BLOOD POISON.

Mercury
AND Potash
Make Wrecks,
Not Cures

In some cases the external signs of Contagious Blood Poison are so slight that the victim is firmly within the grasp of the monster before the true nature of the disease is known. In other cases the blood is quickly filled with this poisonous virus and the swollen glands, mucus patches in the mouth, sores on scalp, ulcers on tongue, sore throat, eruptions on skin, copper colored splotches, and falling hair and eyebrows leave no room for doubt, as these are all unmistakable signs of Contagious Blood Poison. Doctors still prescribe mercury and potash as the only cure for Blood Poison. These poisonous minerals never yet made a complete and permanent cure of Contagious Blood Poison. They drive the disease back into the system, cover it up for a while, but it breaks out again in worse form. These powerful minerals produce mercurial rheumatism and the most offensive sores and ulcers, causing the joints to stiffen and finger nails to drop off. Mercury and potash make wrecks, not cures, and those who have been dosed with these drugs are never after free from aches and pain. S. S. S. acts in an entirely different manner, being a purely vegetable remedy; it forces the poison out of the system, and instead of tearing down, builds up and invigorates the general health. S. S. S. is the only antidote for this specific virus, and therefore the only cure for Contagious Blood Poison. No matter in what stage or how hopeless the case may appear, even though pronounced incurable by the doctors, S. S. S. can be relied upon to make a rapid, permanent cure. S. S. S. is not a new, untried remedy; an experience of nearly fifty years has proven it a sure and unfailing cure for this disease. It is the only purely vegetable blood medicine known.

Mr. H. L. Myers, 100 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do me no good, I had spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved, and was delighted with the result. The large, red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass."

ENDED HIS OWN LIFE

Conscience Made a Coward of Murderer
Moss—Last Chapter of a Tragedy—
Stricken With Terror for the Consequences of His Crime, He Effectually Escaped Hanging.

OREGONIAN, June 3.—Riley L. Moss, the man who murdered his wife in Wilmette Heights Park Thursday night, put an end to his earthly troubles last evening by sending a bullet through his own heart. He had carried the burden of his awful crime for two days. Then, forgetting what might be beyond, in his mad desire to escape from conscience and from self, he used the one remaining borrowed bullet to close the last chapter in his eventful life.

At 7:30 o'clock he entered the Silver State lodging-house, corner of Seventh and Washington streets. Passing along the hallway, he entered a closet in the rear, and there he killed himself. He is said to have been seen a short time before, sitting on the curbstone on Seventh street, just opposite the house, engaged in conversation with some one, but who this was could not be ascertained.

Moss did not have a room in the house, and was unknown to the occupants. He is supposed to have used the entrance and stairway leading from Seventh street.

Mrs. Lena Bordaraco, the landlady, states that she was in the kitchen, engaged in lighting a lamp, when she heard the report of a pistol. She immediately hurried in the direction from whence the sound came. She was unable to open the door leading to the closet, so she telephoned to the police station for assistance. Policeman Quinton was at once dispatched to the scene, and, on breaking in the door, discovered Moss lying on his back, dead.

Dudley Evans, who was sitting with his wife in a millinery store downstairs, heard of the occurrence, and sounded the alarm. Coroner Rand was summoned, and also the police patrol wagon. The news quickly spread, and soon a large crowd of people surrounded the building, and the question asked by everybody was, "Was it Moss?" The identity of the man had, up to this time, not been discovered, no examination of the body having been made, pending the arrival of the coroner. The crowd was therefore eager and expectant, but with the universal certainty of conjecture that it must surely have been Moss.

The people did not have long to wait, as Coroner Rand soon came, and a hurried investigation disclosed that the crowd had guessed correctly, and that Moss had paid the penalty of his awful crime.

A search of his clothing brought forth the picture of his wife, which he had carried in an inside coat pocket. An inspection of the revolver with which he had killed himself showed that it tallied with the description of the one recently purchased here by Moss, and persons who knew Moss were soon at hand and positively identified the remains. The dead man wore a gray coat and vest, black trousers, a checked shirt, bow tie, and a gray cap. These were the articles purchased of the second-hand dealer on Third street Tuesday morning.

A large crowd followed the remains to the morgue, where for an hour or two a throng of curious people filed in and out, viewing the lifeless form of the dead man.

Where Has He Been?

The detectives have been unable to tell just where Moss spent the time between Friday morning, when seen on Third street, and yesterday evening. Rumors were received from time to time at police headquarters that he had been seen, but the officers were unable to locate him or to find those who were sure they had seen him.

Only a few minutes before the report of the suicide had been received by the police, Detective Ford had been informed that Moss had been seen in the vicinity of the Silver State lodging-house. He was on his way there when he heard that the man he wanted had killed himself.

ONE NEGATIVE VOTE CAST

Littlefield Anti-Trust Bill Passed by the House—Mann of Illinois Voted "No."

