

LOST LIBERTY.

Up in the Indian territory they have no votes.—Galveston News.

They are governed without their consent. They are serfs and slaves to despotism. On them the declaration of independence does not shine. For them liberty bells are muffled. And even the anti-imperialists forget them and look over their heads at down-trodden Tagalogs.—New York Sun.

And the colored men of Mississippi and several other states are disfranchised. Many of them, too, have a strong infusion of the best blood of the south in their veins, and still they are disfranchised. And even "the anti-imperialists forget them and look over their head sat down-trodden Tagalogs." More still, a full majority of the white race of Americans in the sovereign state of Kentucky—the state of great horses, great whiskey, fair women and chivalric men—there the white race to a great extent is disfranchised, "on them the declaration of independence does not shine. For them the liberty bell is muffled. And even the anti-imperialists forget them and look over their heads at down-trodden Tagalogs."—Salt Lake Tribune.

The forefathers of those who take delight in abusing President McKinley were occasionally active in the early days of the republic. The following abuse of Washington found in a paper called the Philadelphia Aurora might be easily taken for a leading demo-pop editorial of today if the name of McKinley was substituted for that of Washington: "If ever there was a period of rejoicing this is the moment. Every heart in unison with the freedom and happiness of the people ought to beat high with exultation that the name of Washington from this day has ceased to give currency to political iniquity and to legalizing corruption. A new era is now opening upon us—an era which promises much to the people; for public measures must now stand upon their own merits and nefarious projects can no longer be supported by a name. It is the subject of the greatest astonishment that a single individual should have carried his designs against the public liberty so far as to have put in jeopardy its very existence."

Anti-expansionists overreach themselves when they insanely attack President McKinley because of the prosecution of the war in the Philippines. He was not primarily responsible for the war, nor has he been alone in urging it to a finish. A violently unfair political arrangement is apt to become a boomerang, whacking the would-be whackers.

CHEWED A DIAMOND.

A Pug Dog Mangled the Gem Until It Was Necessary to Have It Recut.

Allegheny, Pa., has produced the champion dog story of the season. It is a champion dog because it chewed the corner off a diamond stud. Peter Donaldson, a Second ward stationkeeper, is a little sore over the loss on his diamond, for it was damaged so that it had to be recut; but he can't help feeling proud of a pug dog with such powers in its jaws, says the Pittsburgh Press.

The story is told by August Loeh, a jeweler on Federal street, Allegheny. Donaldson walked into his store one day lately with a diamond that he wished reset. Mr. Loeh took the stone, and on examining it found it was cracked. He told Donaldson, who gave the following explanation:

A few days ago Donaldson left his diamond stud, a beautiful two-carat gem, on the dresser and went into an adjoining room. When he came back, he noticed his pet dog chewing something and saw that his diamond was missing. Upon investigation he found the dog had got it and crushed the mounting out of shape. After some time he succeeded in taking the diamond out of the dog's mouth, and at his earliest convenience started to have it reset.

Mr. Loeh then examined more closely and discovered the dog had bitten a piece from the stone and damaged it badly. Donaldson was certain the stone was perfect before the dog got it in his mouth. He could scarcely credit the jeweler's statement until he saw it through a magnifying glass. Telling of the matter the other morning, Mr. Loeh said: "I have been in the jewelry business for 25 years, and it was the first time I ever heard of such a case. The diamond was a beauty and to all appearances as hard as the ordinary diamond. One corner, however, about one-fourth of an inch, had been bitten off by the dog. The dog that can bite pieces of a diamond is a wonder." The stone had to be recut and set, and that cost a fair sum.

There is a great moral in this case, too. It demonstrates the fact that a pug dog has more power in his jaws than the average person imagines, and the moral is that people should keep their gems out of their pet's reach. The news of Donaldson's dog chewing up a diamond is widespread in Allegheny, and every person wants to see the dog that has collapsed all his canine friends. The case is being talked about everywhere, and all claim that Allegheny leads the country with the sensation.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised 'Electric Bitters'; and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed, at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store.
