SUMMIT, Sept. 24.—Another and equally plausible story of the recent tragedy near the Banker Hill mine is Kane's version, which he has just given. He claims to have returned from bird shooting that Wednesday morning to find another man in his wife's bed. In the scuffle that ensued his gun was discharged, killing the little girl and wounding his wife. He fled to his brother's cabin for another gun, but was pursued and shot just as he had gotten in through the window. He only remembers the burning of the cabin led him to stagger out and sink, exhausted where he was found. The man was masked, but his description fits a neighboring prospector, who has not been seen since that day, and has been trailed up the mountain.

This explains away the apparent absurdity of a man shooting himself from hip upward to side with a Winchester. Jealousy has all along been mentioned, and current report seems to think the feeling was well founded. The wife's story is her natural defense, and is at variance with every material point in Kane's statement. The man is divine and has received the last rites of his church.

The blackened body of the little girl has been taken to Wainetown for burial. The burning of the cabin, under this theory was to conceal the double crime. The coroner's jury, in their verdict, found that the little girl came to her death from a bullet from a gun in Fred Kane's hands, but the jury members are not all convinced as to how the shot came to be fired. The coroner may cause the request to be reopened and continued further.

The strongest corroboration of Kane's story is in the fact that Father Desmarais visited him and administered the last rites of the church. To secure this he would have to make a confession of his sin, and on his deathbed such a ceremony would not be made a mockery by any concealment, while if had confessed being responsible for his approaching death the church would never have granted absolution.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Powe, of Euporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." Boers Will Harass the British.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—"Messrs. Steyn and Rees," says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Lourenco Marques, "will remain with the fighting burghers, and it is estimated that a force of Boers aggregating from 7000 to 12,000 is planning to harass the British lines of communication."

Catarrah Cannot Be Cured.

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrah is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrah Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrah Cure is not a quick medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrah. Send for testimonials, free.

CAN NOT LIVE IN OREGON

An Obsolete Provision of the State Constitution Prohibits Negroes Living, Voting, or Owning Real Estate Here.

SALEM, Sept. 24.—Governor Geer is in receipt of a communication from David Milburn, of Parsons, Kan., making inquiry as to the rights of the negro and mulatto, under the constitution of Oregon. It seems that Kansas politicians are making capital of the obsolete section of Oregon's constitution, prohibiting the colored man from voting. "It is claimed in Kansas, so Mr. Milburn states, that the condition of the negro in Oregon is worse than it is in the south, and that a colored man is prohibited from voting, living in or passing through the state. As similar inquiries have been received from the east recently, the governor today answered Mr. Milburn.

He said: "No free negro or mulatto, not residing in this state at the time of the adoption of the constitution, shall come, reside or be within this state, or hold any real estate, make any contracts, or maintain any suit therein. And the legislative assembly shall provide by penal laws for the removal by public officers of all such negroes or mulattoes, and for their effectual exclusion from the state, and for the punishment of persons who shall bring them into the state, or employ or harbor them."

"At the time of the adoption of the constitution, in 1858, this section was submitted separately, and the popular vote was 8040 in its favor and 1081 against it. That was in the good old democratic days, when the 'divine' institution of slavery, handed down to that generation by the authors of the Declaration of Independence and their co-workers, was in the prime of its growing power, and Oregon had been largely settled by people who had felt its blighting influence. So that, while an amendment in favor of slavery was voted down at the same election by a vote of 2645 in favor of and 7727 against, the section for the expulsion of free negroes was adopted, probably as a compromise, and, as viewed from this date, a disgraceful concession to the slavery element.

"Our constitution stands today as adopted in 1858, in every respect, although many efforts have been made to amend it in several particulars, and so fixed in this respect does the public mind seem that it is doubtful if it will ever be amended in any way. Five amendments were submitted to a popular vote last June, and each was overwhelmingly defeated, and among them was one to repeal the free negro section. Some of them appeared to have merit, but the sentiment of the people seems to be to let our constitution alone until the time comes for a constitutional convention, which would have been called several years ago, no doubt, but for the appearance of populism and silverism, and now that Bryanism has become the paramount issue in American politics, our people will object to undertake the forming of a new constitution until these latter-day heresies have had their run.

"The free negro section of our constitution is as imperative as the tariff law of 1828, and was from the beginning. It was never enforced nor was any attempt ever made to enforce it. Every negro in this state has as many privileges as any white man, and always had. The attempt of your democratic speakers to make capital of this obsolete reminder of democratic days only illustrates the empty condition of their campaign locker. When your disarmed Kansas democrat compares our constitution with the condition of the negroes in the southern states, just refer him to Senator Tillman's speech in the senate February 26, of this year, Congressional Record, page 2245: 'When that happened we took the government away. We stuffed the ballot boxes. We shot them. We are not ashamed of it. So we called a constitutional convention, and we eliminated, as I said, all the colored people whom we could, under the 14th and 15th amendments.'

"There you see the difference between the condition of the negroes in Oregon and in the southern states where Mr. Bryan will get most of his electoral votes in the contest where his heart bleeds every day for a government which derives its powers from the consent of the governed."
