WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

The last dancing lessons to children will be given by Prof. Sandvig at the Baldwin tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Columbia Bock beer will be on draught next Saturday. It is guaranteed to be the best brewing ever placed on tap in this city.

Oom Paul has in the field four sons, thirty-three grandsons and six sons-in-law, and is ready to take up a gun himself when the question gets up to Pretoria.

H. J. Maier received a telegram today from North Ontario, Calif., announcing the death of Walter McNeal, son of the late Rudolph McNeal. The funeral and burial will take place at Pomona, Cal.

The Hood River Glacier says Hon. E. L. Smith will start next Sunday on a trip to Eastern Oregon to inspect the orchards as far east as Malheur county, in his capacity as president of the state board of horticulture.

The ridge in the neighborhood of Nantene had a snow storm yesterday which lasted most of the day. Had it not melted as soon as it fell, the ground would have been covered with a blanket three or four inches thick.

Horatio Fargher came in from Chenoweth creek today, where he had been marking a crop of lambs for his brother, Tom, the increase of which was 100 per cent. Horatio's own increase at home on the Tygh ridge is a round 100 per cent.

Counterfeit dollars are in circulation here, but to what extent is not known. One was palmed off on Deputy Sheriff Sexton this morning. He was able to trace it to the deputy county clerk, but as Sim vowed he got it from one of the Dalles preachers no arrests were made.

There were 903 post-offices in 1800; today we have 75,000—that is, in America alone. It took a letter sixteen days to go from Philadelphia to Lexington, Kentucky; twenty-two days to Nashville, Tennessee. The cheapest letter postage was eight cents, and to send a letter more than a hundred miles cost a shilling. Three million letters and papers were then sent in a year. At the present time the postoffice handles about 30,000,000 pieces of mail in a single day.—May Ladies' Home Journal.

The Albany, with Captain Johnston at the wheel, successfully made the trip this forenoon up Three-Mile rapids to the big eddy and return. It was a thrilling sight to close watchers on the shore to see the boat on the upward trip struggle with the angry cross-currents of the rapids, hanging on by her teeth as it were, and at times standing apparently stock still. Above and below the rapids was easy sailing. The boat was empty, but so confident is Captain Johnston that he can repeat the trip loaded that an attempt may be made this afternoon, probably before this appears in print, to repeat the trip and land a small load of railroad ties near the terminus of the portage road.

Justice Prather's court had a big trial on hand last Friday, when Dr. W. L. Adams and wife sued A. P. Bateham for payment of $80 on notes given for rent of land, defendant claiming that the notes were annulled by the terms of a new lease, when ten acres of clover were traded for ten acres of strawberry land. Distinguished counsel was employed by Dr. Adams in the person of ex-Senator J. H. Mitchell. W. H. Wilson, of The Dalles, and Judge Kent, of Hood River, appeared for defendant. Judge Prather held his decision till Monday evening, when he decided for plaintiff.—Hood River Glacier.

The D. P. & A. N. company's new steamer Reliance with a number of stockholders and a couple of newspaper men made a nine mile trip down the river yesterday afternoon. The round trip was made in 59 minutes. The down trip was made in 26½ minutes, or at the rate of twenty miles an hour, and the return in 32½, or a fraction over sixteen miles. During part of the return trip the run was made on a quarter cut of, perceptibly lessening the speed equal to an estimated delay of about 3 minutes. The little seamer rode the water like a duck, and it is a safe prediction that she will be quite popular with the traveling public. It is expected that she will be ready for business next Tuesday morning.

According to a note received from Belmont, a prominent citizen of that place has the chicken fever bad—so bad that he is broody. The note says: "M. P. Isenberg has heard that if you set a white chicken's eggs under a black hen the young chicks will have black feathers; so he has purchased a red incubator and a red brooder and will try raising red chickens. He has moved to the barn, where he has set his incubator, and he can be found at any time of the day or night sitting before the machine watching the thermometer to keep the heat just right. If everything goes right he expects to have it regulated so he can trust the first setting of eggs by May 15th. His family carries his meals to him in the barn."—Glacier.

An Indian agent, who was a militia colonel, desired to impress the Indians with the magnitude of his dignity. He dressed himself in full uniform, with his sword by his side, and, rising in the council, told them that one reason why the Great Father had had so much trouble with his red children was that he had sent civilians to them. "You are warriors," he said, "and I when the Great Father saw me he said: 'I will send this man, who is a great warrior, to my red children, who are warriors, and they will hear his words.'" An old chief arose, and, surveying the speaker from head to foot, said calmly: "Since I was a small boy I have heard that white men have great warriors. I have always wanted to see one. I have looked upon one, and now I am ready to die."

