

Do You Cough?

"I guess I used to be like everybody else. When I caught cold, I just let it alone, thinking it would cure itself in a few days; of course the coughing and spitting of mucus sometimes lasted several weeks, but after a while the trouble would subside. I always noticed, however, that each cold was worse than the one before. My throat seemed to get weaker, and the least change in the weather started the coughing again. The last cold was the most severe of all. I was really frightened. Cough drops and home treatment did no good. A friend told me about Acker's English Remedy. I got a bottle, and you never saw the like of the way it acted. Before the bottle was gone I was well. My throat felt as strong and well as could be. Since then I have had no more trouble. I think Acker's English Remedy so strengthens the delicate lining of the throat that it easily resists the changes in temperature, and builds up the constitution as well."

FEMINE FRILLS.

The Latest in Lingerie and Fashionable Trifles for the Season's Costumes.

Shades of gray are charming in the new woolen materials which are to be seen for the new gowns. There are all sorts of pretty grenadine-like materials, similar to those worn in the sixties—loosely woven materials, but with body enough to drape excellently. Some of them are to be seen with pretty satin stripes, some with little embroidered figures, the small bow knots that never seem to grow old.

With the thought of the war in almost everything done nowadays in England, the bombon boxes of silver are no longer used to hold various small bombons, but are filled with "meat lozenges." They are fitted for the pocket, and are supposed to be just the thing for the soldier boy in time of need.

Pretty little handkerchiefs with a pattern woven in them somewhat after the way patterns are woven in damask for the table are now coming in. There are little bowknots, for instance, at intervals through the body of the handkerchief, and the table-linen effect is most noticeable in a damask-like band around the edge, and in which the pattern is set at regular intervals, as in a border.

Most of the shoppers from the big shops who purchase French lingerie are now abroad getting up the new stock, and this being just about between seasons, it is a good time for bargains in pretty underwear. There are many women who consider underwear their one extravagance. They do not care so much about their outside garments, but there is a certain delightful daintiness in wearing the prettiest and most attractive clothes out of sight. They feel that they dress for themselves, and it gives a certain feeling of self-respect and special pleasure. These women never dare to go near the underwear counters in the big shops when the contents of their purses are at a low ebb, for they simply cannot resist the pretty things displayed.

The drapery effect around the shoulders obtains in many things, especially where yokes are worn. Below the yoke of the open cape soft material or lace is draped entirely around the shoulders, and in tea gowns the same effect is used with good results.

Not every woman would like or would look well in an Empire wedding gown, but the gowns themselves are charming. One has a puffed yoke and sleeves, while from under the arms two broad pieces of lace are brought and fasten a little to the left of the bust, the ends hanging in soft folds to the lower edge of the skirt. This gown is finished without a collar at the throat, the top of the puffed yoke fitting snugly, with a cord set in.

Long Empire coats which have an air of distinction are knit-plaited in the skirt and have little jacket effects. In one of these the jacket differs from the skirt, being heavily embroidered, as are the sleeves. The back of the jacket is cut up a little in the center, and comes down in long points in the front.

Much tulle is to be used with straw this coming season, and many hats will be made in alternate rows of straw and tulle. A great deal of tulle taffeta will also be used, as it has been during the winter. The milliners are groaning because Easter comes so late this year. Very few women wear the old-time "Easter bonnet" to church on Easter day; it is not smart to do so, but at the same time Easter is the bonnet season, and its being late or early makes the spring millinery late or early. In good weather many of the smart women are out of town over Easter.—N. Y. Times.
