THE ACT OF A SHREWD BUSINESS MAN.

The Telegram says "Congressman Moody will be unanimously renominated and re-elected, as he is a very active, capable business man," but the Telegram thinks Mr. Moody would have been stronger among the people of the second congressional district if he had voted against the Puerto Rican tariff bill. The CHRONICLE doubts very much if Mr. Moody would have strengthened himself among thinking Republicans, here or elsewhere, if, at the very outset of his congressional career, he had set up his judgment against that of his Republican colleagues, gone off on a tangent and voted with the Democrats. An older member may do with impunity what a younger member does at the risk of his future usefulness and influence in the councils of his party. Legislative usefulness consists, to a large extent, in having the confidence and affection of one's colleagues. Who is more likely to command legislative favors, Moody, Tongue and McBride, who supported their Republican colleagues when, as they believed, a great principal was at stake, or Simon who deserted them and went over to the enemy? Apart from the merits of the question involved in the bill Mr. Moody acted the part of the shrewd, "capable" business man that he is. He stood by his Republican colleagues when they needed him; they will stand by him when he needs them. When a congressman's head swells out so big that he pits himself against the united wisdom of his party the good that he might accomplish through his party is at an end. But the action of Messrs. Moody, Tongue and McBride is not defended on the mere ground of expediency. The bill is now published broadcast and the man who carefully notes its provisions can conclude how far Democratic and Republican opposition was justified in exhausting the vocabulary of abuse in condemning it. It is a practical free trade measure. Every cent of tax collected under it will be spent upon the islanders. It is in no sense the offspring of the clamor of the sugar and tobacco trusts. The world knows no instance of a trust asking for protected raw materials. The tax will fall on those who are best able to bear it, and not to any appreciable extent upon the "storm-swept and starving" Puerto Ricans. Every man who voted for the bill, rightly or wrongly, believed that a direct tax, under existing conditions, would have been impossible and oppressive; and the result is a measure that in point of consideration and generosity has hardly an equal in the annals of legislation. It is in no sense a permanent policy. When a territorial government is established in the island and the legislative assembly of Puerto Rico shall have put in operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of the government it will then become the duty of the president to issue a proclamation abolishing all tariff restrictions between the island and the mainland. And this is the bill that the Oregonian has been patting Senator Simon on the back for opposing and over which Bryanite orators and a Bryanized press have been tearing their hair in a frenzy! The day will come when an intelligent and candid populace will own before the world that it took more Republican courage to stand up and be counted for such a measure, in the teeth of the mad and unreasoning clamor against it, than it took to yield to popular clamor and vote with the opposition.

The Albany Democrat notes with astonishment, if not with alarm, that a Democratic candidate for a Linn county office was seen the other day in a Democratic convention with a "white ribbon boldly pinned on his coat," indicating his temperance principles. What is the world coming to anyway?

Did you ever hear how Mr. — of — street came to buy a wheel for his wife? Well, he came home one evening, and saw her sitting on the balustrade of the porch, as shown in the picture. He made up his mind then and there that she would look just too sweet for anything on a bicycle. And she does. But the kind of bicycle has a good deal to do with looking sweet. So if you want to look sweet, buy your wheel (as did Mr. —) of the agent for
