Gent's Furnishing Goods Department.

If you want the best you have no other choice, we don't make it so, but people who like up-to-date wearables, just prices and fair treatment do. Not a hundred years, not fifty, nor even one has elapsed since the clothes we are showing were made. They were made this season and in this season's style. This not only applies to our Men's Department but to the Children's as well, and there's a style about them that's exclusive. Isn't it worth something to know that you are in style, especially when it costs you no more?

Our advertisements are our letters to you, written, signed and backed up by a house that has always been jealous of its reputation and business integrity.

Standard Fashions for March now on sale at Pease & Mays.

March Designers and patterns now on sale at Pease & Mays.

We are pleased to state that City Supt. Landers is again able to resume his school duties today after several days illness.

During January more postage stamps were sold in the United States than during any previous month in its history. Compared with January 1890 the increase was 94 per cent. The total number issued was 457,048,545 of a value of $1,05,116.

Easter Sunday is on April 15 this year and Lent commences February 28. The date for Easter is unusually late, and in fact is within one week of the latest possible date for the feast. The setting of the date is by means of the Paschal moon, and on this account it is impossible for it to come earlier than March 21 or later than April 25.

We will soon have another train passing through The Dalles, which will leave Portland in the morning. The officials of the Union Pacific, the Oregon Short Line and the O. R. & N. met in Salt Lake Wednesday and decided to place in service a second through train. No particulars have been received in The Dalles as to how soon the new train will be put on.

Charity Longface, a delegate to the "Old Maids' convention," has sent word that she will favor the members with a new selection entitled "Ben Bolt." As those interested are desirous of knowing where Ben Bolted, it will be a principal feature of the evening. Betsy Bobbett will also read a touching piece of original poetry, which fairly melts the convention to tears.

A battle royal was being waged on the hill near the Christian church yesterday between the young British and Boers, and as the conflict reached its height and imaginary soldiers were falling on all sides, a private citizen passed that way. "British or Boers?" shouted the young enthusiasts as they started toward him. "Kentuckian!" he answered, and both armies fell back, while a little fellow shouted: "Guess we'll let you pass."

Seats are now on sale at Clarke & Falk's for the "Little Minister." In every city where the company has appeared, the advance agent informs us, they have placed reserved seats at $1.50. Dalles people, however, do not take kindly to such prices, and $1.75 and 50 cents will be charged. Our people are fortunate in having an opportunity to hear this company and should patronize it accordingly.

At the annual meeting of the Columbia Hose and Chemical Engine Company last night the following officers were elected: President, M. A. Vogt; secretary, A. T. Baldwin; treasurer, J. F. Hampshire; foreman, Grant Mays; first assistant, W. A. Johnston; second asst., Frank A. French. Board of fire delegates—Frank Gunning, H. W. French, W. A. Johnston. Fire police for the three year term, N. D. Hughes.

The W. C. T. U. sent for County Surveyor Golt to locate the eastern boundary line of our town. Mr. Golt came from The Dalles on Monday and did the work. His survey showed that the bunk house of the Lost Lake Lumber company was 42 feet east of the corporation line. This disqualifies about 25 workmen, who make their home at the bunk house, from voting for town officers. These men voted at the late town election, and most of them signed the petition for the saloon license.—Glacier.

An agent was in our town a few days ago working up business for the Columbia river R. R. Navigation Co. They propose to have boats on the river early in the spring and their rates on wheat to Portland will be much lower than the present rate. The transportation company seems to think Arlington quite an important shipping point and if the prospects for a crop of wheat materialize this will be a lively place for the next year. The crop prospects for Gilliam are the best in the history of the county.—Condon Globe.

At the urgent request of their many friends the young ladies (?) of the Single Blessedness Debating Society have decided to place on sale tomorrow morning at Blakeley & Houghton's reserved seats for the convention Monday evening at the Baldwin. The price of admission will be 25 cents, with no extra charge for reserved seats. At the close of the session a reception will be held at which the "old maids" and their friends will "trip the light fantastic." Refreshments will also be served.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Belle Rinehart was called to the farm of her father, D. J. Cooper, on 10-Mile to attend her brother Cyrus, who was suffering with a broken leg. He was riding horseback into the barn when a horse kicked at the animal he has riding and struck his left leg between the knee and ankle. While the break is not a very serious one, it comes doubly hard to the young man, who was already slightly lame from spinal trouble. After the doctor had set his leg, he was carefully arranged in a buggy and brought to his home in the city.

A great many people are laboring under the impression that the portage road, now being constructed from Grand Dalles to Columbus, will come to Crate's Point and transfer to steamers at that place, but such is not the case. The Central Navigation & Construction Company has not secured the right-of-way through A. H. Curtis' place and will, therefore, come to a point opposite Senfert's cannery and there transfer to steamers, unless The Dalles has the long-talked-of bridge across the narrows by the time they reach that point, which is not likely.—Pioneer.

"The Johnstown Flood by One Who Passed Through It" will be the subject of Rev. D. V. Poling's address before the Students Literary society tonight at the city hall. The young men are often heard to complain of a lack of opportunity for improvement in The Dalles. This society is just what is needed along that line, and with such a subject Mr. Poling's lecture cannot fail to be intensely interesting and instructive. The public generally is invited to be present.

One of the most clever and forceful newspaper writers on the coast and one who has been connected with the Oregonian for some time, is J. W. Reddington. No matter what subject that writer tackles, be it the prosiest or the most sensational, the most is made of it, and the reader's attention is attracted and held. We understand Mr. Reddington has leased the Heppner Gazette and issues the first number under its new management this week. This is not a new field for this popular journalist, for Heppner was his old stamping ground, where he formerly wrote for the Gazette.

It is said that a few evenings since as Rev. Frank Spaulding was on his way from his home at Belmont, near Hood River, to attend an oyster supper at a neighbor's some distance away, he met with an accident which verified the Biblical statement, that "without are dogs." Wending his way along singing "as pants the heart," a savage dog jumped out and grabbing his trouser leg at the knee, ripped it open to the ground. Evidently the dog was desirous of increasing his own pants at Mr. Spaulding's expense; but he made a mistake when he tackled a minister, who's pants generally bag at the knee, and it was fortunate in this particular instance that such is the case, otherwise the beast must have taken off a good share of the bark.

At the time of the death of Mrs. M. J. Beezley some months since at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grover Simpson, in Chicago, her remains were interred in a vault there with the intention of removing them to The Dalles at an early date, where they might rest beside those of her late husband, Joseph Beezley. It was expected Mr. and Mrs. Simpson would arrive on the 14th with the body, but a telegram received by Mrs. C. J. Crandall this morning informs her they will reach here on Sunday afternoon, the 10th. While no arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral, it is expected it will be held at the Methodist church Monday. However, the friends of the deceased (for she had a large number in The Dalles) are requested to watch the papers tomorrow, when further particulars will be given.

RECEIVED THEIR FRIENDS.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pease Give a Reception in Their New Home.

The reception given by Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pease to almost a hundred of their friends last night was perhaps the most brilliant affair of its kind ever given in The Dalles. The handsome residence showed to the best advantage in its holiday attire, although no elaborate decorations had been attempted, the rooms being ornaments in themselves. In the large reception hall green and white predominated, and passing into the parlor a yellow shade met the eye; in the sitting room cerise was most in evidence, while the dining-room gave forth lavender and pink shades. From the chandelier to the corners of the latter room emerald was festooned, and the tables were beautiful in their arrangement. Many of the costumes of the ladies were also very handsome, adding much to the brilliancy of the scene.

At the door the guests were met by Misses Clara Davis and Grace Hobson, while on the upper floor Misses Alma Schmidt and Georgia Simpson assisted in receiving. As they entered the parlor they were met by the host and hostess, whose cordial greeting gave assurance of the hospitality which was so prominent throughout the entire evening.

Souvenir cards containing many of our national and popular airs had been given each guest, and during the early part of the evening all joined in singing. A very choice musical program was also rendered.

In the large attic, which has been arranged purposely for such occasions, were tables of "crochons," and "pillow dex" was also a favorite amusement. While much time was spent at these amusements, each room was converted into a scene of gaiety.

No more charming scene could be imagined than the guests beheld as they entered the dining room, and sat down to a spread in keeping with the surroundings. Those who assisted in serving were Meadames H. Gibbons, O. W. Morgan, M. Bayley, F. Bayley, C. Cooper, Emma Thompson.

The entire evening was perfect, and those who enjoyed Mr. and Mrs. Pease hospitality, could but congratulate them on the beauty of their new home and their desire to have their friends enjoy it with them.

STILL ANOTHER CHANCE.

J. M. Russell Proposes to Put in a Scouring Mill.

Among the many wool buyers who visit our city, none is better nor more favorably known than is J. M. Russell. This gentleman has always expressed his faith in The Dalles and its future, and now emphasizes that belief by a proposition which he made to the manufacturers committee of the club last night.

Like all those who have given the question thought, Mr. Russell realizes that, situated as it is in the very center of a wool-growing section, it is sheer folly for our city to expect to succeed as it should without some means are used to foster that industry. He therefore comes to us with a proposition which seems to be a most feasible one, and which we trust will receive more consideration than have like inducements along that line.

His idea is to organize a joint stock company, with a capital stock of $40,000, and erect a scouring mill in this city; bonds for the full amount to be issued. Should our people see fit to take $25,000 worth of six per cent bonds, he will take the remaining $15,000.

The proposition was presented to the manufacturers committee, and will tonight be submitted to the board of directors of the club. Should they see fit to take the matter in hand, Mr. Russell desires to put the plant in this summer.

While the play seems to be an excellent one, at the same time it should be considered in connection with a woolen mill, for in other places, taken separately, a scouring mill has not proven of so great advantage. Some time since the CHRONICLE spoke of an offer being made the city to move a first-class woolen mill here. So far as we can learn no word has since been heard from the parties concerned; but if arrangements could be made to have the mill in connection with the scouring mill, The Dalles would be making the very move which should have been inaugurated long since. It is, however, no doubt the intention of Mr. Russell to put a woolen mill in later.

Will the proposition be passed over like dozens of others and lay mouldering on the shelf? We trust not.
