WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

I saw a sweet young mother stand Where snow had drifted o'er the land, A babe was lying on her breast, Her look was grim, Its fragile form Against herself she faintly pressed To keep it warm.

In later years I passed once more And saw her at the cottage door; A boy was lying on her knees, Her look was grim, and, suffering Joshua! how she Was warning him!

Professor Sandvig's second dance of the season will be given at the Baldwin Saturday night.

A marriage license was issued today to Ernst Lueddemann and Elizabeth Eleanor French.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Charles E. Bayley and Juliet Jones, of Antelope.

Wheat this morning dropped a cent a bushel, and stood for the day in this market at 50 cents for No. 1 Club.

A lodge of the A. O. U. W. was organized at Shaniko last week with thirty members. Eleven members of Antelope Lodge, No. 44, and about thirty members of Wasco, Moro and Grass Valley lodges assisted.

The annual report of Jay Lynch, agent of the Yakima Indian reservation at Fort Simcoe, has been made public. He gives the population of the reservation as 1309 people, and the lands held by the tribe as 800,000 acres.

Born, Tuesday, 25th instant, at North Yakima, Wash., to Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Murchie, formerly of this city, a son, Mrs. Murchie will be remembered as Miss Nellie Sylvester. Mother and child were doing well at last accounts.

The last payment due the Nez Perces for the session of the surplus lands on the reservation is about to be made, and will amount to the neat little sum of $92,718, which will be distributed among the 1706 Indians on the reservation, which will give them $55 each.

Attending the Spokane industrial exposition this year, which opens next Tuesday, October 2d, will be like going to a fashionable theater. The seats are to be cushioned and heated by steam and one of the best bands of Europe comes all the way from Italy to furnish music.

The first frost of the season at this place occurred last night. It was not severe, although plainly visible on the sidewalks and roofs of houses half an hour after sunrise. According to the weather bureau the average date on which the first "killing" frost occurred in autumn during the past twenty-eight years was November 26th.

Dow Palmer, who was well-known in this city while operator for the Western Union Telegraph Co., died this morning, September 26th, at the home of his mother in Salem, Ore., of quick consumption which he is said to have contracted from a fellow-operator.

Since the O. R. & N. has taken control of the Ilwaco Railway & Navigation Company's property, work has been in progress placing the roadbed in good condition. It is understood that the company is preparing to haul logs from Squalwater bay to the Columbia.

The Astoria News publishes a statement made by a seiner to the effect that one of the traps near Cathlamet had thirteen tons of fish on the opening day of the season. It had been fishing for about a week before the season opened. Another of the traps in that vicinity caught so many fish that the pot would not hold them, and all escaped.

One of the worst wind storms in the history of the country was experienced in Eastern Washington Saturday. In Spokane the wind blew forty-eight miles an hour for a few minutes, a velocity equalled but twice in eighteen years. There was a fall of fourteen degrees in the temperature in less than half an hour.

Monday morning, when the janitor of the state house at Salem, opened the doors of the west portico, he found three dozen dead English sparrows on the stairway. They had dashed themselves to death against the walls and ceilings illuminated by the brilliant electric light, and were probably driven from their roost in the dome by the owls that haunt the capitol.

A stranded whale about fifty feet in length was one of the sights for the curious at Seaside on Saturday afternoon, says the Astorian. The whale ran too close in shore at low tide, or as the tide was going out, and was left high and dry on the sands. As its immense carcass might become a hard proposition to dispose of if killed, it was not disturbed and at the next high tide it got off and escaped.

Malcolm S. Jameson, who was deputy United States marshal at this place about ten years ago, and who went to Manila with the Oregon Volunteers and was promoted while there from sergeant to second lieutenant, is lying very ill at St. Vincent's Hospital in Portland, and at last accounts his case was considered almost hopeless, and his mother, who resides in New York, has been sent for. He has been ill for nearly three months.

It is said that Ashland people didn't wake up enough to know that there was an editorial association meeting in that city last week. This made the Record man mad, and he wrote hot stuff under the head, "A Cold Reception. Ashland Gives the Oregon Press Association the Marble Heart and the Klondike Glare. A Discreditable Affair." Everywhere else the editors have been treated with the greatest of courtesy and consideration, banqueted, given rides, etc., so much so that this jarred them.—Albany Democrat.

Attorney General Blackburn has rendered an opinion on county assessments to the effect that county clerks must return the summary of the assessment roll in accordance with the provisions of the law of 1899, and cannot make other classifications than are designated by that act. The attorney-general, therefore, advises that summaries of the assessment rolls be not filed in the office of the secretary of state, unless the classification given in the act of 1899 are followed.

