PEASE & MAYS

Twenty-five or thirty men were engaged on the water works. Bill Ashby, of Antelope, was hauling lumber to put in a feed yard. One blacksmith shop was in operation and another was coming from Antelope. J. J. Wiley was doing a rattling saloon business and a restaurant building was ready for the roof. Meanwhile the workmen were boarding in tents. The necessary preparations were going on for the big iron-clad warehouse, bank building and numerous others. The grading of the road had been finished and the rails were laid to Mackin Flat, eight miles from Shaniko.

Congressmen Working Together.

Representative Jones is co-operating with Representative Moody, of Oregon, in an effort to secure the passage of the bill known as the double minimum refunding bill, says the Washington correspondent of the Tacoma Ledger. This is a measure that was left as a legacy by the late Senator Dolph, of Oregon, and the man who succeeded him, Senator McBride, has been pushing it every session that he has been a senator from that state. Dolph succeeded in passing it once through the senate, and once he failed on account of the opposition of certain Southern senators. McBride got it through the senate with a good deal of coaxing, and it is now "up to" the house members to get it through if they can. It is very hard to get a measure of this kind passed, because it will require the refunding of a large sum of money from the treasury. There is no question as to the justness of it, because the men who paid this money were compelled to do so when they took land within railroad limits. The roads were not built, the land was forfeited to the settlers, and years after men came in and took the forfeited lands at $1.25 an acre, whereas the pioneers paid $2.50 an acre.

Mr. Jones and Mr. Moody make a very good team, and if anybody can get the bill through they can. This is about the first time that the Oregon and Washington members in the house have worked together so hard for any one measure, and they may be more successful than others have been before them.

An Apology to the Press.

THE DALLES, March 29, 1900.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:

There is possibly an apology due to the representatives of the press from having a committee who were not next to themselves on such work, or, as is more probable, from the short notice and the indefiniteness as to who was pushing the excursion and what was expected—making it somewhat embarrassing. But we were willing to give our time and money and take such blame as one always gets on that kind of work, rather than that the representatives of Astoria should think that we, as a town, were not courteous. I will further say that I am safe in saying that had any volunteers come forward and insisted on it they could have had the job, and if those, who are in any way dissatisfied, will forgive us, I for one will promise, as I have 20 times before, not to go on a soliciting committee some more. ONE OF THEM.

Notice.

In order to correct a mistaken idea that has gained circulation in some way unbeknown to me, I desire to inform my many patrons that I am not interested in any manner, whatever, in the firm of J. E. ...Follow the Crowd...

Do you remember the advice given by Mr. Pickwick when asked what to do in a time of great excitement? "In such cases do as the mob does." "But," said Mr. Snodgrass, "What if there be two mobs?" "Shout with the largest," said Mr. Pickwick. Volumes could not have said more. If you, gentle or ferocious reader, want to buy a Spring Suit or Overcoat the crowd at our place will tell you where to buy them.

The delegates elected today to represent Gilliam county in the Republican state convention are Messrs. Ward, Harbart, Duke and Bowerman.

A thief pried off the boards of the hotel back of the Baldwin restaurant last night and got away with about fifteen pounds of beef and a quantity of underclothing belonging to a Chinese employe of the restaurant.

It may be well to call attention to the fact that taxes will be delinquent on the 1st of the month. The sheriff reports that collections for the present month have been very light, being not much more than half what they were at this time last year.

The Portland Commercial Review, of this date, says quotations for wheat in this city cover a wide range and prices are from 52½c to 53½c per bushel for red, valley 53c and blue stem 54 to 56c. The latter figures, it adds, are for No. 1 over 58 pounds.

The Republicans of Albany have done a good thing for the party in subscribing to a fund for bringing Bryan to that town. What is the matter with The Dalles Republicans raising a fund to have him speak here and say—at Dufur. There are two Pops out there. He might make Republicans out of them.

In the circuit court today, in the case of Mercedes Paddock vs. Fred E. Paddock, a decree of divorce was granted to the plaintiff, who was represented by Ned Gates. The defendant did not appear. The plaintiff was allowed to resume her maiden name of Brigham.

