

Do You Cough?

"I guess I used to be like everybody else. When I caught cold, I just let it alone, thinking it would cure itself in a few days; of course the coughing and spitting of mucus sometimes lasted several weeks, but after a while the trouble would subside. I always noticed, however, that each cold was worse than the one before. My throat seemed to get weaker, and the least change in the weather started the coughing again. The last cold was the most severe of all. I was really frightened. Cough drops and home treatment did no good. A friend told me about Acker's English Remedy. I got a bottle, and you never saw the like of the way it acted. Before the bottle was gone I was well. My throat felt as strong and well as could be. Since then I have had no more trouble. I think Acker's English Remedy so strengthens the delicate lining of the throat that it easily resists the changes in temperature, and builds up the constitution as well."

Means, "Rather dead than blind" blindness in most cases is the result of a neglected trivial illness of the eye. Many a person now blind could enjoy good eyesight had it not been that the eyes were neglected when the first sign of disease appeared. Cataract and Glaucoma, two of the most dangerous diseases, are in most cases due to negligence in the care of the eyes. Theo. H. Liebe, of the firm of J. E. UNIQUE POOR FARM.

Has Had But One Pauper to Care For in Fourteen Years.

An Evidence of the Prosperous Condition of Kansas—The Institution Has Plenty of Help and Money.

Kansas officials say that Kansas has fewer paupers according to its population, than any other state in the union. While it is admitted that Kansas once "went broke" and was an object of charity, the people of Kansas now say they have "money to burn" and that there is an occupation for everybody within the borders of the state. Kansas was once swept by grasshoppers, but that was in the dead and forgotten past. The Kansas of to-day is an entirely different state. An example of the present prosperous condition of the state has just come to the surface, says the New York Herald. In 1886 Finney county spent $23,000 for a county poor farm, and during the 14 years since there has been but one pauper to take care of.

The years '86 and '87 were the years of "hard times" in Kansas. The state was overrun with tramps and beggars. Through a succession of crop failures the farmers had become bankrupt. Their money had been used up, and many of them—most of them, in fact—were in actual need of the necessities of life. The failure of the farmers had a resultant effect upon the merchants and business men in the towns and cities. To express the situation tritely Kansas was "dead broke." It was about this time that Coxey raised his "army of the unemployed" in Kansas and started with it on a march to Washington to "demand" relief from the national lawgivers.

Together with many other counties of the state Finney county voted to provide a big poor farm, which would give employment and shelter to the large number of unemployed. After the vote had been submitted and carried, the county commissioner purchased from A. H. Burtis, afterward representative from that county, a tract of 292 acres of rich land. The price paid for the land was $16,000. Seven thousand more was put into the farm for improvements, making a total of $23,000. The farm was divided into a large number of smaller farms, and on each sub-farm was erected a house large enough to accommodate a dozen persons or more. Each sub-farm was under the control of a sub-superintendent.

Having thus made elaborate preparations for the shelter, care and employment of its paupers, the county waited in vain for many years for an applicant. It so happened that the year following the purchase of the poor farm was a very prosperous one, especially in Finney county. There was an immense crop, money was plentiful, and there was employment for everyone who wanted it. The same condition has existed ever year since. In all these years only one man has ever applied for care at the county poor farm of Finney county. He was an old man by the name of Henry Hook. He only remained there a few months during the severe winter weather, after which, having secured a position, he left. He is now employed in a hotel at Garden City, the county seat of Finney county.

Charles Adams was the first man placed in charge of the poor farm of Finney county. He had been a farmer who, through crop failures, had lost his farm. He contracted with the county commissioners to assume charge of the farm, to take care of all paupers applying for care without expense to the county, paying the expenses out of the proceeds of the farm. As no paupers applied he had no expenses to meet. Although perfectly honest with the county, he made a fortune out of his contract. One day it leaked out that Adams had saved up a bank account of something over $25,000 out of the proceeds of the county farm. A row was started, and the county commissioners removed him. A closer contract was made with the next superintendent, but he also made a fortune out of it, and was removed under pressure from the outside. Then the county commissioners made a contract with the probate judge of the county to act as superintendent of the poor farm, he to be paid an additional salary for such superintendence, to have rent for himself and family free and to turn the proceeds from the farm into the county treasury. Since the time of this contract the income from the poor farm has ranged from $1,000 to $7,000 annually to the county. This is the condition of the poor farm of Finney county to-day. It is still awaiting paupers. The present superintendent is Probate Judge J. E. Dawson. He lives there with his family, but being busy with his official duties he has a sub-superintendent to look after the farm. The poor farm is located about three miles out of Garden City.