A pitiable and unusual case came before the city recorder last night, when a young man of 20 years or so asked lodging for the night in the city jail. The recorder asked the lad if he had had his supper and understood him to say that his wants in this respect had been supplied, but was surprised this morning to find the boy claiming that he had not eaten anything since Monday morning. He was promptly supplied with a good breakfast and went his way. The boy claimed that he could have obtained employment at Mosier but was too sick and weakly to stand the work.

Two employes on the O. R. & N. improvements near Mosier came to town yesterday afternoon and proceeded to load themselves with forty rod lightning and as a natural result, after spending the night in the city skookum house, found themselves this morning in the presence of his honor Judge Gates, charged with the crime of drunkenness. The judge, as is his wont, seized them up as being able to pay a fine of $2 each and so mulcted them, but he overestimated their resources for the night's carousal had exhausted their exchequer and they were returned to the pen to serve out their fines.

Professor Sandvig left on the noon train for Heppner, where he will organize a weekly dancing class next Friday night. He will be back here in time to conduct his Saturday night dance at the Baldwin.

This Escaped Editorial Censorship.

The Walla Walla Statesman, since Colonel Parker left it, is one of the most intense calamity-howling institutions that THE CHRONICLE wots of. Yet here is what it published last Tuesday in the form of an interview with a Walla Walla man who had just returned from visiting a number of logging camps on the Sound:

"I found them all in a flourishing condition, both in the point of increase since last summer and in general permanency. I never saw the West Side in such a prosperous condition; industries of every sort are in full operation, and there is not an idle man to be seen. In fact, there is a great scarcity of laborers and thousands of men are right now needed in the immense logging camps of Puget Sound. Good wages are being paid for every kind of labor. When I was in the little town of Cosmopolis I had the pleasure of seeing over two hundred men line up, last Saturday evening, in front of a large lumber and box factory to receive their week's wages. About six hundred men were paid off that evening. The same condition exists everywhere I visited."

The editor of the Statesman ought to cease calamity-howling or make a more vigorous use of his blue pencil.

GOING EAST.

If you intend to take a trip East, ask your ticket agent to route you via The Great Wabash, a modern and up-to-date railroad in every particular.

TRICKS PLAYED WITH JEWELS

How the Value of Gems is Sometimes Increased by Adroit Jewelers.

There are tricks in all trades, and the tricks of the jewelers are sometimes so adroit as to deceive the most expert who are unfamiliar with them. Large rubies can now be made out of small that would, when cut, take in even an expert lapidary if he trusted to his eye only. He must examine with a microscope to detect the vamped-up stone. Some bubbles in it are then visible, that is all. The double refraction, that depth of color which is a caress to the eye, and the hardness are there. The vamped-up ruby is produced by melting the small rubies into one. A clever device of jewelers who go in for cheapness—or cheating—is to set a rose diamond on a foundation of paste. The gold setting hides the joint.

The first application on a large scale of this trick took place not long ago at Brussels. A man entered a jeweler's shop, and, saying he had lost at roulette and needed money, at once offered for sale his wife's necklace. The price he asked was only half the apparent value. The jeweler examined it, found the wide refraction of the diamond which is the cause of those brilliant fireworks, but still was mistrustful.

"As you are so hard up," he said, "I can't do anything. My condition for a transaction is this—that you leave this necklace with me for two days." This was agreed to. He took the first express to Paris and showed the necklace to some experts. They took part of it to pieces and discovered the fraud.

SPARROWS PURSUE A CAT.

How a Tabby Lost Her Life by Indulging Her Marauding Disposition.

The ivy which climbs the north wall of the United Congregational church in Newport, R. I., furnishes a retreat for thousands of sparrows. A cat had noticed the birds, and no doubt conceived the unreasonable idea that here she might possibly find a nest with a toothsome young bird in it. So pussy climbed the ivy and reached a point where she had seen one of the birds disappear amid the thick leaves. Stretching out its paws where it supposed a nest would be a loud chattering ensued and a myriad of sparrows darted out and attacked the cat with fury.

It was indeed a vicious onslaught. They pecked and chattered and fluttered at a great rate and the cat was bewildered. To free itself from the assault the cat spit and fought and howled, but it was of no use, the birds kept at it until their enemy fell to the ground. This did not stop the combat of the birds. They kept pecking away until they were tired. The cat did not move and occasionally a sparrow would drop to the ground a safe distance from its enemy, as if to see if it was dead. Some little time afterward a witness of this strange struggle went to the spot and found that the cat was dead. Its eyes had been literally dug out and its head was a mass of bleeding wounds.
