A. H. Curtiss of the Diamond flouring mill, who was injured a week ago by falling from a platform back of the mill, was much better this morning and, it is hoped, is on the way to recovery.

Rev. Paul Kruger, who preached in the Christian church of this city yesterday, will preach there tonight at the usual hour and may, probably, hold services every night during the present week.

Frank Longworth, a brakeman of the O. R. & N. Co., fell from the cars last night in the neighborhood of the Union street crossing and dislocated his right elbow. The injured member was set right by the company's physician, Dr. Hugh Logan.

William Sylvester has returned from Shaniko, where he spent six weeks working at his trade of carpenter. He says the town is building up rapidly, and that it has already a number of buildings and others in course of erection that would be a credit to a town of 5000 inhabitants.

Hiram Chittenden brought into town this morning, from his ranch on Dutch Flat, an 11-months-old hog, which weighed 360 pounds gross, and which he sold to Chrisman Bros. for $18, or five cents a pound. It was raised principally on milk and was of the Chester White variety.

The census bureau announces that the population of Portland is 90,426, as against 40,385 in 1890, an increase of 44,041, or 94.95 per cent. It is only fair to say, however, that the last census represents the consolidated city and includes a large territory not covered by the census of 1890.

John Cradlebaugh, formerly editor of this paper, now a plutocratic Greenhorn miner, objects to the statement made in Saturday's Chronicle that Dalles peaches measuring 1 1/2 inches in circumference. He insists that the waist measure of the Dalles peaches in his times was anywhere from 18 to 22 inches.

The recorder of Prineville and the county judge of Crook county are at outs over certain fees that the recorder claims, and the county judge refuses to pay. As a result of the trouble the recorder announces that in future he will perform marriage ceremonies free gratis. The recorder and the judge were opponents in the contest for the judgeship in 1898. Hinc ille lacrimis.

Apropos of the controversy in the Oregonian over tomatoes, which the early Oregon settlers called love apples, and which were, by many, considered poisonous, S. L. Brooks, of this city, remembers using tomatoes in his old home in Illinois as far back as 1839. They were not there considered poisonous and were eaten with salt and vinegar as many of them are eaten now.

Francis Ross, an old and respected resident of this city, and father of Geo. Ross, agent of the Columbia Southern at Shaniko, died suddenly of apoplexy at the latter place yesterday. C. N. Burget, of this city, left on the noon train for Shaniko to prepare the remains for shipment to this city, where the interment is expected to take place in Old Fellows' cemetery Wednesday.

W. P. Keady and Frank Ahalt have a store at Howard, the postoffice at the Ochoco mines, just across the Wheeler line in Crook county, where quite a little town is being built up. The McAlister boys have made a conditional sale of their mine there to a Portland company consisting of Keady, Cotton Campbell and others, for $100,000, $3,000 down, the balance to be paid in installments within five years.

Green River, "the whiskey without a headache," the most noted of Kentucky, itself famous for producing the finest whiskey in the world, is prescribed in all the leading infirmaries of the country for its purity, superior excellence and medicinal efficacy. Green River is the official whiskey used in all the naval hospitals of the United States government. C. J. Stubling, distributor. Phone 234, The Dalles, Oregon.

Griffin Chamberlain, of Klickitat county, Wash., died at Downie, Calif., Aug. 30th. The body was brought to his home on Chamberlain Flat and buried last Tuesday. Mr. Chamberlain was an Oregon and Washington pioneer, coming to Oregon in the same train with ex-Senator Dolph, and has been one of the prominent men of Washington for several years. He was aged 74 years, and left a wife, two sons and a daughter.

The biggest bears in the world are to be found on Kadiak island, in the Gulf of Alaska, south of the great shoulder of territory that stretches out into the Pacific, and Dr. Frank Baker, of the Smithsonian Institution, has sent Elwood Hofer, a well known guide and hunter of the Yellowstone Park. The Kadiak bears are of the polar breed, perfectly white, with long, heavy fur, and at full growth are twice as large as the ordinary black bear.

Elias Davis, prominent sheepman of Crook county, disappeared from his Crooked river ranch on August 17th, and up to this time no trace of him has been found, although the sheriff and a number of friends of the missing man have been riding for days in search of him. This mysterious disappearance completely baffles every attempt at a solution, as not even the slightest clew can be found. The missing man, who was known as "Shorty Davis," was unusually popular, and had no enemies that are known of. As no money was taken from the ranch, robbery was evidently not the motive which prompted the murder, if he was killed. His friends are sparing no effort to solve the mystery, and we are informed that $1000 reward has been posted, for information of Davis' whereabouts.—Antelope Herald.

