

Cuticura SOAP

For the Complexion

To purify and beautify the skin and prevent pimples, blotches, blackheads, redness, roughness, yellow, oily, mothy skin, clogging tan, sunburn, and many other forms of skin blemishes, neither skin or complexion soap is for a moment to be compared with CUTICURA SOAP, because no other soap reaches the cause, viz., the clogged, irritated, or inflamed condition of the pores.

For Hair and Scalp

Shampoo with CUTICURA SOAP, first with warm water, then with cold water, and dry and apply a light dressing of CUTICURA, put in the form of a hair oil, gently rubbed into the scalp. This simple, refreshing, and inexpensive treatment will soothe irritated and itching surfaces, stimulate the hair follicles, clear the scalp and hair of crusts, scales, and dandruff, supply the roots with energy and nourishment, and make the hair grow when all else fails.

For Red Rough Hands

Soak the hands, on retiring, in strong, hot water of CUTICURA SOAP. Thoroughly dry, and anoint freely with CUTICURA Ointment, the great skin cure and purest of emollients. Wear during the night old, loose kid gloves. For red, rough, chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, and feverish palms, shapeless nails with painful finger ends, this one night treatment is simply wonderful.

For Sanative Uses

Its remarkable emollient, cleansing, purifying properties, derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, warrant the use of CUTICURA SOAP, in the form of a hair oil, for annoying irritations, inflammations, and chafings, for too free or offensive perspiration, and also in the form of internal washes and solutions for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially to mothers. The use of CUTICURA Ointment with CUTICURA SOAP will also be of advantage in the severer cases.

Twenty Miles of Dead.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 13.—Mr. John J. Moody, a member of the committee sent from Houston to take charge of the relief station at Texas City, reports as follows:

"To the Mayor—Sir: On arriving at La Marque this morning I was informed that the largest number of bodies were along the coast of Texas City. Fifty-six were buried yesterday and today within less than two miles extending opposite this place and toward Virginia Point. It is yet six miles further to Virginia City, and the bodies are thicker where we are now than where they have been buried. A citizen inspecting in the opposite direction reports dead bodies thick for twenty miles."

"The residents of this place have lost all—not a habitable building left—and they have been too busy disposing of the dead to look after personal affairs. Those who have anything left are giving it to the others, and yet there is real suffering. I have given away nearly all the bread I brought for my own use to hungry children."

"A number of helpless women and beggar children were landed here from Galveston and had no place to go and not a bite to eat. Tomorrow others are expected from the same place. Every ten feet along the wrecked coast tells of the acts of sandalwood, not a trunk, valise or tool chest has escaped rifling. We buried a woman this afternoon who bore the marks of recently removed rings. Other details are too long to enumerate."

Gas Pipe Lines to Distribute Power.

The attention of electrical engineers has been attracted to the prospective use of the gas engine on a vast scale for the generation and transmission of power. Mr. George Westinghouse believes that a great saving of expense as compared with present methods would result from the distribution of power by means of gas generated at central points and conveyed in pipes along the lines of railways for the operation of gas engines and electric generators. He suggests the installation of such a system in connection with the electrical equipment of railways, especially metropolitan and suburban lines; and also the use of fuel gas and gas engines to supply light and power for the whole of Manhattan Island.—Youth's Companion.
