The Malarial Mesonite.

Nature states that Maj. Ronald Ross, the leader of the expedition to Sierra Leone, found that in India the malaria parasite is borne by the spotted-winged mosquitoes and not by the common brindled or gray mosquitoes, and his recent cable message announced that malaria on the west coast of Africa is produced under the same conditions as in India. There is evidence that the malaria-bearing species only breeds in small isolated collections of water which can be easily dissipated, but the expedition has not yet had time to verify this point .- Chicago Tribune.

The City of Indianapolis Is a Place Where Aspiring Politicians Flourish.

Indianapolis, Ind., boasts of the finest climate in the United States in respect to political salubrity. A few years in its atmosphere will convert a farmer boy into a president or vice president, while its output of ambassadors, consuls general and the like is merely regarded as an incident to the more important work in hand of turning out national presiding officers. At present Indianapolis holds many important European consular posts. One is minister to Austria. Just now the postmasters at Havana, Ponce and San Juan, the three important cities of our new acquisitions, are all from Indianapolis. But the city has a more unique record than this. It has had representation on national tickets for the longest unbroken period of any city in the country. In a period of 20 years, beginning with 1872, there was not a national election when the city was without representation on one of the tickets. If Schayler Colfax, whose home was at South Bend, but who spent much of his time in Indianapolis, is considered an Indianapolitan, this period asked the rough rider. is extended another four years; and on ional candidate for vice president in I bate him he begun to kick." the days before the war. ## THEY ARE SMALL.

Some Insects That Cause More Trouble Than Many of the Larger Animals.

More trains are stopped by insects in India than brigands. Locusts have a fancy for sitting on the railway lines. When the engine wheel touches them they are crushed, leaving the rail so oily that the wheel slips. When this occurs as the train is climbing a steep gradient it is serious. Oysters, paradoxical as it may seem, have now joined the ranks of the enemies of enterprise. Some gourmand suggested the Indian harbor of Tuticorin, on the Madras const, as a suitable place for oyster beds, and the Madras government, doubtless appreciating the value of oysters either for cating or for pearls, turned a deaf ear to conservative remonstrance. Time has, however, justified the remonstrants, for, though the projectors have got an abundant supply of oysters, the harbor of Tuticorin is now said to be in danger of total destruction by the growth of the beds. The Madras coast is so ill-favored that harbors are more valuable than oysters. and a campaign will be directed against the latter, although the authorities hanker after the taxes on the pearl fishery.

ONE OF ROOSEVELT'S TERRORS

An Equine Veteran of the War with Many Faults and a Single Wenkness.

He was a veteran of the late war. By way of evincing his distaste for the ways of peace he had just kicked several holes in the dashboard of the eart which it was his business to draw. His driver stood on the sidewalk and niternately cursed and coaxed, the remarks being punctuated by occasional crashes of the wood work, as the veteran lifted his powerful heel. It was on the north side of Washington square and the usual crowd was offering unprofitable advice. Down the steps of ne of the big old-time mansions strolled a languid young man clad in afternoon tea raiment. He cast a casual glance at the equine veteran, then hastened down the steps and pushed through the crowd.

"Hello, Pete, you devil," he said to

"Hello, Pete, you devil," he said to the horse.

"He do be a devil all right, sorr," said the driver. "But Pete is not his name." The animal, however, seemed to think otherwise. Up went his ears and the skin on his broad nose wrintled in a peculiarly sagacious way. The next instant the young man jumped back with a cessation of languidly that saved the point of his chin. The hors,'s big teeth snapped in the air.

"Up to your old tricks, are you," said the young man, and his gloved hand landed with a smart whack across the wrinkled jowl.

The veteran tossed his head and snorted, but he didn't kick again. Instend he kept his eyes intently on the giver of the blow, evidently solicitous lest another should follow it.

"Hit him again, s.rr." besought the driver. "Av I had cracked him like that, there wud have been no eart at "Where did you pick him up?"

"Red luck to the Harlem man that sold him to me," said the driver. "You know the horse, sorr?" "Rather," said the young man. "He's one of Teddy's Terrors. Aren't you, Pete started to reach again, but changed his mind hastily as the gloved hand swong toward him. The crowd ever eager for anything about the war, stood waiting. "He's a real terror, too," said the young man. "He never got any farther than Tampa toward the front, but he made a record there. There were men in every troop that had the mark of his teeth on 'em, and we called him "You was one of the rough riders, orr?" said the driver, respectfully.

Not rough enough to tackle Peter wasn't that he bucked, but he had a trick of turning his head and getting a man just above the knee. I don't believe there's a borse living with a much rubber in his neck as that beast. How you over got him in harness is dislike to go any farther, and when

"Oh, I'll show you how to cure that westkones, and I estald make him follaw me all around by putting an apple in my pocket. He could smell it a yard away, condu't you. Pete?"

Crark! counded a blow that landed where the first had struck, for Pete had escayed another bire.

"Have to keep your eve on him all "Have to keep your eye on him all the while," said the young man. "Hand the apple over hure. Thank you."

and walked away. The veteran ambled after. The driver clambated into his somewhat fractured eart and th crowd followed. After a few rods had been traversed the apple was given to Pets, who comally had the grace to whinny his thanks. He then jugged along steadily enough, his driver shouting back at the cu-soldier his gratitude, mingled with offers to sell the horse for ten dollars .- N. Y. Sun.

Points About the Paris Fair.

The central station of the Paris exposition will be 1,200 feet long and 120 feet wide, with 45,000 rteam herse-power and 20,000 electrical horse-power. Two movable platforms, run at different speeds, 24/2 and five miles per hour, will make a complete tour of the exposition in a circuit of 21/2 miles. The cost of the platforms is $1,400,000 and the cost of a rids will be ten cents. The exposition will be open 14 hours a day. Garlands of electric lamps will light the quays and are lights the exhibition avenues. The principal lines of the exhibition buildings are to be brought out in colors with glass bull's-eyes and incandescent lamps. Several thousand electric lights will be used in permutations along the entire height of the Eiffel tower.
