our big line of holiday goods for us. Jacobeen Book & Music Co.

The public schools of our city will close for the holidays on Friday of this week, and reopen on Tuesday, the 2nd.

The funeral of Jonathan Jackson, who was found dead near Celilo Tuesday, will take place from Mitchell's undertaking parlors tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

In mentioning the Christmas exercises which will be held in The Dalles, we failed to include the tree which will be given the children of the Lutheran Sunday school Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

Winter finds what summer conceals—a larger line of holiday goods than ever at the Jacobeen Book & Music Co.

Sheriff Gray, of Crook county, arrived in the city last night, accompanied by B. T. Keemler, conveying Robt. Neil, a demented person, to the asylum at Salem. They proceeded on the train this morning.

The Oregon King mine, in the Trout Creek district, is liable to prove a veritable bonanza for its owners. The latest assays show great quantities of gold and copper. The ore is said to resemble that of the famous Anaconda mines, and is reported to be very rich in peacock copper.—Moro Leader.

A letter received by Miss Hill from friends in Eugene, informs her that the Glee Club expect to reach The Dalles on the 7:05 train Thursday evening; so that it has been necessary for the alumni to make arrangements for the reception following the concert. Nothing definite has been decided as to the place for holding the same.

The bowling team composed of Bradshaw, Kurtz and Baldwin are now wearing the pins; but that is not all, they succeeded in eating the oysters as well last night, while Houghton, Mays and Schmidt sat at the table and watched them go by. They concluded it was well termed a three-cornered tournament, since they had been successfully cornered three times in succession.

The friends of Fred Young who saw him start out for home in such good spirits this morning were somewhat surprised to greet him at the Umatilla House about noon. When asked, however, as to why he so suddenly changed his mind after getting quite a way on his journey toward Ridgeway, Fred only smiled, and no particulars of the break down could be learned from him.

Dalles Royal Arch Chapter, No. 6, elected the following officers last evening: R. F. Gibbons, H. P.; C. C. Hobart, K.; D. Siddall, S.; Geo. C. Blakeley, C. of H.; A. Larsen, P. S.; J. M. Marden, R. A. C.; E. C. Phirman, G. M. 3d Vell; W. E. Garretson, G. M.

2nd Vell; C. W. Deitzel, G. M. 1st Vell; H. Logan, Sec'y; G. A. Liebe, Treas.; W. S. Myers, Sentinel.

Following Sunday as Christmas does this year, makes the question of packages sent and received through the mail a complicated one, and many will be compelled to wait until Tuesday for gifts from abroad. Postmaster Riddell, however, informs us that the general delivery and register window will be open from 10 to 11 o'clock on that day, so that at least a portion of the people may be waited upon.

Among the visitors to our table this morning we found a new acquaintance from the eastern state line, called the Enterprise Bulletin and published at Enterprise, Wallowa county. The first number certainly has an enterprising appearance, and we trust will, unlike the general run of newspapers make of its publisher a bloated millionaire. W. L. Herzinger the proprietor and publisher, is a brother of W. F., who was in the railroad wreck in which Hunter and Miller lost their lives, and who came near losing his own.

We have always asserted The Dalles is the "slickest" place in Oregon, and surely the statement has been verified today, as all who ventured out this morning will testify. If the wicked are the only ones who stand in slippery places, then must this be an ungodly town, for all found it almost an impossibility to stand up on their "pins" during the morning at least. This state of affairs was caused by the unexpected rain storm of last night, when about 10 o'clock the heavens seemed to be bathed in tears, which fell copiously and no sooner fell than froze. Could we have a good snow storm now the sleighing would be splendid.

Portland's leading society people and also those of other cities which the university glee club will visit, are doing all in their power to make the visit of the boys a successful one, not only socially, but financially as well. The Dalles will not be behind in this regard, for we intend to give them a great send off. From Ned Baldwin, who arrived home last night, we learn of the excellence of their entertainments, and from the reports given by him we feel positive it is one which even Dalles people (who demand the best) will greatly appreciate. It has been decided to put the admission fee at 50 cents, although in other Eastern Oregon towns the prices will be 50 cents, 75 and $1. Blakeley & Houghton now have the tickets on sale.

It would seem to those who are but casual observers and have not taken any particular interest in charitable work, that The Dalles is an exceptionally prosperous city, with but a few within its midst who are in need or unable to spend Christmas in a happy manner. And yet we are informed by the captain of the Salvation Army, which has made a thorough canvass of the city, that they have found at least twenty-five families in this place, beside a large number of individuals, who are in need of assistance. They have endeavored to search out those deserving families who are endeavoring to make their way through life without asking charity, but who are in fact the most needy, and to whom any gifts will come as a blessing and make Christmas such a day as all should find it.

