People of Peking and Tientsin Have Little More to Do with the Business Than to Act as Forwarding Agents.

A recent report from San Francisco to the effect that the revolution in China had interfered with the tea export business to such an extent that there would soon be a tea femine and that the price of ten would go up caused a stir in the ien drinking com-merchants have no feer as to adalk, and sold to merchants who colhet, assert and cure it, and then put it up in case, cases and other packages for transportation. When it reaches that pure of the country which is now in a state of revolution It is ready for shipment to this or any other country, and the people of Peking or Thurshy have really nothing more to do with the tea business than

The tea langing business begins in May used bots; ontil December, and the present transies have not served to keep the men who usually make the trip to China from Europe and America from making their usual tour. As to prices, it is believed that the Chinese will not use the present conditions as a lever to raise them. although the opportunity for doing so Is favorable. But the scrupulous honesty of the Chinese merchants keeps him from making use of his advantage. In speaking of the characteristies of these people, Edward Runge

"A Chinese merchant will drive a close bargain and do his best to get his goods at the lowest possible price. He will haggle and me every competitor before he gives his order, but once that is done be lives up to his word. He signs no contract and asks no written guarantee from the man with whom he makes the bargain. When the goods are delivered he pays for them, and he does so cheerfully, regardless of the changes that may have taken place in the market value of his goods. He pays as he agrees he will. and in that particular he is more re-Hable than many European merchants. The Japanese has papers consuls and consular officers, and if the goods should be chapper when they are received be would find an excuse for refusing to accept them, and would compet the producer to reduce his price. I have known Chinese.

Its tonic qualities are of the highest and it can be used with the greatest benefit and satisfaction by old and young. Its use can conscientiously be prescribed by the physicians with the cersainty that a better, purer or more wholesome beverage could not possibly be found.
