In this stock there are two very fancy selected instruments, real gems of the piano-maker's art, on which the actual wholesale cost slightly exceeds $400, and three very elaborate hand-carved styles, that cost somewhat over $300. On these the terms of payment will be $100 cash and $25 a month, and any of the other instruments may be paid for at the rate of $25 down and $10 a month, with interest on the deferred payments at 10 per cent. per annum. Every instrument sold will be accompanied by the respective manufacturers' five-years warranty, which will be duly counter-signed by Eilers Piano House, thus making "assurance doubly sure" that a customer's interests will be at all times looked after and protected.

The sale will begin tomorrow morning at the Jacobson Book and Music Company. So if you have any possible use for a fine piano or an organ, come in at once, and do not delay, for the sale will sure close at the end of ten days. ### WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Call on Mrs. Morgan for art embroideries, also decorative work in oil and water colors. 26c

Bishop Winter Morris will preach at St. Paul's Episcopal church next Sunday, Oct. 7th, at 10:30 a. m.

A marriage license was issued this morning by the county clerk to J. W. McCormick and Miss M. L. Grant, both of Waniam.

One hour's instruction given with every pillow purchased this week at Mrs. Morgan's. 26c

Miss Cora Joles was elected queen of the carnival last night by a vote of 2991, to 2515 for Miss Lizzy Bonn and 1114 for Miss Annie Haysm.

Parties desiring space in the carnival grounds should apply immediately to C. L. Phillips at the carnival committee's headquarters. The rule is, first come first served.

At 3:30 this afternoon a telephone message from Kingley announced that the heaviest rain shower seen for a long time was then falling on the Tygh Ridge, and that the water was rushing through the streets of Kingley like a small river.

John McCracken, a well-known merchant and resident of Portland for many years, has been placed in nomination as the regular republican candidate for the legislature, to fill the vacancy in the house of representatives caused by the death of Andrew J. Knott.

We have a fine bargain in city property near The Dalles high school. Fine cottage of four rooms, pantry, closets, basement, chicken yards, beautiful lawn, young and bearing orchard; two lots 50x100. If you want a property of this kind at your own price, call and see Hudson & Brownhill.

A. E. Lake and Simeon Bolton, to whom the carnival committee delegated the duty of finding a couple willing to offer themselves on the altar of matrimony and submit to the ordeal of a public wedding at the coming fair, now claim they have made the rifle, and that after some little preliminary matters have been adjusted the names of the victims will be announced.

The losses at the Shaniko fire of yesterday, so far as can be estimated at this writing, are as follows: Fred Houghlor, stock and fixtures, between $5000 and $6000; insurance, 4500. Store building, cost $4000; insured for $2,500. Stock, fixtures and building totally destroyed. Net loss between $2000 and $3000. The Pease & Mays building cost in the neighborhood of $5000 and was insured for $3000. A large portion of the stock was saved, and the insurance will cover the loss on the balance.

Miss Margaret Jenkins, an elocutionist of merit, who is visiting in the city from Portland, has consented to recite at the entertainment at the Methodist church Friday evening. She will give James Clarence Harvey's poem "The Whistling Regiment." Added to the pleasure of listening to so gifted a singer as Mrs. Klein, is this further attraction for the occasion.

A street fair and carnival without a baby show would be the play of Hamlet over again with Hamlet left out. The Dalles has as handsome a lot of babies as are to be found on the American foot-stool. The carnival executive committee will see the point of this paragraph, else they are duller than we take them to be. Who will offer prizes for the handsomest babies? Don't all speak at once.

The whale that recently washed ashore on the Oregon beach, about midway between the Seaside and Grines hotels, though still on exhibition, is no longer the attraction that it was several days ago, says the Telegram. It is now beginning to make its presence felt, and beach residents and visitors find it more pleasant to view the remains of the monster at long distance than at close range. The whale is beginning to resent familiarity. The animal is about 25 feet in length and from 4 to 4½ feet thick. It is what is known as the black whale, and seldom attains much greater size than the one washed ashore.

Some time ago Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, famous the world over as the author of "In His Steps," published a Topeka paper for one week by special arrangement with its owners, on a plan entirely his own. The policy was defined as orthodox Christianity liberally applied. Now comes a new man, said to be backed by a large Portland concern, and he has announced the paper for tomorrow. The new publication is to be devoted to the best interests of the people of Wasco county, treating its subjects in a purely social and esthetic sense. "The Wool City Special," as he has christened it, is advertised for tomorrow and, as the editor states, he will rely entirely on the voluntary support of the people, believing a sufficient percentage of the population here are not only ready to receive such an enterprise but that they will be quick to perceive the benefits of its suggestions.

