Scrofula to Consumption.

Any one predisposed to Scrofula can never be healthy and vigorous. This taint in the blood naturally drifts into Consumption. Being such a deep-seated blood disease, Swift's Specific is the only known cure for Scrofula, because it is the only remedy which can reach the disease.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old. Shortly after breaking out it spread rapidly all over her body. The sores would peel off on the slightest touch, and the odor that would arise made the atmosphere of the room sickening and unbearable. The disease next attacked the eyes, and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians from the surrounding country were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent, and gave it as their opinion that the case was hopeless and impossible to save the child's eyesight. It was then that we decided to try Swift's Specific. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

Mrs. RUTH BERKELEY, Salina, Kan.

Scrofula is an obstinate blood disease, and is beyond the reach of the average blood medicine. Swift's Specific is the only remedy equal to such deep-seated diseases; it goes down to the very foundation and forces out every taint. It is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no mercury, potash or other mineral substance whatever. Books mailed free by Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

BIG GALAPAGOS TURTLES.

The Heaviest Weighed 600 Pounds and Was Worth for Scientific Uses $200.

From the Galapagos islands the schooner Julia Whalen has brought ten of the immense turtles for which the islands are noted. The biggest shell-back of them all weighs 600 pounds and is said to be the largest ever brought from the islands. Unfortunately, the monster reptile was accidentally killed two weeks out from the islands. A sharp piece of timber fell on the deck and pierced the animal's lungs. The turtle coughed blood for awhile, and an attempt was made to plaster up the hole, but the injured tortoise died in a fortnight. As scientists estimate the average life of these turtles at 200 years, death within two weeks of an injury is practically instantaneous—for a turtle. It is said in the islands that no turtle has died a natural death in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. During the two centuries that scientists have allotted it to live some accident generally befalls the turtle. Many have met their deaths by falling over precipices, and a number have been overtaken by the lava flows of these volcanic islands. In fact, the turtle brought back dead by the Whalen shows marks on his shell of having been caught in some fiery flow. There are scars on his shell, showing that the lava moved more quickly than he. A ton of cactus leaves was brought on the schooner as food for the turtles.

R. E. Snodgrass, an instructor in zoology at Stanford university, and E. Heller, a zoological student there, went on the Whalen for the purpose of making scientific observations. One of the giant tortoises belonged to them, and they have in addition 150 varieties of fish. Sixty-two varieties of fish were already known on these islands, which are remarkably rich zoologically. Of the fish brought back to Stanford, 90 specimens are new to science. The collections bring also a most complete collection of insects, many of them unclassified, and a fine collection of birds and reptiles. They have a specimen of a marine iguana, or sea lizard, six feet long. The college men report that the turtles, though still numerous on Albermarle, have disappeared from the other islands, except on Duncan island, where one species of the testudo family still exists. There are three species on Albermarle, but on the other islands, each of which had once its separate species, the turtles are extinct. The inhabitants of the islands kill the turtles for their oil, and the supply is steadily growing less. The turtles brought back on the Whalen are worth from $200 to $350 apiece. There were ten, some of them bound for museums, some for zoological gardens and more for the soup kettle.—San Francisco Chronicle.

HAYDN'S UNHAPPY WIFE.

Married Her Instead of Her Sister Merely to Oblige His Father-in-Law.

Haydn married, not the girl he was in love with, but her sister. "Haydn, you should take my oldest daughter," said Father Keller, the barber, and, as Keller had done a good deal for Haydn, the composer felt that he must sacrifice his affection on the altar of duty and oblige the old man. At the time of the marriage, in 1760, Haydn was 29, while his Anna Maria was 32. There does not appear to have been much love on either side to start with, but Haydn declared that he had really begun to "like" his wife, and would have come to entertain a stronger feeling for her if she had behaved in a reasonable way. Unfortunately, Anna Maria had neither rhyme nor reason in her composition. The entertaining Marcille says that the majority of ladies married to men of genius are so vain of the abilities of their husbands that they are frequently insufferable. But Frau Haydn was not a lady of that kind. The world had emphatically proclaimed her husband a genius, but to Maria it was quite immaterial whether he were a cobbler or an artist. Nay, she even committed the incredible crime of using the composer's manuscript scores for curling paper, as underlays for pastry, and similar things! She was gay enough with it all, too.

When Haydn went from home she would send him the most cheerful little notes. "Should you die to-day or to-morrow," ran one of these missives. "There is not enough money left in the house to bury you." At another time, when Haydn was in London, he received a letter in which Maria wrote that she had just seen a neat little house which she liked very much, and that he might do himself the pleasure to send her 2,000 gulden with which to buy it, so as to have in future a "widow's home." Pleasant reading this for the genial composer! In the first case he wrote, without a trace of anger: "Should this be so, take my manuscripts to the music publisher. I guarantee you that they will be worth money enough to defray my funeral expenses." In the matter of the "widow's home," he thought it would be best to arrange things himself. Ultimately he bought the house, and in spite of Maria's frequent suggestions of his coming dissolution, he lived in it for nine years after she had been dead. Frau Haydn saw out her 70 years, but some time before that the pair had agreed to live apart as the best way of ending a union which had proven utterly unbearable to the composer.—Cornhill Magazine.

Mr. Jackson—"Chasin' a woman is jes' like chasin' a trolley car; after you've caught her you've got to put your hand right down in your pocket and pull out some money!"

Mr. Johnson—"Yes; and you're darn lucky if you don't find you've caught de wrong car, after all!"—Puck.

John Dorr, Poseyville, Ind., says: "I never used anything so good as One Minute Cough Cure. We are never without it." Quickly breaks up coughs and cold. Cures all throat and lung troubles. Its use will prevent consumption. Pleasant to take.
