COURAGE OR CONSAQUINITY.

"Who are these 'Puerto Ricans' who are interested in the removal of the duty on tobacco (for instance), and how does the bill affect them?" asks a writer in the Salem Statesman and then proceeds to answer as follows:

"The Tobacco Leaf," a trade paper published in New York, devoted to the interests of the wholesale and retail tobacco trade, contains the following advertisement in its issue of April 4th:

The Cream of the 1900 Crop is Ours. The Steadily Increasing Sale of Our Porto Rico Tobacco Has Necessitated the Securing of Two Additional Packing Houses. All Our Tobaccos Are Packed in Havana Style Only. Levi, Blumenthal & Co., 118-120 Maiden Lane, New York. Warehouses in Porto Rico at Caguas and San Juan.

Consaquinity may have had something to do with Senator Simon's vote. "Blood is thicker than water," and it is only natural that Simon should have a friendly feeling for Levi and be easily "influenced" to see the "justice" of the demand for free trade with those suffering Puerto Ricans of 118 120 Maiden Lane, New York, and so he towered aloft in the senate and "courageously" voted against his Republican colleagues, and allied himself (not for the first time) with the opposition. In other words, in order to accommodate Levi he betrayed his party, just as he did in bygone days to accommodate Barney, whose surname is Goldsmith, and his motive was just as lofty.

"Tobacco Leaf," in its editorial columns, commenting upon a section of the bill giving importers certain privileges, says:

"It is not conceivable that the house, or the committees through whose hands the bill must eventually pass, will interfere in any way with this just provision, which we believe was secured by the timely and intelligent action of one of our leading Porto Rico tobacco importing firms."

Is there any stronger testimony needed as to the motive behind the attempt to defeat the Puerto Rican tariff bill? And it was partially successful. The reduction from 25 to 15 per cent. of the regular tariff was a present of an immense amount of money to the Puerto Ricans of Maiden Lane, New York, who farm the tobacco farmers of the island of Puerto Rico, and did the latter do good whatever.

And Senator Simon had the magnificent "courage" to vote in favor of knocking off the other 15 per cent.

Democratic success, says the Salt

Lake Tribune, which was intensely Bryanite four years ago, always means depression in business, ruin to thousands, the closing of factories in this country and increased activity for them in England and the consequent filling of this country with idle men and the assembling of vast "industrial armies;" that is, masses of men who want to be industrious but are debarred by Democratic policies. So well is this understood that some years ago to say that a business enterprise had "gone Democratic" was recognized as the same thing as saying that it had failed. The experience of the country with Republican prosperity following the long gloom of Democratic business depression all over the country has given emphasis to that saying.

The Democratic contention is that the constitution runs in every inch of territory belonging to the United States. Be it so for the sake of argument. Then the constitution runs in Puerto Rico, and if it runs there it runs in the Philippines, and if it runs in the Philippines, the Philippines are an integral part of the United States. But if the Philippines are an integral part of the United States, by what authority do Bryan and Oregon Democrats propose to tear down the flag and abandon the islands? If the constitution cannot be controlled in the matter of its extension, who has the power to control it in the matter of its contraction?
