at the Vogt opera house Monday, Sept. 10th. Mr. Crawford is introducing what is commonly known in the eastern cities as a continuous performance. All vaudeville acts are presented between acts, making one long continuous play. Monday night six new specialties will be given, one of the most entertaining being the Edison's moving picture machine, reproducing a number of the late war scenes. Monday one lady and gentleman or two ladies will be admitted on one paid 50-cent reserved seat ticket. Standing room only is the sign nightly displayed whenever a ladies' night is given. The best way to do is to secure your seats in advance, which can be done without extra charge. By this method you avoid the inevitable crowd at the doors at night, but instead you can remain at home until nearly 8 o'clock, then go the theater and be sure of a good seat and enjoy an entertainment of the highest order of excellence. Prices have been reduced to 25, 35 and 50 cents. Tickets on sale at Clark's drug store.

IS A GRAND SUCCESS.

Thousands of People Attend the Portland Carnival.

The opening day of the Portland street fair and carnival was a triumph, says today's Oregonian. From the time when the first screeches of the Harvest Queen's whistle announcing the arrival of the king and queen, through the brilliant street pageant and the impressive spectacle of the coronation scene to the opening of the carnival gates in a blaze of light in the evening, everything tended to make the day memorable and the carnival a success. Thousands of visitors thronged the streets of Portland. There was a carnival spirit in the air. Everyone was looking for enjoyment, and found it. The greatest crowd in the history of the city witnessed the parade and 20,000 people passed the main carnival gates last evening, and 15,000 spectators witnessed the various wonders of the midway, from the streets of Cairo to the German village. The opening day was brilliant in its success.

In the evening, when the carnival gates were thrown open along Sixth street, one could easily believe that he had been mysteriously transported to the land of the Arabian Nights. The glamorous sparkle of thousands of electric lights showed dainty, curious and useful wares from every clime, from the priceless Persian prayer rug to the modern automobile. One could with equal freedom study the growth of the Oregon hop industry, or have his fortune told by a white-robed Arabian astrologer, or look into the blinking eyes of a black-skinned cannibal from the wilds of Africa. He could take a two-story side on a camel's back, or hold converse in Chinook with an Indian squaw over her wigwam fire, or investigate the movements of the poisonous Gila monster, or watch a sword combat between fierce-looking Turks in red fez and bag trousers.

There were about 10,000 different expressions of wonder on the faces that one meets in the surging mass of humanity that passed through the gates. And from every side one heard pleasant comments on the public spirit and fine administrative ability of the Elks that had brought this great undertaking to so successful an issue.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—A dispatch to the Record from Moscow says:
