BRITISH GREED FOR GOLD.

Much loose talk is heard about the British land and gold greed as exhibited in South Africa. There is no denying that the average Englishman has a passion for land and a longing for gold, but it does not appear that in this respect he differs from the average American, or the average German, or Russian, or Frenchman. Seek, if you will, a country where land and gold are held in little repute, and when you have found it, you will find yourself outside the pale of civilization.

The Spokesman-Review further says: It is not alleged that the outlanders in the Transvaal and the Orange Free State have taken one acre of land except as they have obtained it on terms laid down by the former Boer owners and the Boer governments. Finding his government immersed in poverty and on the verge of bankruptcy, President Kruger went to London in 1883 and invited British capital to come into his country, buy the lands of his people and develop its resources. At that time Mr. Kruger was a poor man, his people were poor, and his government was impoverished. The revenues of the Transvaal were less than $1,000,000. Through the influx of British capital, Mr. Kruger has become a man of great wealth, his people are prosperous, and the revenues of the Transvaal for 1899 were about $20,000,000.

The truth is, English capital went into the Transvaal on such terms as the Boers dictated. Here in the Pacific northwest we want British capital to help develop our mineral resources, and are glad to make more liberal conditions than the Boers made to attract it in 1883. If British capitalists will come in here, and convert a lonely mining camp into a smart wonder city, as they did at Johannesburg, the men of brains and daring who risk their millions will not be treated as greedy invaders.

There was no greater spirit of "greed" among the men who built Johannesburg than exists among the Canadians who are developing the rich mines of Republic, or the English interests who have invested several million dollars in Rossland.

A collection of books and pamphlets by negro authors has been suggested as a feature of the Paris exposition, in connection with the United States' exhibit, says the Oregonian. The librarian of congress, at the request of Commissioner Peck, has undertaken to co-operate in the work of collecting negro literature, and an effort will be made to obtain a copy of every book or pamphlet of which a colored man or woman has been the author. The task will be a difficult one, owing to the obscurity of much of the work, but a strong effort will be put forth to make it successful. At the close of the exposition the collection will be placed in the congressional library, for future reference. Its value to future investigators of the bibliography of negro authorship will be almost inestimable.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

Mrs. J. K. Miller, Newton Hamilton, Pa., writes, "I think DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the grandest salve made." It cures piles and heals everything. All fraudulent imitations are worthless.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly.