It is said that when the call comes for another Canadian contingent 250 British-born residents of Spokane are ready to enlist against the Boers in South Africa. A Victoria resident, who is in touch with military matters, says: "The Second Canadian contingent will consist of from 8000 to 9000 men and of this number British Columbia will probably furnish 1000. At least 500 are already ready to enlist from Vancouver and Victoria and are only waiting for the final orders from the department as to the numbers to be allowed to enter. Of course the enlistment of Canadian troops for South African service is purely voluntary. No demand has been made upon Canada for troops but the Canadian men are eager for an opportunity to go and it is probable as many again as are needed will volunteer. As to the ultimate result of the war there can be no doubt. Great Britain can not afford to withdraw now and as the greater force she can finally accomplish her end."

Of the multitudinous variety of holiday gifts there are probably none that meet with more popular favor, than a pair of well fitted glasses. Mr. Theo. H. Liebe, graduate optician at Liebe's jewelry store, will test your eyes free of charge. 10-21

Having purchased the stock of the Dant Optical and Jewelry Company, I will sell the same at a great sacrifice at their old location, opposite Mays & Crowe's Hardware Store on Second street. Harry C. Liebe. d20-21

DRINK CAUSED HIS DEATH.

The Body Found Near Celilo Was That of Jonathan Jackson.

Many of those who called at the undertaker's yesterday to view the remains of the man found dead near Celilo thought the face looked familiar, and one or two suggested that they believed it was the body of a farmer who frequented the city; but not until J. H. Jackson came in was it identified as that of Jonathan Jackson, a sheep raiser who lived near Deschutes.

The witnesses at the inquest then brought forth the facts more particularly. Although an honest, industrious man, Jackson was known to be addicted to drink, and one whom liquor fairly demented. Often would he come into town and remain for days in a condition bordering on insanity caused by a protracted spree. He was an Englishman by birth, and had been in this country about fifteen years, living for the past twelve years about six miles south of Sherar's bridge, on the other side of Deschutes. He had accumulated quite a competency in the sheep business and at one time was a partner of D. P. Ketchum, also later of "Shorty" Davis. It is thought, however, that his earnings have all been squandered.

Last spring Jackson sold his sheep for about $5000, and it is said at the same time disposed of his land. About two weeks ago he passed through the city on his way to Portland, where it is thought he must have drank very heavily and squandered his money, as was his wont when drinking. No one in The Dalles seems to have heard of his whereabouts since that time until his body was brought here yesterday.

T. A. Ward testified yesterday that often when on a spree he would come into the stable and in his dementia imagine he was at the hotel and start to prepare for bed or have like hallucinations. It was therefore concluded that he must have been returning from Portland, and when he reached Celilo imagined it was his destination and got off, then as if preparing for bed took off a portion of his clothing and lay down in the position the body was found as described yesterday, and there was frozen.

The inquest developed nothing which would indicate foul play, and the story of the Indians who found him was straight forward, George Cozel describing just how it was found and of the information at once being given to Mr. Taffa.

Jackson had no relatives in this country, but two of his sisters are nuns in a convent in England. He also has a sister living in the old country, whom he was supporting. As is usually the case, he was a man of good nature, generous and honest, but drink thoroughly transformed him and finally caused his death. The verdict of the jury was as follows:

In the matter of the inquest held over the body of Jonathan Jackson, We, the jury impaneled by W. H. Butts, coroner of Wasco county, state of Oregon, to inquire into the cause of the death of the body now before us, after due and careful consideration and deliberation, and from the evidence presented in the case find the following facts:

That the name of the deceased is Jonathan Jackson, whose age is about forty years; that his residence is on the Deschutes river, six miles south of Sherar's bridge, in Wasco county, Oregon, and that he came to his death on or about the 14th day of December, 1899, so far as we are able to ascertain from the evidence, about nine miles east of Dalles City, and about 400 feet north of the O. R. & N. Co.'s railroad track, while suffering from a temporary aberration of his mind. The exact nature and cause of his death is to this jury unknown, but this jury from a careful examination of his body cannot find any evidence of any foul play, or evidence of injury to the body of the deceased.

Dated at Dalles City, Oregon, this 20th day of December, 1899.

An Old Ball Program.

Looking over an old book a few days since Chas. Craig came across an old ball program which was used at a party given at the Umatilla House thirty-four years ago next Wednesday evening, and while there may be a few in The Dalles at present who attended, so varied have been the changes since that time that 'tis not likely there are many who would remember having taken part in the festivities of the occasion.

Not a name among the reception committee nor floor managers seems to sound familiar nowadays. Among them are Jonas Brown, A. Benedict, A. Scheeline, A. P. Turner, Claude Goodrich, Chris. Higby and Frank Britten.

The style of program is a small card with committee and instructions on one side and list of dances on the other.

Among the suggestions is one which it would not be amiss to observe at the more modern dances: that which says "Ladies will please not 'engage ahead' " for more than one dance in any instance. Another is cautioning ladies and gentlemen not to take their places on the floor until the signal is given for each dance. While a program of more than twelve dances is considered a long one now, twenty-three numbers were danced that night, and in those days the dances were more varied, and among them we find, beside those which are yet used, the mazepa, varsovienne, gallopade, mazepa, Irish jig and Spanish dance. Supper was also included in the program, and we are led to believe that dancers in these days have improved in regard to the hours they keep, for surely those who attended that night reached home during the morning hours.

PEOPLE YOU ALL KNOW.
