

For President—
WILLIAM M'KINLEY, of Ohio.

For Vice-President—
THEODORE ROOSEVELT,
Of New York.

The full dinner pail greatly worries Candidate Bryan, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. In his frantic effort to get away from that practical proof of prosperity he adds false statement to his usual trick of suggesting falsehood. In his speech at Kansas City on Tuesday he said: "Whenever any republican holds up before you the full dinner-pail argument, ask him what he thinks of less than $1 a day received by the men mining anthracite coal—less than $1 a day the year round." Here is Mr. Bryan's positive statement that anthracite coal miners receive less than $1 a day. What are the facts?

In their own demands upon their employers the men mining anthracite ask: That laborers—not miners—now receiving less than $1.50 a day be advanced 20 per cent, but to not more than $1.75; that laborers now receiving from $1.50 to $1.75 a day be advanced 15 per cent; that laborers now receiving $1.75 or more a day be advanced 10 per cent. For the miners proper, as distinguished from laborers, no advance is asked. The miners ask relief from certain grievances as to the price of powder, weighing of coal, etc., but are satisfied with their present wages.

The leaders of the miners state that in some mines the least skilled laborers are paid as low as 90 cents a day, but they estimate the average wages of this class of anthracite mine workers at $1.25 a day. That the average wages of many laborers must be more than $1.25 a day the men's own demands prove. These figures, taken from the mine workers' own statement, prove the falsehood of Mr. Bryan's assertions as to wages in the anthracite region.

Then Mr. Bryan is worried by the "full dinner pail" in another way. "I want to ask the laboring man," he wails, "if he is content to live and die with nothing more than a full dinner pail?" Certainly not, nor does the republican party ask him so to live and die. But the republican party very promptly asks the laboring man to contrast his present full dinner pail with that vessel's condition when we last experimented with the democratic party. The full dinner pail is in sharp contrast with the soup kitchens of not many years ago. Mr. Bryan dislikes the full dinner pail argument, but he cannot get away from it. And unless the American people have forgotten their country's history and the democratic party's record the full dinner pail will absolutely block Mr. Bryan's road to the White House.

One of the best expansion speeches of the old soldiers' meeting of last evening was made by a veteran of the civil war, who was an open and earnest supporter of Bryan four years ago. If all the old soldiers think as The Dalles veterans do, it is mighty cold comfort Bryan will get from them. At the close of the meeting B. F. Pike, senior vice-commander of the Oregon G. A. R., said to the editor of this paper: "I am not surprised at the result of tonight's meeting. Bryanite papers try to create the impression that many of the old soldiers will not support McKinley, and do not believe in expansion. So far as my experience goes nothing could be farther from the truth. During the past few months I have visited nearly every post in Oregon and the old soldiers talk everywhere as The Dalles veterans did tonight."

The Malheur Gazette rounds up the Baker City Democrat in the following handsome fashion: "Where is McKinley's prosperity?" asks a democratic exchange in a long article, and the local department answered it in these words: "There is not in Baker county an idle man who wants to work."

One of the many features in "The King of the Opium Ring," which comes to the Vogt on Wednesday night, is the famous acrobatic clown, who, assisted by a company of clever gymnasts, rescue the heroine from the balcony of a Chinese restaurant and carry her across the stage to the opposite building. There are many other new and novel specialties introduced during the action of the play, among them being the "Opium Ring quartette."
