

For President - WILLIAM M'KINLEY, of Ohio.

For Vice-President - THEODORE ROOSEVELT, of New York.

The other day, says an exchange, an Ohio paper, the Bucyrus Forum, printed in large type, quotations from Lincoln, with approving extracts from Bryan's speeches. It occurred to John Hopley, the veteran editor of the Bucyrus Journal, a republican paper, that he remembered utterances on Lincoln in the Forum that did not tone with these latter-day laudations.

"Abe Lincoln is the worst character that history gives any account of. To call him a brute is a libel on the dog. He can not be characterized truly by a metaphor. He must be described. God marked him as signally as he did Cain; not perhaps that all men might slay him (one man was found enough for that duty), but that all might beware of him. Omnipotence could add nothing to the loathsomeness of his person. As is the invariable rule in such creations the inner man was as hateful as the outer. When he was shot (four years too late)—happily he was embalmed—and ten years hence his neck may be found strong enough to hold his body on the gallows tree, as has happened to tyrants heretofore."

That was before Mr. Bryan's time, but Mr. Stevenson, his running mate, who was a knight of the Golden Circle after the war and a copperhead always, could tell us some exceedingly interesting things about what he and his fellow copperheads thought and said of the man whom Bryanites now exalt to a place among the gods.

Judge A. S. Bennett made a political speech in Pendleton Monday night, and the Bryanite paper of that town commends his political candor in conceding that Mr. Bryan made a mistake in "yielding to the entreaties of the republicans and asking his friends to vote for the ratification of the Spanish treaty." So it appears Bryan didn't of his own volition urge his democratic friends in the senate to vote for the ratification of the treaty but was flim-flammed into it by the wicked republicans. Wonder where the judge got his information? It seems to us he has been criminally negligent in withholding it till almost the last moment. Goodness knows the Bryanites have had need of all the help that the knowledge of this wicked republican trick on the good Mr. Bryan would have afforded.

Democratic apotheosis of Lincoln is history repeating itself, as it did 2000 years ago among those whom Christ denounced in these words: "Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets and your fathers killed them. Truly ye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers; for they indeed killed them and ye build their sepulchres."

Dissolution of Partnership. The partnership heretofore existing between J. A. Carnaby and J. W. Blakey is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued under the style and firm of Carnaby & Summers, who will collect all bills and pay all obligations of the late firm.

LAMENT OF "OLD SOUR DOUGH"

I've trodged, I've started and I've trodden All over this white barren land. When the snow-stitches stretch, white and silent When the timberless, white mountains stand From the hills peaks that grow in the snow-light.

I've worked with my partner all summer "Cross-cutting" a crossed road creek. Which we never saw thought of "floating." Then we "peaked" a strake.

We traded the red deer for their food. And the hungry Lakeland who herds them. Because their heads they had found. Here it seemed as if good claims might be plenty. And we thought we would "stake-out" per-sons.

But we found to our grief that the "gules" were scarce. In the name of the "Lays."

A hundred long leagues to the Northland Over untraded, and untraded snow. We struggled half-blinded, half-lambled. To the sea where the stanch whalers go. We found there and beaches of "ruin."

At last we were sure we had struck it. But alas for our hopes of reward. The landscape from sea beach to sea line Was staked in the name of the Lord.

We're too slow for the new breed of miners. Embracing all classes of men. Who locate by means of attorney. And prospect their claims with a pen. Who do all their fine work through agents. And had around town with the "sports."

On intimate terms with the lawyers. On similar terms with the courts. We had some knocks on the Elondike From the rub-ion's untraded laws. And suffered from shocks and high finance. And other "unmistakable" laws.

But they roped us by regular schedule. So we kept our heads to the west. While at home we're scheduled to struggle. Until we're financially wrecked.

We're scared into submission and silence. By the men whom the government sends To force us to accept law and order. While they keep claims for their friends. And collect in an indirect manner. An exceedingly burdensome tax. Assumed for a time by the traders. And then transferred to our backs.

I am sick of the stream of the eagle. And the laws of dishonest desire. And I'm going in quest of a country. Where a miner can "locate" a mine. Which I have rustled an outfit. These players will know me no more. For I'll try my luck with the Russians. On the bleak Siberian shore. —DUNNAN.
