

CORONER'S INQUEST.

A Woman's Remains Kept Above the Ground Ten Days After Death.

Coroner Butts held an inquest yesterday at Hood River on the body of a woman, named Maria Sauer, that has some circumstances connected with it altogether out of the ordinary run of things in Oregon. The woman had died on Friday, 5th instant, ten days previously, and had not been buried. She was a native of Germany and had come to the United States about three years ago, in company with her five children and an elder brother named Fred Meyer. They had moved from Portland to Hood River valley a few months ago and were living on a piece of rented land about eight miles southeast of the town of Hood River.

The brother and son of the dead woman had confined the remains and, inclosing the coffin in a tin case which the son made, carried the remains to a vacant spot a short distance from the cabin and covered it with brush. The Hood River authorities, hearing that the remains had not been interred, had them brought to town Saturday and immediately notified the coroner.

At the inquest the brother and son testified that the reason why they had not buried the woman was because they intended to remove to The Dalles as soon as they got $80 that was expected by mail, and they calculated to take the remains with them. Dr. Brosius examined the remains, which were greatly emaciated, and testified that an anatomical diagnosis indicated that the woman had died of cancer in the breast and a verdict was rendered to this effect.

Meyer's neighbors all say he is crazy and that his refusal to bury his sister was in some way related to his belief that she had died from the effects of witchcraft inflicted on her by a neighbor. They had a cow that died suddenly a short time ago and Meyer accuses a neighbor of having bewitched her. He found out the witch by fixing a horizontal whirling arrangement on the end of a stick stuck in the ground, with a nail attached to the wheel and pointing horizontally. The wheel was given an impulse and when its motion ceased the nail pointed directly to the residence of the witch.

After the inquest Meyer promised to bury his sister but during Sunday night he hired a team and, stealing the body from the morgue, made off home with it. It is not known whether he has buried the body or not, but the chances are that the remains are still above ground. The woman's age was given at 42. The brother was some years older.

THE CELEBRATED ..COLUMBIA BREWERY...
AUGUST BUCHLER, Prop.
Of the product of this well-known brewery the United States Health Reports for June 28, 1900, says: "A more superior brew never entered the laboratory of the United States Health reports. It is absolutely devoid of the slightest trace of adulteration, but on the other hand is composed of the best of malt and choicest of hops. Its tonic qualities are of the highest and it can be used with the greatest benefit and satisfaction by old and young. Its use can conscientiously be prescribed by the physicians with the certainty that a better, purer or more wholesome beverage could not possibly be found."
