There appears to be a general impression that this section is to experience an early spring and a hot summer, says the Telegram. Portland is not accustomed to very tropical weather, but if it materializes this summer and the low rates to Astoria continue in effect, thousands of people will journey to the coast.

One of the most beautiful sights we have seen this spring in the line of flowers, is a magnolia in full bloom. While walking up Fourth street our attention was arrested by the sight of some 500 blossome on a tree and not a single leaf out. It is indeed worth walking many blocks to behold the sight which will last about a week longer.
