AN ALARMING ULTIMATUM.

The women suffrage movement has its amusing features as well as those that are soberly serious. A short time ago THE CHRONICLE received a marked copy of the New York Sun, in which a suffragist writer gave elaborate statistics to prove that the granting of equal rights to women had always resulted in a marked increase of population, and that if the Oregonians were to increase and multiply in any ratio commensurate with the great natural resources of the state the proper thing to do was to give the Oregon women the ballot. And right in line with this came along a short extract from a speech lately delivered at a women suffrage meeting in Kansas by Miss Louise Evelyn Lease—daughter of her mother—who said to the men folks in her audience: "You men must give us the ballot. You all have been used to saying, 'The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world,' but I say to you, gentlemen, if you do not keep your promise there will be no cradle to rock and no babies to put in them."

This would be really alarming were we not assured that it must have been spoken in the thoughtless impetuosity of youth. We may say this confidently for, as another has suggested, since the spheres first commenced to sing together in the heavens this baby question has been so wholly disconnected from politics that the two haven't even a speaking acquaintance. Do these good sisters really think that the amiable old doctor with the basket, or the storks that roost above the chimney pot, or the stars that shoot from the space above, or Saint Peter nodding at the celestial gate can be influenced by a slip of names on a ballot with an X mark to the right of them?

DEMOCRATIC EXPANSION.

The expansion map of the United States shows that the democrats expanded in 1803 and, without the consent of the governed, added 565,166,680 acres to the original thirteen states. They expanded again in 1814 and, forcibly and without the consent of the governed, added 44,436,000 more. They expanded again in 1805-11-19 and, without the consent of the governed, added 184,760,960 acres more. They expanded again in 1835-45 and added 242,285,840 acres more. They expanded again in 1848 and, forcibly and without the consent of the governed, added 234,443,520 acres more. They expanded again in 1853 and, without the consent of the governed, added 29,142,400 acres more. And finally in 1860 they attempted to expand and, without the consent of the governed, add the island of Cuba to the list of our possessions. Thus of the 1,922,037,800 acres of American territory lying between the Atlantic and the Pacific, and between the British possessions and the gulf, 1,400,385,800 acres, or nearly two acres out of three, have been added to the original thirteen states by democratic expansion, some of it forcibly and nearly all of it without the consent of the governed. And now the degenerate sons of a vigorous ancestry are exhausting the vocabulary of abuse in condemning republicans for doing precisely what the democrats have never failed to do when they had the chance!

The Transvaal and Orange Free State want to be annexed, and our esteemed contemporary sarcastically suggests that McKinley has a splendid show to buy another war. Let us see. Didn't the Oregon democrats have something in their state platform about sympathy for the Boers "in their noble and brave struggle for liberty and national existence." And did not that, if it meant anything but pure buncombe, mean that the democrats were willing to "buy another war" with England in the hope of catching certain Irish and German votes? Democratic sympathy is a mighty cheap commodity unless the democrats are willing to back it up with brawn and muscle.

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN. All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies, but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parsons & Co., druggists of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