J. V. Mossman, an Oregon pioneer of the early fifties, was in town yesterday in the interest of the "Native Son" monthly and left for his home at Portland on this morning's boat. Mr. Mossman was a resident of The Dalles in 1853. He was a volunteer in the Indian wars of 1855-56. He carried the mails on horseback between The Dalles and Walla Walla during the winter of 1859 and '60. He was deputy sheriff of Wasco county in 1830, under Sheriff Charles White, when Wasco county included all of Eastern Oregon, nearly all of Idaho and part of Montana. He was here in '58 when Jerry Dennis killed Duff Neil over a game of cards and was afterwards acquitted. He was here in '59, when one James killed a man named Burns with a dry stick and afterwards served two or three years in the penitentiary for the crime. He was still here in the early sixties when Deadman killed Meeks out on Willow Creek, Crook county, about three miles above the Henry Cleek place, after having robbed his victim, and was present when Deadman was hanged in this city. Mr. Mossman is a native of the Hoosier state, where he was born 70 years ago.

PEOPLE COMING AND GOING.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Haveley, of Boyd, were in town last night.

John A. Cradlebaugh and son, Rudy, are in the city and will leave tonight for the Greenhorn district, where Mr. Cradlebaugh may spend the winter looking after his mining interests.

J. H. Smith, the Grass Valley merchant, was in town today on his way to the warm springs, near Collins Landing, where he will spend a few weeks in hope of relief from an acute attack of sciatica.

Mr. and Mrs. Cary Jenkins are in the city paying a short visit to friends while on the way from Coar d'Alene to Portland, where Mr. Jenkins will finish his course of studies at the North Pacific dental college.

A. Paffenberger is in the city in the interest of the Pacific Farmer. Mr. Paffenberger has not been in The Dalles since the big fire of '91, and he was surprised at the way the city has grown and extended since that time.

Isaac Joles returned yesterday from Spanish Gulch, Wheeler county, where he spent the summer working on his placer mine, with fairly satisfactory results. He will spend the winter with his family and resume work on the mine next spring.

REV. MR. KRUGER DENIES IT.

Not Being a Minister of United Brethren Church, He Was Not Expelled.

Saturday's Oregonian contained a dispatch from Spokane which stated that Presiding Elder Rhodes of the United Brethren denomination had lately publicly announced, in that city, that Rev. Paul Kruger, now pastor of the Christian church at The Dalles, had been expelled from the United Brethren church "for sufficient cause" and was not a minister in good standing. The Chronicle did not print the item, suspecting, as is nearly always the case that there were two sides to the story, and because we would ten times rather print something good about a minister of the gospel than something evil. Here is Mr. Kruger's side of the story as it appears in the Oregonian of this date, Oct. 3.

Rev. Paul Kruger takes issue with a recently printed statement that he has been expelled from the United Brethren church. In a letter written to the Oregonian from The Dalles, he emphatically asserts that he was not a member of the church, and that the statements made by Presiding Elder Rhodes, at Spokane, are wilfully false. In this letter, Mr. Kruger makes a vigorous attack on the character of persons associated in the management of Huntsville Seminary, of Washington. Trouble between him and these men, he says, over what he regarded misconduct of theirs, is at the bottom of the declaration of Elder Rhodes.

"The article was written with the intent to injure me," says Mr. Kruger. "In Elder Rhodes' communication he uses the term 'for sufficient cause,' but fails to state the cause. It is but justice to me and to the public that the cause be stated, or if he cannot state the cause, keep silent altogether. He attacks my character, and would like to make it appear that I am not respectable. I am willing to have any one investigate my character."

"I do not deny the fact that I worshipped with the United Brethren church at Huntsville, Wash., as well as in Nebraska, and I also preached for them, but only because the church of my choice was not represented there. Not feeling willing to stay away from church, we worshipped with them. But the real reason of the attack is that I was at one time financial agent for the Huntsville Seminary, and had difficulty with a part of the board."

Mr. Kruger says the trouble grew out of his charging certain members of the board with un-Christian and ungentlemanly conduct. In the context following the charges, he says Elder Rhodes upheld the members of the board.