The recorder's office is in mourning, the city government is temporarily suspended and all municipal affairs, save works of necessity and mercy, are temporarily at a stand still. Ned Gates has lost his dog, a handsome and intelligent spaniel who acted the part of companion, counselor and friend to our bachelor recorder. The dog followed his master yesterday as he made one of the party who went down the river on the Reliance. To keep the animal from mischief, Ned shut him up in a toilet room and somebody unwittingly let him out. While seeking his master, who was on the bow, the dog fell overboard. The boat was opposite Lyle at the time, on the return trip, and it is probable the beast was able to make his way to the shore. Ned left on the boat this morning on an effort to find him. LATER—The dog is found. The habits of mourning in the recorder's office have been torn down and the municipal government has resumed its normal sway. Ned found his favorite sitting pensively on the bank of the river near Lyle landing. He was a very hungry dog, but was otherwise O. K. Ned and he made the trip back on foot.

It is not always safe to bank on catching old birds with chaff, but it can be done once in a while, the proverb to the contrary notwithstanding. Three well-known business men of The Dalles met on the street yesterday afternoon. One of them had been at the Passion Play the night before and had preserved his seat checks. By way of a mere joke he said to the others: "Boys, if you want to go to the Passion Play tonight I will let you have a couple of tickets at half price," handing out the seat checks. The "boys," who are old enough to be grandfathers, innocently snapped at the bargain and handed out the money. "Now," said the ticket-seller, "since you have got such a bargain you can afford to treat." The elder of the two, a man of over 60, said: "All right. Treat goes," and in they went to a cigar store, or somewhere. "When the 'treat' had been disposed of the other ticket buyer said: 'Let's have another dose.'" "No, thanks," said the ticket seller; "that enough today. We'll see you later." Not till the two innocents had presented their checks at the door of the play house did they find they had been neatly sold, and then they had to hunt up somebody to lend them the money to buy tickets.

The Dalles Commission House will keep fresh milk at all times on hand and deliver it anywhere in the city at the following prices: One quart, 2¢ per month; three pints, 3¢; two quarts, 4¢; three quarts, 5¢; cream 20 cents per pint. Fresh butter every day. 18a-1m

THAT RAILROAD PLANK.

Judge Bennett Claims the Democratic Convention Did Adopt It and That He Supported It, the Oregonian to the Contrary Notwithstanding.

EDITOR CHRONICLE: In your issue of yesterday is an article attacking the labor plank in the Democratic platform, which is being circulated, and doubting its authenticity.

I was a member of the committee and sub-committee on platform in the Democratic state convention, and know whereof I speak. In the convention a platform committee of one from each county in the state was appointed, and this committee appointed a sub-committee of five to prepare and submit draft of platform. A representative of the railroad men appeared before that committee and submitted, on behalf of the railroad men, the plank in question. Some of the members of the sub-committee objected to the plank and a substitute was prepared, which is the short plank referred to by you. When the matter was referred to the full committee, the substitute was voted down and the original plank as prepared and submitted by the railroad men was substituted. The platform was then reported to the convention. On the floor of the convention an attempt was again made to amend the platform by substituting the short plank prepared in the sub-committee for the railroad plank. This amendment was voted down almost unanimously, and the platform, including the railroad plank as offered by the railroad men, was adopted.

The misunderstanding of the proceedings grew out of the fact that the Oregonian reporter, by inadvertence I assume, got the matter mixed up and reported the substitute as the original. The reason why the Democratic press of the state generally fell into the same mistake is because we have no Democratic daily paper published at Portland, and the platform was therefore generally copied from the Oregonian, with the mistake included. The official platform has only just now been published, and I presume the mistake will at once be corrected in the Democratic papers.

I enclose to you a copy of the official platform under the certificate of the chairman and secretary of the convention. If my word and the certificate of these officers are not altogether satisfactory to you, I will cheerfully furnish any number of affidavits from delegates and bystanders (including railroad men).

I did not oppose this plank in the convention, as stated by the Oregonian. On the contrary I favored it strongly, in the sub-committee, in the general committee, and also in the open convention, as everyone knows who was there. The plank in question, as I understand it, is being circulated by the railroad men themselves, rather than by politicians. It is the railroad men's own plank. If there is anything wrong with it, I shall not blame you for attacking it, but I am sure that now the matter is fully explained, your spirit of fairness will lead you to withdraw any charge of underhanded dealing in the matter.

Very Truly Yours,
A. S. BENNETT.
