

ST. PATRICK ALL RIGHT

The English Church Is Going to Make a Protestant Saint of Him—The Divine Right of an Irishman to Wear Kilts.

LONDON, April 28.—Though the queen has returned to England and her remarkable visit to Ireland is now a matter of history, the latest fad shows no signs of abatement. Royalty's presence in Erin failed to make Irishmen flauntingly English, but, curiously enough, made Englishmen annoyingly Irish. Or this phase, which began by the universal wearing of the shamrock, there have been several striking examples this week.

The lower house of the York Convocation, composed of sedate clergy and laymen of the Church of England's northern diocese, has adopted resolutions to put St. Patrick upon the pages of the prayer book, from which he was unaccountably missing. St. Andrew is there, but Erin's patron saint was omitted when the reformers re-edited the liturgy.

On a par with this action is the agitation in England over Irishmen's right to wear kilts. Upon this momentous question Hon. William Gibson, son of Baron Ashbourne, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, has been lecturing to large audiences in London, dressed in the picturesque, abbreviated garb generally associated with Scotchmen. He makes an impassioned plea for the divine right of Hibernians to wear kilts. Mr. Gibson is a learned young man who married a French woman and consistently resides in England.

Now there is talk of making the new Irish Guards' Brigade masquerade in kilts, though the reports which have come from South Africa, telling of the bare-legged Highlanders and of the sorrows which are attached to this out-of-date uniform, are recent enough to banish the suggestion into the long list of foolish absurdities. It is probable that the war office will take that view.

In consonance with the queen's personal wishes, as many as possible of the new Guards' Regiment will be mustered for the usual birthday trooping of colors and review ceremonies in London on May 23d. This cannonizing and killing would be merely humorous if the impartial onlooker forgot the misery, poverty and stagnation of industries that prevail throughout Southern and Western Ireland; but in view of the conditions that exist in that portion of the British Isles, the so-called shamrock craze in England can scarcely be considered anything but another instance on the part of the majority of England's people of their complete failure to grasp the nature of Ireland's needs, however well-meant and generous may be these outward, skin-deep signs of friendship.

TURKEY MUST GIVE WAY

The Sultan Has Fallen Back On the Desperate Debtor's Last Device.

LONDON, April 28.—American complications with Turkey continue the topic of the day. The Outlook, after declaring the sultan and Isaac Gordon, the notorious money-lender, who died recently, were own brothers in matters of money, says:

"The sultan has now fallen back on the desperate debtor's last device of buying more, and has offered to place an order for a warship with an American firm if only the American government will accord him a while longer. But the American government will do nothing of the sort, and grimly intimates that unless the dollars are promptly forthcoming, the matter will be put in the hands of the United States navy. Yet President McKinley's candidature may not, after all, enjoy immense help from a naval demonstration in European waters, for the European powers who are fellow-sufferers with America and Armenia are, in wholesome imitation, taking steps to press their claims, and under such pressure Turkey must give way. Russia, it is true, is holding aloof, but, menaced by Japan, she is hardly likely to lend Turkey more than diplomatic help."

During the course of a long article, the speaker maintains that the difficulty is chiefly due to the exploitation of the continental and American press, and ridicules the possibility of a serious outcome, saying:

"The devil's shadow promises to rebuild, punish, tax and to do a hundred things, but pay he cannot. Thereupon his vision conjured up Admiral Dewey, of all people, sailing into the Mediterranean and occupying one of those ports, for the virtual neutrality of which the great European powers are willing to risk the chances of a great war among themselves. It is on a par with the boycott of the French exhibition or the Don Pacifico claim."

"TARIF" Wilson's View.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 29.—William L. Wilson, author of the Wilson tariff bill, while in this city en route from Hot Springs to Nebraska City, Neb., where he is to be the guest of J. Sterling Morton, his associate in Cleveland's cabinet, said:

"It is to be McKinley and Bryan. Mr. Cleveland will not allow his name to be mentioned, and Dewey will not get an opportunity to see himself voted down. "Bryan will be nominated, but conditions are so changed that the campaign will be on new lines. Both sides have so many new conditions to confront that the old tactics will not do. I think the Democrats will win. We shall go into the fight solid."

Mr. Wilson gave expression to his views regarding the candidacy of Admiral Dewey. "He is innocent of the game of politics," he said, "and has blundered in his bluntness as blunt people often do. He will blunder out of it again as suddenly as he came in. Dewey does things suddenly. He generally anticipates, and when the row is at its height he will surprise everybody by sailing away, or I am mistaken in the man."

