FACTS PLAINLY STATED.

Factional Fights Should Be Laid Aside and All Citizens Should Work in Unison.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:—

There are practically no industries in The Dalles, consequently the entire community is dependent upon the produce of the surrounding country for their support and prosperity. We are now upon the event of adding to its manufactures a scouring mill, providing the necessary amount of stock can be subscribed among the citizens and merchants in general. From good authority I understand the committee appointed to solicit are not meeting with the desired success, owing to an entirely factional prejudice and greed which has been carried on for a number of years, much to the disgust of the community.

What The Dalles needs most, and that right bad, at the present time is strict harmony among the moneyed class in order to derive the benefit of the proposition now offered that will insure an advance of their own interest, and the promising welfare of the city.

The scouring mill is an advance agent for a woolen mill, soap factory and even other industries of different nature; the principal object being to attract capital to the advantage of an unbounded area of country that requires development.

This is a plain, unvarnished statement of facts, and it conveys a great economic lesson for the benefit to be derived in future years. New factories and establishments mean an influx of skilled help, and "more homes" will be the watchword for the latest need of a prosperous community. Ergo.

The Shaw Company.

The East Washingtonian has the following to say of the Shaw Company, which will show every night next week at the Baldwin theater. Popular prices 15, 25, and 35 cents:

"The Shaw Company has given a splendid entertainment at the opera house each night this week, fully sustaining all the pleasant things that had been said about them in advance of their arrival. Every actor in the many grave, humorous and tragic incidents, which are nightly depicted, has been of more than ordinary interest, and the results have been striking in the highest degree.

"There are no weak spots in the Shaw Company. Their performances are entirely free from bungling and awkwardness. The music alone is worth more than the price of admission. The xylophone solos by William J. Drew have aroused much interest among the music loving people of the town, and have been a "drawing card" throughout the series of entertainments. Mr. Drew plays a dozen or more instruments of various kinds, and certainly is an artist of much ability. The Shaw Company have been playing to fair houses, but they have not been as liberally patronized as they should have been. They should be greeted by a packed house every night. Really meritorious companies cannot afford to visit small towns unless they are met by a liberal support from the theatre-going people of the community."

Hunting for New Writers.

Eight thousand manuscripts were received by The Ladies' Home Journal during the year just closed. Each were given a careful reading, but out of the entire number only eighty were found worthy of publication. The manuscript bureau of The Ladies' Home Journal is operated at a large expense, but the hope of discovering new writers or some aspirant with undeveloped talent warrants the outlay. It can be seen that the articles secured by such a careful winnowing process brings the cost of each up to and above the remuneration paid our best writers.

These facts bring refutation to the oft-repeated but none the less erroneous assertion that only well known writers of established literary reputation are able to find a place for their work in the magazines. Exactly the contrary is true. The Ladies' Home Journal, through the manuscript considered, has discovered three or four new writers of excellent merit and great promise, and this "find" its editor regards as fully warranting the large outlay of maintaining an expensive bureau for reading all the manuscript submitted.—Northwest Journal of Education.

measures seven feet from tip to tip, and its feathers are pure white and black.

Again we hear the sound of Salvation Army wedding bells in The Dalles. This time they peal forth the uniting of two captains. We are told that on Monday evening, Feb. 20th, at the Vogt opera house, Brigadier Marshall will unite in marriage Captain Tom R. Hillish and Captain Flora M. Homer, who will start out together to fight the battles for the Lord. No one can afford to stay at home. Everyone come early to secure a seat.

We understand that the committee, who has had in charge the matter of the proposed scouring mill, has come to an agreement with Mr. Russell and there is every reason to believe that the mill will be built. The committee has worked hard and faithfully in the matter and has had many obstacles to overcome. It is to be hoped now that all our citizens, each and every one, will do their necessary part in securing this labor-employing industry for The Dalles.

This is the anniversary of Washington's birthday and it is being observed in The Dalles by the flying of the stars and stripes, closing of the schools, banks, and all public offices. This afternoon all the stores closed and gave their employees a holiday. If the CHRONICLE is somewhat short of news, kindly overlook the fact for we rushed matters some in order to give the printers and those connected with the office a chance to have a little pleasure in the sunshine of this beautiful day.

Fred Burchtorf and wife having returned home from their wedding trip, some of their friends thought they would give them a touch of high life and let them know there were more than two people in the world. They proceeded to the Gosser residence, but Fred, fearing some demonstration, had with his bride silently stolen away and was comfortably enjoying the evening at a neighbor's. The young ladies and gentlemen in quest of him, however, were not deterred, and finally located the truant pair and proceeded to make things lively in the neighborhood, by rendering a chivari in several different colors, chords, measures, etc. As the harmonious (?) strains floated out on the evening air, Mr. Burchtorf could bear the suspense no longer so the crowd was ushered in and congratulated the happy couple, after which they were invited to Keller's refreshment parlors where oysters were served.

When the recorder called the roll at the council meeting last night, Councilman Harry Clough failed to answer to his name. As he is rarely ever absent from meetings some of the members of that august body asked the reason for his absence and were informed that their fellow councilman had taken unto himself a wife and hid himself to new pastures to spend his honey-moon. Whereupon it being in order, Councilman Johnston moved that owing to the oversight in Mr. Clough, in not telling his fellow councilmen of his intentions or introducing an ordinance authorizing the council to furnish the license and the recorder to perform the ceremony. That the said Harry Clough be fined a box of imported cigars, the said fine to be collected by the city marshal and placed in the hands of the recorder for safe keeping and distributed among the council from time to time at the meetings. The motion received a unanimous vote and the only obstacle in the way now, is the absence of the groom, but it is expected as soon as he arrives home that the marshal will do his duty.

Any one who left Manila a year ago, returning to it today, would almost fancy himself a Rip Van Winkle, says the Manila American. Today one may well rub one's eyes at the change affected. The streets, if dusty and somewhat muddy, are at least clear of garbage—the gutters are kept cleared. Houses have been repaired and painted. Innumerable new stores have been opened, rigs have been much improved, though still leaving much to be desired. Pariahs are growing conspicuous by their absence, especially canine ones, and the beggars are gradually disappearing from the streets. Sickness and disease are considerably on the decrease, and the city generally is in a more sanitary condition than it has ever been since its foundation. And all these changes and improvements have been brought about by the bringing to bear upon the existing conditions, American ideas in place of the aforesaid antiquated notions existing under the Spanish rule. The wonderful improvements achieved so far are an excellent omen for what another year will bring forth, and those here then will see how extremely beneficial to the city generally, and the welfare of its inhabitants, has been the new regime.