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Only one vote was cast in the House today against the Littlefield anti-trust bill to amend the Sherman anti-trust act to make it more effective in the prosecution of trusts, their agents or attorneys. Mann (Rep., Ill.) cast the negative vote. The bill, according to the statements of the republican leaders, goes to the limit of the authority of congress under the constitution. All the democratic minority amendments, except one, were defeated. That was an amendment declaring that nothing in the act should be construed to apply to trades unions or labor organizations. All except eight republicans—Aldrich (Ala.), Allen and Littlefield (Me.), Bailey, Long and Calderhead (Kan.), and Cannon and Hitt (Ill.), voted for it.

The bill amends the Sherman anti-trust law so as to declare every contract or combination in the form of a trust or conspiracy in restraint of commerce among the states or foreign nations illegal, and every party to such act or combination guilty of a crime punishable by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $5000, and by imprisonment not less than six months nor more than two years. It provides that any person injured by a violation of the provisional provisions of the law may recover three-fold damages. The definition of "person" and "persons" in the recent law is enlarged so as to include the agents, officers or attorneys of corporations. For purposes of commerce it declares illegal all corporations or associations formed or carrying on business for purposes declared illegal by the common laws; provides that they may be perpetually enjoined from carrying on interstate commerce, and forbids them the use of the United States mails. It provides for the production of persons and papers, and confers jurisdiction upon United States Circuit and District courts for the trial of cases under it, and authorizes any person, firm, corporation or association to begin and prosecute proceedings under it.

Reported By Roberts.

LONDON, June 2.—A cablegram from Lord Roberts, dated Johannesburg, May 31st, but which was not dispatched from there until 8:30 a. m. of June 1st, has been received by the war office. It says: "The occupation of Johannesburg passed off quite satisfactorily, thanks to the excellent arguments made by Dr. Kraus, the Transvaal commandant here, and order prevailed throughout the town. Dr. Kraus met me on my entrance to Johannesburg, and rode by my side to the government offices, where he introduced me to the heads of the several departments, all of whom acceded to my request that they would continue to carry on their respective duties until they could be relieved of them."

Johannesburg is very empty, but a good crowd of people assembled in the main square by the time the British flag was being hoisted. A royal salute was fired, and three cheers for the queen were given. At the end of the ceremonies the Seventh and Eleventh divisions marched past with the naval brigade, the heavy artillery and two brigade divisions of the royal field artillery. Gen. Ian Hamilton's column and the cavalry division and mounted infantry were too far away to take part in the ceremony. The Fourteenth and naval brigades have been left in Johannesburg to preserve order, while the remainder of the force is encamped north of the town on the Pretoria road."

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

AGUINALDO OR HIS ADJUTANT SHOT

Companions Took Him Away—Richly Caparisoned Horse Was Left, With Saddle-Bags Containing Insurgent's Dairy and Papers.

VIGAN, Luzon, via Manila, June 3.—Major March, with his detachment of the Thirty-third regiment, overtook what is believed to have been Aginaldo's party on May 19, at Lagat, about 100 miles northeast of Vigan. The Americans killed or wounded an officer supposed to be Aginaldo, whose body was removed by his followers.

Aginaldo had 100 men, Major March 125, the American commander reaching La Boagan, where Aginaldo had made his headquarters since March 6, on May 7. Aginaldo had fled seven hours before leaving all the beaten trails and traveling through the forest along the beds of streams. Toward evening, May 19, Major March struck Aginaldo's outpost about a mile outside of Lagat, kill four Filipinos and capturing two. From the latter he learned that Aginaldo had camped there for the night, exhausted and half starved.

Major March's men entered Lagat on the run. They saw the insurgents scattering into the bushes or over the plateau. A thousand yards beyond the town, on the mountain side, the figures of 25 Filipinos dressed in white with their leader on a gray horse were silhouetted against the sunset. The Americans fired a volley, and saw the officer drop from his horse. His followers fled, carrying the body. The Americans on reaching the spot, caught the horse, which was richly saddled. Blood from a badly wounded man was on the animal and on the ground. The saddle-bags contained Aginaldo's diary and some private papers, including proclamations. One of these was addressed: "To the Civilized Nations." It protested against the American occupation of the Philippines. There was also found copies of Senator Beveridge's speech, translated into Spanish and entitled: "The Death Knell of the Filipino People."

Major March, believing that the Filipinos had taken to a river which is a tributary of the Chico, followed it for two days, reaching Tiao, where he learned that a party of Filipinos had descended the river May 20th on a raft with the body of a dead or wounded man upon a litter, covered with palm leaves. There Major March reviewed his command, shoeless and exhausted, and picked out twenty-four of the freshest men, with whom he beat the surrounding country for six days longer, but without finding any trace of the insurgents. The Americans pushed on, and arrived at Aparri May 29.

The officer shot was either Aginaldo or his adjutant, and as the horse was richly caparisoned it is a fair presumption that it was Aginaldo.

Fortunately, a friend advised 'Electric Bitters'; and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man.
