

Do You Cough?

"I guess I used to be like everybody else. When I caught cold, I just let it alone, thinking it would cure itself in a few days; of course the coughing and spitting of mucus lasted several weeks, but after a while the trouble would subside. I always noticed, however, that each cold was worse than the one before. My throat seemed to get weaker, and the least change in the weather started the coughing again. The last cold was the most severe of all. I was really frightened. Cough drops and home treatment did no good. A friend told me about Acker's English Remedy. I got a bottle, and you never saw the like of the way it acted. Before the bottle was gone I was well. My throat felt as strong and well as could be. Since then I have had no more trouble. I think Acker's English Remedy so strengthens the delicate lining of the throat that it easily resists the changes in temperature, and it builds up the constitution as well."

"Plutot mort qu'aveugle"

Means, "Rather dead than blind" blindness in most cases is the result of a neglected trivial illness of the eye. Many a person now blind could enjoy good eyesight had it not been that the eyes were neglected when the first sign of disease appeared. Cataract and Glaucoma, two of the most dangerous diseases, are in most cases due to negligence in the care of the eye. Theo. H. Liebe, of the firm of J. E. Adcox & Co., is a graduate of the Peoria Optical College, and the Bradley Polytechnic Institute. He will correct and diagnose all errors of refraction. Eyes examined free.

Queer Auctions.

The South African auction, which is vogue at the Cape, is a far more exciting affair than its English imitation. Supposing a house is to be sold. The auctioneer rattles 50 sovereigns and cries out: "Fifty golden sovereigns for the man who first bids £5,000." Nobody bids it. After a pause he cries: "Fifty golden sovereigns for the first man who bids £4,900." And so on, until he gets a bid. It by no means follows that the property is sold to this bidder. For the auctioneer is again at it. Suppose that £4,400 is the first bid. Then the auctioneer shouts: "There are 25 golden sovereigns for the first man who has the courage to bid $4,600." Possibly there is no bidder. Then £25 is offered for a bid of £4,550. If there is no bid eventually above the £4,400, the man who has made that offer is saddled with the property. Otherwise he pockets the bonus and has nothing more to do with the estate.

Unique Plan to Exclude Chinese.

Either the queque or the Chinaman will have to leave the mines in British Columbia. The parliament has under consideration a peculiar Chinese exclusion act. The province hesitates to pass a direct act against the subjects of a friendly power, so this will be "an act to regulate the length of hair worn by employes in mines."—N. Y. Sun.

A Memorial of the Centuries.

Colossal crosses are to be erected this year on 19 mountain peaks of Italy to commemorate the nineteenth century of the Christian era. A religious society will have charge of the matter. The crosses will be cut from granite, marble, or whatever stone characterizes each region, and will bear an inscription.—Scientific American.

THE SLY CAPE DUTCH.

How the Afrikaners Manage to Help the Boers Without Sacrificing Themselves.

The Cape Dutch are pretty shy. Most of them sympathize with their kinsmen in the Transvaal, but they want to retain their power, even if the republics are beaten. Meanwhile every Dutchman is at liberty to join the Boer forces. In the Amsterdam Elgen Haard J. A. Wormser describes how the thing is managed to the following effect:

"Not two hours by rail from Cape Town is the beautiful valley of the Paarl. Opposite the town of Paarl is Fransche Hoek, one of the oldest Huguenot settlements. Both places together have about 5,000 inhabitants. Over 400 young men have already vanished from there. They go on business by rail to Worcester, Matjiesfontein, Triangle, or Beaufort West, and write from there to papa: 'I am going a little farther. Never mind where.' The 'old man' can swear that he does not know where the boys are. Two days later they are with the Boer forces."

"The Afrikaner likes to manage these things in such a way that he does not, in more senses than one, 'lose his head.' He joins his compatriots, and hopes to come back with a conquering army."

"An open rebellion would be more dramatic, but the Boer cares nothing for advertisement. The republics did not advertise their armaments. The Cape Afrikaner does not advertise that he is tired of British oppression when he has a British garrison right near him. The Dutch mayor of this or that town reads off some gubernatorial proclamation. But as he would like to be burghmeester when the Free States come, he does not inquire very anxiously whether his hearers are deeply impressed or not."

TRAVELING BACTERIA.

Precautions Taken by Railway Companies to Protect Passengers from Infection.

A medical journal calls attention to the general neglect of sanitary and hygienic methods in the management of sleeping cars. There are stringent regulations about the transportation of dead bodies in baggage cars, but there is no adequate and systematic provision for protecting living travelers from exposure to disease-producing germs in the bedding or upholstery.

It is customary to cleanse the blankets and cushions of dry dust and cinders by subjecting them to powerful currents of air, driven by steam, but it is said that they are seldom so thoroughly treated as to remove the danger of infection. Unless railroad authorities take prompt measures, it seems to be the duty of state boards of health to interfere for the safety of the traveling public.

This is only one case among many in which "new occasions teach new duties." Almost every invention or advance in modern life creates situations which require the fresh application of old, eternal principles. It requires the strong pressure of law or of public opinion to secure the adoption of new and needed methods, even when health, comfort and life are at risk. Only the nimble-minded can keep up with the incessant demands for readjustment.

RUSSIAN PEASANTS.

Are Regarded as the Present Lowest Type of Modern European Civilization.

The lowest type of modern European civilization are probably the Russians. While writers and travelers vary as to the future of Russia, nearly all are agreed as to the utter degradation at present of the Russian peasant. He is always on the verge of starvation, and is absolutely improvident, while his gross and complete ignorance is combined with the most extravagant superstition. Like all low natures he is thoroughly distrustful of reform, and as a climax to his infirmities he is a confirmed drinker. Middle class in Russia there is practically none. The small shopkeepers combine exorbitant charges with shameful usury; manufacturers and producers are nearly all foreigners, and the larger trade of the country is chiefly in German hands. Education may, after the lapse of several generations, remove the inherent dullness of the people, but it will be no easy matter to root out evils which are the growth of centuries of serfdom and distress.

March of the Telegraph.

Along with the rapid extension of lines has gone a steady improvement in the mechanical appliances of the telegraph, says Ainslie's Magazine. The sending and receiving instruments in use to-day bear little resemblance to the crude instruments used by the inventor. Indeed, of the inventions which were contributed to the development of the telegraph, the only one that has not been replaced by some improvement is the one he himself looked upon as merely incidental to his larger scheme. That is the alphabet of characters used in telegraphic communication. It is in use in all parts of the world, practically as when first perfected, and as the Morse alphabet it perpetuates the name of the inventor.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, cashier of the First National bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at work." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
