A well-known Irish judge in the insolvent court once detected a witness kissing his thumb instead of the book in taking the oath, and in rebuking him, sternly said: "You may think to deceive God, sir, but you won't deceive me.—Leisure Moments.

J. M. Fleming, of this city, has received word of the death of his father at Santa Rosa, California, on the 1st inst. The deceased was 77 years of age. Forty-eight hours before his death he had a second stroke of paralysis that rendered him unconscious till the end came.

An additional lot of tickets for the Woodcraft excursion tomorrow have been received and are on sale at Clarke & Falk's, Menefee & Parkins', J. R. Reese's barber shop and W. H. Jones' cigar store. Secure your tickets tonight if you want to make sure of the trip.

O. H. Kerns, teacher of the Eight mile district, was in town today soliciting subscriptions for prizes to be given for foot race contests at a school picnic to be held in a grove about half a mile from the Eight mile school house, on the 22d instant. The four schools of Five Mile, Eight Mile, Eudereby and upper Eight Mile will join in the picnic.

All lovers of refined fun should see the minstrel Tuesday and Wednesday night. The program is practically ready now and the public have reason to expect a treat, for the company intend to do their best to give them one. The pickaninnes are as cute as anything you could meet in a day's travel. The Irish cake walk is inspiring to say the least, and the entire cast have given conscientious practice to every detail. You will miss it if you miss it.

Over a couple of weeks ago Sam Wilkinson of this city sent a couple of young homing pigeons to Walla Walla to be liberated at that place. One of them got back here in a couple of days but the other did not turn up till this morning; that is to say, Mr. Wilkinson did not see it till this morning, but it may, possibly have come back anytime during the past two or three days. The birds are only nine months old and Mr. Wilkinson is very proud of them.

Everything puts on a lively appearance at the St. Martin hot springs. At present there are about thirty-five or forty people there and several more are expected this week. The large and commodious hotel is nearing completion and when finished will be a great benefit to that place. It is a three-story structure and forty feet wide and sixty feet long. Mr. St. Martin said it was his intention to pump the hot water to the hotel, thereby making it convenient for those who are not able to walk to the springs.—Pioneer.

Shaniko had its first robbery on the night of the 1st instant, and, strange to say, it occurred in the newspaper office, and stranger still, the robber got something for his pains, and strangest of all, he left $12 in the office cash box. This is probably the only robbery of a country newspaper office in which the thief got anything since the morning stars first sang together. The bedroom of Foreman Kennedy and a compositor was entered and the thief, the Leader supposes, chloroformed the sleepers and abstracted $75 from the pockets of the compositor. Arthur Kennedy, true to the best traditions of Dalles type-stickers, had nothing and therefore lost nothing. It will take a good deal more than the unsupported testimony of the editor of the Leader to convince the fraternity that he had $12 in the cash box, or even had a cash box.

Through the courtesy of Dr. Logan THE CHRONICLE is in receipt of a letter of invitation to a reception which was given—for alas it was all over before the invitation got here—last Wednesday night by the Medical Association of New Jersey to the American Medical Association, of which the doctor is a member, at Atlantic City, N. J. The entertainment opened at 8 p. m. with a musical and vaudeville. A reception followed and this in turn was followed by a smoker and the whole with a dance. The program would indicate that if the medicos are not enjoying themselves, it is not the fault of the people of Atlantic City.

Yesterday afternoon an engine and caboose that was backing from The Dalles to Bridal Veil for a train of lumber ran into a wagon and team at the first crossing below Crates Point, killing one of the horses and crippling the other so that he had to be shot, and smashing the wagon into kindling wood. The team and wagon belonged to James Snipes, of this city, and were on their way to Mr. Snipes' ranch below Crates Point. J. J. Hecker, Mr. Snipes' ranch foreman, was driving and was accompanied by a man named Calbreth. The men, it is hoped, received no injuries that will prove serious, although they were badly shaken up, especially Mr. Hecker, who was at first thought to have been injured internally. The injured men were brought to town and are at the Union St. Lodging House under the care of Dr. Doane, who up till noon today had found no indications of internal injuries in the case of Mr. Hecker. Mr. Calbreth's chief injury is a painful bruise on one of the hip joints.

A Picnic As Was a Picnic.

Let not ambition mock their lowly toll, Their homely joys and destiny obscure, Nor grandeur hear with a disdainful smile, The short and simple annals of the poor. Not that they were in any proper sense "poor" the six healthy, happy girls that this item treats of, but "girls" won't rhyme worth a cent with obscure, and so we have to let the poet have his say in his own words. They had a picnic yesterday, these girls; and the excuse for it, for want of a better one, was that one of their number was going in a few days to the coast for the summer. So they filled a clothes basket full of grub and scorned the help of man or beast betook themselves to the banks of Mill Creek where, unobserved except by Father Sol and, perchance, the man in the moon, they splashed, and waded and fell in the water to their hearts' content, coming back home after a long day as bedraggled as they were happy, and all vowing that they had a picnic as was a picnic. They had their appetites too, you may be sure, although the maternal guardian of one of them assures the writer that they brought the clothes basket back, even if there weren't a blamed thing in it. The girls were: Bessie Snipes, Ruby Groat, Blanche Emerson, Lilly Kelly, Mary Barnett and Hanna Schwabe.
