SHEEP IN THE WOODS.

Captain Ormsby's Annual Report on the Cascade Reserve.

Capt. S. B. Ormsby, superintendent of the Cascade forest reserve, one of the largest of the government reserves in the United States, is now busily employed in writing his report to the interior department, regarding the grazing proved Magazine cyclones at Donnell's of sheep on the reserve. This is his drug store. third report on the subject since he was appointed superintendent, one being re- and sunburn. Manufactured by Clarke quired by the department every year, & Falk, and when asked about the work, yesterday, he said that he would probably wear out the subject, if the subject did not wear him out. The report will be a most voluminous affair, and will go into details regarding the grazing of sheep on the reserve; the effects on the growth of timber and underbrush; the effects on the rainfall, floods, etc., and a variety of other subjects. The writing of these good than anything I ever took." It digests what you cat and can not help of the reserves, is the direct result of the constant efforts of the scientists to the constant efforts of the scientist to the constant efforts of t

The report will include a variety of subjects, and details, such as the number of sneep seeking the different reservations; duration of the grazing season; the locality, the extent and general course of ranging, the damage done to the forests on the reserves, which includes killing the undergrowth by browsing, trampling it out, and injuries to the standing timber; the diminishing of the water supply by trampling the ground so that the snow melts earlier in the spring and passes off in floods before needed in the valleys; the retention of the moisture from the ramfall, it being claimed by the enemies of the sheep that the trampling of the ground causes the water to flow away instead of being absorbed by the soil.

The methods pursued by the herders, whether or not they are in the habit of setting fires to increase the grazing for the I llowing year, is another subject upon which a report is demanded; the question of leasing the ranges on the reserve, by the department, the restrictions and limitations which [should be included in the lease, the charge per head of sheep allowed on the ranges and Little Early Risers. kindred information is to be given at length; statistics are to be given regarding the value of the sheep industry, the number of sheep on the reserve, the amount of the wool production, the | DR GEISENDORFFER value of the wool, the value of the sheep, the amount of capital invested in the industry, and a thousand and one other points, regarding the grazing and rear- coms 21 and 22, Tel. 328 ing of sheep on the forest reserves.

While Captain Ormsby did not say what his conclusions would be on the various points involved, it is not likely that he will agree with the scientistregarding the destructiveness of the sheep on the reserver, in view of the fact that the superintendent has long been a resident of Oregon, and for many years a breeder of sheep; in addition to that, he has travelled thousands of miles on the reserves, during the past three years, studying the questions involved; he has followed the sheep on the ranges for days, camping with the herders, and closely observing the actions of the sheep, the condition of the ground where they had passed, and after making these extended investigations, he appears to be more than ever imbued with the idea that the theories of the scientists are entirely wrong, as the practical knowledge gained by him on the ground combats the views of the scientists at the national capital. It might do for some Eastener, or some Mazama who climbed Mt. Hood some time, to believe that the sheep would get away with the entire reservation, mountains and all, but it is doubtful whether any one having any practical knowledge on the subject, would ever believe that the sheep would in any manner injure the forests on the reserve.-Salem Statesmen.
