

He Tried a Sample Bottle

Nearly every day people come into drug stores and ask the druggists to recommend some medicine for their trouble. Very often they refuse to do so, because, as a rule, they do not believe it proper to advise anyone to take a patent medicine of which they do not know the ingredients. It is the physician's business to prescribe. Some make an exception, however, when they are asked to recommend Acker's English Remedy, because I know just what it will do. It has cured every case where I have seen it tried. It is the best expectorant and tonic I ever handled in my 14 years' experience. I will give just one instance of a gentleman who had been troubled for years with a nasty, hacking cough. I advised Acker's English Remedy. He tried a sample bottle, and was cured before he had taken half of it, at no cost whatever. This is an exceptional case, however, as it usually takes two or three bottles.

(Signed) A. B. Coon, Bellefontaine, Ohio.
Sold at 25c. per bottle throughout the United States and Canada, and in England, at 1s. 2d. per bottle. If you are not satisfied after buying, return the bottle to your druggist, and get your money back.
We authorize the above statements.

INSURE AGAINST DECAY.

Destruction of Wood by Dry Rot and Vermin Prevented.

[From the Morning Oregonian.]
"Inoculation with vaccine saves the human body from the ravages of small-pox. Inoculation with carbolineum avenarius saves wood from the ravages of climate, vermin and resultant decay."
This is the terse way in which a prominent Oregon farmer expressed his opinion of carbolineum avenarius, and his enthusiasm was certainly warranted. This wonderful wood preservative has never failed to fulfill the promises of its German inventor since he first manufactured it some thirty years ago, whether applied to the timbers of some vast creation like a bridge or ocean vessel, or used to vitalize and preserve the humble fence post.
Briefly stated, every wooden article exposed to climate or the depredations of wood-destroying vermin should be safeguarded with carbolineum avenarius. The word "inoculation" employed by the farmer quoted above aptly expresses the effect of the compound. It veritably inoculates the article treated from surface to center, instead, as in the case with ordinary paint, of merely covering the outside. Dry rot fungus, to which the fence posts, hop poles, house pinnings, etc., coming in contact with damp soil, are bound eventually to succumb, will not destroy these structures in twenty years, as has been absolutely proved, if subjected to carbolineum avenarius treatment.

This preparation not only saves wood from noxious parasites, but it also preserves wheat, in granaries treated, from weevils without elevating the structure, as has been suggested, on stilted, poultry, in coops treated, from lice; cattle and sheep, in sheds treated, from insects and disease, and residents of houses treated from fleas, bedbugs and ants.

Carbolinum avenarius does even more than this. So fatal is its effect on insect life and so far-reaching, it even seeks out and destroys the microscopic germs of disease which prey on humanity, and stops the spread of contagious disease. Knowledge of this virtue has led to its use in hospitals and on the pavements of London by the advice of prominent physicians who claim the preparation is an antiseptic of great value in preserving health.

Already extensively used and approved in Pacific coast cities for public and private structures, carbolineum avenarius is certain to be employed by the sagacious farmer of the Northwest when a single trial has proved its merits and effectiveness.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—The Pacific coast agent for carbolineum avenarius is Fisher, Thomsen & Co., Portland, Or., and can be purchased from Jos. T. Peters & Co., The Dalles.]
