

Our Mid-Summer Sale

WILL SOON BE HERE in full force.—Just one month later than usual.

We started with an $8.95 Suit Sale, which now develops into a general clearance—a full-fledged bargain event. Not through any special effort on our part; not through unusual advertising. It seems as though each customer told a dozen others, and so the sale has grown to a Christmas crowd looking for July bargains. Rest assured there shall be no disappointment. The most pronounced bargain fiend shall be more than satisfied. It has come to us unsolicited, and we shall accept it with good grace.

Few custom tailors would surpass these suits, though they were to charge $12 or $15; doubtless $20 would please you better at the to-order store.

Remember that it is not for profit this sale was started—the locks. She is practically on the road all the time she is not loading or unloading.

The Chronicle is asked to call the attention of the city authorities to the fact that many parts of the city are infested with thrushes that if left a short time longer will have gone to seed and have scattered over the whole town. It is highly desirable that steps should be taken to have these pests put down before they go to seed.

When experienced another decline at Chicago yesterday and July fell to 22 cents. The market at Portland did not respond to this fall. First of the recent rise, nor did it respond to the limit of the decline. The price yesterday at that place was 25 to 26 cents. The Dalles price for No. 1 is 22, which is a little better than the national average, little to be bragged about.

The county jail is practically empty, that is, it has only 18 prisoners. It is only a custodial place, a place where the sheriff keeps the prisoners on condition that they report daily to the sheriff. The jail is not a court, and it is not a place where the prisoners are kept for any length of time, and the use of the jail is only for the purpose of keeping the prisoners until they can be removed to the state prison.

A dispatch from Astoria gives the case of the ship on board which is to be sent to the court on July 14, 1900. The ship is the "H. J. Smith," and it is a case of a ship which is to be sent to the court on July 14, 1900.

the county seat of Crook county. The weather for this characteristic cow country town is the Harney News.

Dr. Roberts, scientific optician and oculist, who for a few days longer will have an office in the Chapman block, room 1, is a traveling oculist. He has a practice in San Diego, Calif., where he has lived for nearly ten years, and he is now on this coast. This is the first sailing he has had in that time, and he does really scientific optical work to pay his expenses while traveling through Oregon and Washington. He makes free examinations. Call and consult him and then pass judgment as to whether he is like the usual traveling oculist—a fake.

The celebration in the city by the sea promises to be the event of the season. Nothing is being left undone by the committee to make it the biggest thing of the kind ever undertaken in Astoria. The program is being carried in securing attractions from neighboring cities. Mr. W. H. Anderson, of the Fourth of July committee at Astoria, has been in negotiation with the local committee in charge of the U. M. C. A. extension here, and has made arrangements whereby the Dalles Community and Athletic Club band, under the efficient leadership of Fred. Blundin, will accompany the excursion to Astoria and take part in the big parade that night. This not only secures Astoria of having some very fine music, but will be a pleasing factor in aiding the excursionists en route to enjoy what promises to be the largest and most successful excursion ever undertaken from this city. The committee reports an increasing demand for tickets, and assurances are received from neighboring points that the people are in hearty sympathy with the U. M. C. A. movement and want to do what they can to help it along.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF WHISKY

End Over by the Train at Hood River Monday Night.

Coroner Butts held an inquest yesterday at Hood River on the body of a man named Sam McGee, who was killed on the railroad track near Hood River the night before by the west-bound passenger train, known as No. 6. The testimony before the coroner's jury went to show that the deceased had worked during the past winter with a construction crew on the U. S. & N. road; that later he had gone to work for the Oregon Lumber Co., and that last Saturday he called for his time and was headed what was coming to him, $21.20. He crossed the river Saturday and was known to have been drinking to some extent during Sunday and Monday in Hood River. He was last seen alive near the place where he was killed at half past Monday night. He had evidently laid down on the track and his body was dragged nearly 400 feet to a switch before the train could be stopped. His head was split vertically from the nose to the back of the head, his body was practically cut in two at the waist and his intestines were scattered all over the track. He had had a bottle of his person, which was broken into fragments, but the other was sufficiently suggestive of an attempt to make it tolerably certain that the man had not lost his life through drunkenness or temperance principles. His hands and feet had been cut off.

The jury rendered the following verdict:

Verdict. The jury, impeded by W. H. Butts, coroner, in inquiring into the cause of the death of the body now before us, find, first, the evidence and papers on the body, the name to be Samuel McGee. He was about 30 or 35 years old, height about 5 feet 8 inches, weight about 180 pounds, Scotch nationality, sandy hair and mustache, front teeth very prominent, and that he came to his death by being struck and dragged to death by passenger train No. 6 at the west end of the switch at Hood River.