Commenting on President McKinley's letter of acceptance, today's Oregonian says: "The money question is the issue. 'Anti-imperialism' is not the 'paramount' issue. It is not an issue at all. There is no issue about it. No issue can be made out of it. Order must be restored in the Philippines. Bryan demands it; McKinley is doing it. Foreign nations must be kept off. Bryan demands it; McKinley is doing it. The largest possible measure of self-government must be accorded. Bryan demands it; McKinley is doing it. All possible constitutional rights must be extended to the Filipinos. Bryan demands it; McKinley has done it. If Bryan were inaugurated president tomorrow, he could not withdraw our army and navy till order had been established. When this is done, congress will act. Bryan says he will call congress together in March, 1901. It will be in session December, 1900, ready for action the moment the insurrection is ended and disposition of the islands is in order."

Wedding Bells.

The following incident of the Columbia River conference, which met last week at North Yakima, will be of interest to Dalles people. It is copied from a dispatch to the Spokane Spokesman-Review:

"One feature of the conference today was the wedding of Rev. John Wood, of this city, and Miss Ella Hollis, of The Dalles, Or. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage at 5 o'clock. Bishop Andrews officiated. The only witnesses were Rev. U. F. Hawk, Presiding Elder Uren and the ladies of the families. Many preachers were on the outside anxious to witness the ceremony, but dared not intrude without an invitation."

DALLES ELKS WELL PLEASED.

They Were Treated Royally and Were Awarded the Only Prize in Their Class.

The members of Cascade Lodge, No. 303, B. P. O. E., who took part in the recent festivities in Portland, in connection with the carnival, have returned—with possibly a few exceptions—and all report a splendid fraternal reunion and a jolly good time.

Cascade Lodge made a splendid showing, taking with surprise not only the general public, but their many Dalles friends who witnessed the parade. Readers of the Oregonian, Telegram and The Dalles papers are familiar with the general features of the parade, but only a few of them know that the Dalles lodge received the first and only prize in its class, that of uniqueness and originality, the amount being $200 cash. The Dalles lodge was not in the same class as Salem, that received the mounted elk, nor with Astoria, that received $100. The Dalles Elks are well satisfied, having received one of the leading prizes. In addition they feel that they have done their whole duty towards the community in which they live, as well as in assisting Portland Lodge, No. 142.

Salem lodge had no competition in the matter of uniform. They were neatly and appropriately dressed, and each carried an umbrella, composed equally of the colors of the order, purple and white, arranged in alternate stripes, and as they marched went through a drill that had a most pleasing effect, and formed one of the distinctive features of the parade. Cascade lodge and the entire body of Elks who were in attendance at Portland, feel that the committee did its full duty in bestowing the mounted elk upon the Salem brothers.

Wasco has the only county exhibit at the carnival, which bespeaks much for the enterprise of our citizens.

"A True Kentuckian."

Roy Crawford's Stock Company will open a week's engagement at the Vogt opera house tonight presenting Miron Leffingwell's great New York success, "A True Kentuckian." A play of the people and for the people, it will fresco melancholy faces with smiles and chase the blues back to indigo. Constructed on a high plane, the acme of refinement, appealing to the intelligent theatergoers, pleasing the patrons of the gallery, balcony, orchestra and boxes alike; a play that pleases everybody. The vaudeville features come thick and fast, and every specialty is absolutely new. One of the most interesting things in the vaudeville this evening will be the American microscope and biograph, Edison's latest and greatest motion picture machine, reproducing all the great battles and crushing blows of war given to Spain during the late strife between these two nations. They are so realistic and life-like that it makes your blood boil with excitement.

The Crawford Company comes enthusiastically endorsed by the press, and are prepared to give elaborate scenic productions. There is a large advance sale today, and undoubtedly there will be standing room only tonight. One should secure their seats as early as possible. This will be ladies' free night, one lady and gentleman or two ladies being admitted on one paid 50-cent ticket. Seats on sale at Clark & Falk's.

Proceedings of County Court.

The county court which adjourned Saturday, Sept. 8th, transacted the following business:

In the matter of the Harriman road, the viewers having failed to send in their report, the application was continued until report is received.

It appearing to the court that no supervisor was elected in road district No. 18 at last election, John Dalrymple was appointed.
