THREE OF A KIND.

A great country like the United States, England or Germany, with a consular service that covers the globe, will be inflicted at times with a rattle-brained or hot-headed representative. If he has been correctly reported, the British consul at New Orleans is one of the other. A New Orleans paper has attributed to him utterances unbecoming the representative of a foreign power, including an outbreak against the American people and a special attack on Senator Mason of Illinois. Mason needs criticism, but his countrymen will attend to that.

In the senate Monday, the Illinois senator seized this incident as a text for an undignified, impassioned attack on a friendly government, and made a violent speech which was as much in violation of the proprieties as the alleged interview with the offending British consul.

The senate is the treaty-making power of this government, and is the adviser of the president in the selection of ambassadors and ministers. For this reason the official utterances of a senator are given a weight abroad which is not attached to the utterances of a private citizen, nor even to the remarks of a member of the house of representatives.

No one understands this better than Mason. But he is enough of the blatherskite to make cheap appeals for notoriety, even though they might endanger the friendly relations of the United States and Great Britain.

This is a free country, and no one will interfere with a decent expression of sympathy for the Boer armies. But the right of protest does lodge against men like Mason of the senate, and DeArmond of the house, who addressed the pro-Boer meeting in New York Monday night. If these men were in sufficient numbers, they embroil the United States in a wanton, senseless war with England. Already they have joined hands with the Boer junta, which is plotting everywhere to egg some great power into an attack on England, an effort that is right enough, from the standpoint of the Boer junta, but the American people would be unwise to rake out the chestnuts for the Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

War between the United States and England would be a great crime. It would be almost as deplorable as the war between the North and the south, with none of the justifying motives which lay back of that struggle. And before the cannon had been booming for six weeks, a majority of the hot-heads who now seem to be courting war, would be calling for peace. With our foreign trade gone to smash, and our army and navy fighting our best customer, we should see some hard times in the United States. The hot-heads would awake then to the force of the recent statement by President Hill, of the Great Northern: "Great Britain buys 60 to 70 per cent of all we sell. Great Britain is the only customer that does not discriminate against us. Our one main customer seems to be a remarkably good one."

Men like Mason and DeArmond, who do their bellowing first and their thinking later, are the evil genius of the republic.—Spokesman-Review.

A SURE CURE FOR CROUP.

Twenty-Five Years' Constant Use Without a Failure.

The first indication of croup is hoarseness, and in a child subject to that disease it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is used in many thousands of homes in this broad land and never disappoints the anxious mothers. We have yet to learn of a single instance in which it has not proved effectual. No other preparation can show such a record—twenty-five years' constant use without a failure. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