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store. Every bottle guaranteed. 3

Sentiment in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, April 29.—Joseph A. Parker, of Louisville, states that there will be over 1000 delegates here next week for the national convention of the Middle-of-the-Road Populists. Parker and others have been here in charge of the arrangements for some weeks. They will remain until after the convention is over, and they expect to be joined before the convention meets by other leaders.

The Middle-of-the-Roaders who meet here are those who insisted on running Watson for president four years ago, and who broke from the fusion element of the Populists, led by Senators Butler, Allen and others, at the meeting of the national committee in Lincoln, Neb., last February. The talk among those who are here now is mostly for Barker, although some want to draft Watson against his protest, and still more favor the in-forement of Eugene V. Debs.

"Potato" Pingree Turned Democrat.

DETROIT, April 29.—Governor Pingree asserted in an interview today that the hope of the people in this year's general elections is in the Democratic party. The governor has always hitherto been an independent Republican. Speaking of the increasing power of trusts, Governor Pingree said:

"There is no use in hoping that the Republican party will do anything with them."

"Are you preparing to announce your withdrawal from the Republican party?" the governor was asked.

"There is no announcement about it. I only say what I have said all the while. You have not heard me say anything against the Democrats for some time. I believe that the hope of the people is in the Democratic party this fall."

Parsons & Co., druggists of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. A COWBOY'S ADVICE.

He Gave a Show-Struck Young Miss a Much-Needed, Fatherly Lecture.

One of the principal riders of the wild west show whose dashing and dangerous feats in the ring won the plaudits of thousands of people daily is a great favorite with the matinee girls. This young man one Saturday figured in a little scene that was not down on the bills, says the Chicago Evening News.

It was after the regular afternoon performance and this modern cavalier was preparing to make some change in his costume that he might appear in the street, when the flap of his tent was drawn timidly back and a young girl, pretty, and not more than 15 years old, stood inside gazing with admiration on this handsome cowboy.

"Well, little girl, is there anything I can do for you?" he asked, as he unbuckled the revolver belt from his waist. The girl stood for a moment too frightened to speak, but at last she burst into tears and confessed her admiration for the rough rider. She further said she had attended the show every afternoon and several evenings since it had been here, that she wanted to run away from home and go along with the show.

During the recital the crack rider of the wild west show sat on the end of a box quietly smoking a cigarette. "See here! You need some good advice," said he, when she had finished. "You are at just that age when some one ought to give you a lecture. You seem to have fallen in love with a man you know nothing about. So just fall out again and remember you've been a little fool. Why, I've a daughter of my own just about your age."

THEIR OPINION OF HIM.

A Blow-Hard Government Clerk Who Tried to Make an Impression Upon Indians.

Last winter a delegation of Indians from a far western state, on a tour of inspection through the interior department, visited the land office, where they were introduced to the clerk who had special charge of their section of the country, a bumptious little individual with a big head. This official proceeded to overpower the redmen with his importance, says a Washington correspondent in the New York Tribune. Grasping each one of them cordially by the hand, he patted them patronizingly on their backs and then delivered a long speech, explaining in detail the work of the office, their interest in it, laying particular stress on the fact that he was the motive power of it all. As soon as their entertainer paused for breath the visiting Indians began to grunt and talk among themselves.

"What are they saying?" asked the egotistical clerk, expecting to hear high praise of himself. "Tell me what they are saying."

"I cannot tell you," replied the interpreter; "it was not for you to hear." But the little man insisted, and with great reluctance the interpreter finally yielded. "They said," he translated, "Little man, big head, heap talk, say nothing, much fool."

TO PROTECT ELECTRICIANS.

Employees Must Work with One Hand In Their Pockets to Prevent Accidents.

In power houses where big dynamos are running and heavy cables carrying powerful currents of electricity are all around great care has to be exercised to prevent the workmen from killing themselves through carelessness. Familiarity with danger sooner or later results in lack of caution, and experienced electricians are not infrequently badly shocked, if not killed, by carelessly touching an object they well know should be avoided. To correct this, says the Philadelphia Record, a plan has been adopted in several large power houses. It is neither arduous nor complicated, but it has worked well. It is simply to compel every employe to work with one hand in his pocket except when his duties absolutely require the use of both. Keeping one hand in the pocket not only keeps it out of danger, but also maintains the impression in the mind that danger exists when both hands are free. It has the same effect as the string tied around a man's finger who has been told to do something he must not forget. One hand always in the pocket is a valuable reminder not to place it anywhere else unless a particular duty requires it.