We know of one farmer up in Linn county, says a Salem paper, who has rented his grain land and is devoting his time exclusively to the poultry business, with the aid of incubators and brooders. He expects to make more money on his ten or fifteen acres which he reserves, in the poultry business, than he formerly made on his whole farm, and with less durdgery and worry.

A few days ago the city treasurer sent to New York the sum of $5,500, all the money there was in the city treasury, in part payment of $20,000 bonded debt of the city that fell due March 1st. The city has asked for an extension of time on the deferred payment and will doubtless get it, as the bonds bear 6 per cent interest and, had the law allowed, the debt could have been refunded recently at 4 per cent.

The Students' Literary Club met last night and discussed the question: Resolved that capital punishment ought to be abolished. At the close it was resolved to discontinue the meetings of the club till next fall. It was also determined, as an appropriate close to the winter's work, to give a banquet to the members and their friends, and next Monday night in Keller's hall was fixed upon as the time and place. After appointing committees to make the necessary arrangements for the banquet, the meeting adjourned. The program of entertainment in connection with the banquet will be published later.

THE CHRONICLE is indebted to the Portland "Bureau of Publicity and Promotion," whatever that may be, for an urgent invitation to be present at the reception that will be tendered Hon. W. J. Bryan in Portland on the 4th of April and "to occupy a seat upon the platform with the speaker at the great exposition auditorium." THE CHRONICLE is compelled to decline the honor. A front seat on a Bryan Platform, facing the "magnificent conclave" that the "Bureau of Publicity and Promotion" so hopefully expects would turn the poor thing's head. The cool, sequestered shade of sound and true Republican methods and doctrines is more becoming to our style of beauty.

THE CHRONICLE said yesterday, speaking of A. S. Blowers, Republican candidate for county judge, that if he were beaten in the race it must be by Republican votes. Let no one read anything between the lines. THE CHRONICLE is not dreaming of any candidate being beaten by Republican votes, let alone Mr. Blowers, who is one of the strongest men on an unusually strong ticket. On the contrary, Mr. Blowers will get the full strength of his party and that is all he needs. But mark this prediction: If the opinion of Mr. Blowers' friends in Hood River is worth anything, that gentleman will come up from there next June with the largest Hood River vote ever given to any candidate for a county office.

Dr. Biggs, Dr. McGiffert and all their school of Biblical critics profess even greater veneration for christianity than they had before they assailed its authoritative and dogmatic foundation, says the New York Sun; but none the less they have set out to destroy all the evidence on which its supernatural claims are based. Men will not believe that a book is the special word of God when they are taught to distrust it as full of human error and limited by the capacity of the human mind to discover truth; when they are told by scholars, in whose authority they repose confidence, that the documents of which it is composed are of a doubtful authenticity or authorship. Of course not. The greatest battle in history of the supernatural religion is before us, unless the churches are prepared to surrender to the enemy in advance of hostilities.

The office of justice of the peace in The Dalles was for many years quite a nice little snap for those who held it. The income may have been overestimated, but it is reasonably certain that for years it yielded to its possessor all the way from $1200 to $2000 a year. From various causes it has fallen till at present no man can afford to fill the office and pay office rent unless he has some other source of income. This will probably be doubted by many and be a surprise to more, but here are the figures as compiled from Mr. Bayard's books by the present justice, Mr. Timothy Brownhill. Since July 1, 1898, when Mr. Bayard took office, till date, 38 civil and 69 criminal cases were adjudicated. The average fees, according to the justice out of these cases, Mr. Brownhill estimates at $4.25 each, or a total for twenty months of $446.25, or an average of $22.30 a month. Deduct from this $10 a month for rent and you see what a plutocratic income a Dalles justice of the peace has.

From Jack Tunney, of Antelope, who arrived in town yesterday, we learn that rapid progress is being made on buildings and other works in the new town of Shaniko. About 100 men are employed on the various works. The offices of the townsite company and that of the projected paper, the Shaniko Lumber, which comprise one building, were ready for the roof. The foundation was being laid for the big store of Pease & Mays, and Bolton & Co., of Antelope, were having lumber hauled for a big rival store. Report had it that a third party, from the valley, would put in still another general merchandise store.
